PIERMEN VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE, JEERING LEADER

STRIKERS DRIVE REDS OFF

BOATMEN ALSO STAY OUT

Ferry Strike Will Be Continued as Result of Action by Union Meeting.

The striking longshoremen voted overwhelmingly against returning to work at a mass meeting in Cooper Union last night after three hours of noisy demonstration. Although there were scattered shouts in favor of halting the tie-up, when Chairman Riley put the question the influence of the radical element proved too strong and the meeting finally made the vote unanimous.

Jeering and booing T. V. O'Connor, International President of their union, the striking longshoremen last night jammed Cooper Union to its capacity at the meeting held to determine whether to continue or to end the harbor strike. Thousands of the strikers were unable to enter the meeting place and, gathering outside, became so boisterous that the reserves from three police stations had to be called out to maintain order.

In line with the grave turn given the strike by the determination of the longshoremen to continue their fight, was a report, widely current in Jersey City last night, that 18,000 regular army troops were on their way to man boats of the United States Railroad Administration and also to guard the waterfront. No confirmation of this report could be obtained in official quarters.

Long before the meeting opened at 8 o'clock streams of the strikers began to pour into Cooper Union. Guards were posted at the entrance, and before any man was permitted to go in he was required to show union buttons or his membership card. Many of the strikers had neither, and it was these who gathered outside the building to howl and hoot their displeasure. Within an hour after the doors had been opened more than 3,000 men were moving around the small square in rather threatening fashion.

Shortly after Police Captain McAuley of the Fifth Street Station had called his own reserves and those of the other stations to control the situation outside of the meeting place three speakers began to talk at as many points in the square. The angry pier workers crowded around the orators, and, getting the gist of their speeches, raised shouts of "anarchists," "reds," and "I. W. W." At the first of the yells the speakers who had essayed an attempt at socialistic proselyting hurriedly gathered together their notes and started on a fast run down Eighth Street.

Longshoremen Chase "Reds."

With shouts of "They're Bolsheviks," "Kill them," "Mob the I. W. W.'s," the wildly excited longshoremen gave chase. The two fast moving figures in the van of the pursuing thousands of longshoremen increased their speed by seconds and fina'ly reached Third Avenue where they escaped.

While the dissatisfied ones outside were conducting their demonstrations, random hisses and shouts from the thousands inside Cooper Union indicate even early that the men were not inclined to quit their strike. The first speaker, Thomas Curtin, a Commissioner of Compensation in the Department of Labor, had only stood up to acknowledge his introduction when his presence was objected to.

From here and there in the crowd came questions as to where Commissioner Curtin "stood." Then came a systematic attempt to hoot him off the platform, but John F. Riley, Chairman of the Strike Committee, came to his rescue, and Curtin began to talk. When Mr. Curtin told the men that they had agreed to abide by the award of the National Adjustment Commission, from all corners of the hall came shouts of "We did not." Then somebody confided to the Commissioner of Compensation that "nobody here wants compensation; we want money!"

After Curtin's stormy time of it, came Hugh J. Frayne, General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor. There was no attempt to outvoice Frayne. He saved the situation at that time by a cool and calm talk on the principles of organized labor, asking the longshoremen to respect the traditions that have been the bulwark of organized labor. He urged them that "foolish action should not be used to destroy the labor movement," and appealed to their patriotism to be loyal to the principles of labor. Frayne blamed the unfair employers, as he put it, for the present labor situation, and asked the men to be "considerate and just and calm" in any action they might take.

"Let us not blind ourselves to the issue," he declared with great earnestness at the end of his speech, "for this may not be the last time that you are to go out on strike for more pay. Don't have it later said that the longshoremen were untrue to the ideals of American citizenship, untrue to the principles of organized labor, and untrue to your best interests."

When Chairman Riley, leader of the strikers, arose to introduce the next speaker he, too, was greeted with a medley of disapproval. It began to be shouted around the hall that President O'Connor was awaiting an opportunity to be heard, and the crowd, convinced of this, settled back to prevent him from talking. As a result, Riley received a

Submersible Battle Cruisers Said to be Favored by Beatty

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The political correspondent of The Evening News says there probably will be a great change in Great Britain's naval policy with the advent of Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty as First Sea Lord in succession to Vice Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, who resigned last week.

Vice Admiral Beatty's friends, says the correspondent, declare that he believes the future warship will be an oil-driven submersible battle cruiser, and that the Admiralty's plans may be shaped in accordance with this belief.

The dreadnought will not be altogether eliminated, but it will be considered of secondary importance.

STRIKE PARALYZES RAILWAY EXPRESS

GOVERNOR URGES ACTION

Men Refuse to Work Until Wage Board Acts on Demands Made Months Ago.

In an effort to force a decision from the Wage Adjustment Board in Washington, 11,000 members of Local 445, of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers, yesterday walked out of the local depots of the American Railway Express and stopped at a stroke, the express business of the city.

Powerless to operate, Robert E. M. Cowie, Vice-President of the American Railway Express, placed an embargo on all shipments to and from the city, pending settlement of the strike. He said a vast quantity of perishable express was lying in the various depots, and if the walkout continued, most of it would be a complete loss. A sharp increase in the price of eggs, butter and seafood, large quantities of which arrive daily by express, will occur unless the controversy is ended by tonight.

Although fresh vegetables probably will be scarce, beginning today, there will be no interruption of the milk supply. Milk entering the city is handled by a separate union organization, which is bound by agreement to remain at work. A survey indicated that members of the milk handlers' union had no present thought of sympathetic action.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Governor Smith addressed an urgent telegram to Walter D. Hines, Director of the United States Railroad Administration, asking that the Wage Adjustment Board reach a prompt decision on the men's demands for an increase of $25 a month. Up to last night, the Board had announced no judgment.

National Strike Threatened.

All of the 135,000 express employees throughout the country are included in the subject before the wage board and, unless a decision is made soon, the spread of the tie-up from local to national scope is threatened.

The strike of the expressmen which, according to the statement of their own officials, was "unauthorized" and in face of an appeal by Governor Smith, began at midnight Sunday. By 8 o'clock yesterday morning it had paralyzed express traffic. With the drivers and their helpers the platform men walked out so that emergency automobiles could not be pressed into service to keep traffic moving.

Throughout the day and last night pickets were posted at the strike points. There was no disorder, due to the absence of strike breakers, and the express company made no appeal for police protection.

The first depot affected by the strike was that at the Grand Central Terminal. Delegates went directly from the strike meeting to the depot, and when the 4 o'clock crew arrived they were informed of the strike action and immediately left. The depot at the Pennsylvania Station is a forwarding station only and, as only platform men are employed there, operation continued for a time.

At 25 Horatio Street, the downtown stables of the American Railway Express, none of the forty-six wagons was operated. Only two employes appeared for work, while fifteen strikers paced up and down. This depot supplies produce to Washington Market, and shipments that should have been delivered yesterday morning were rotting at the depot last night.

All Union Men Go Out.

In Harlem and the Bronx, 100 employes, the full staff of the district, struck, according to C. R. Rickes, Superintendent of the Harlem-Bronx Division, 1 West 125th Street. The stations affected in this territory, are at St. Nicholas Avenue and 124th Street, and Morris Avenue and 180th Street. Between fifty and sixty trucks normally operate from these points. Hundreds of packages are at the stations awaiting delivery.

Between 500 and 600 drivers, helpers and platform men, quit at 8 o'clock in Brooklyn. The depots tied up were at 20 Dean Street, 35 Hanson Place, Forty-first Street and Third Avenue, 2566 Atlantic Avenue, 134 Steuben Street, Park Avenue and Raymond Street, and Second Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The Brooklyn strikers presented their demands in May, but returned to work

REDS CALL GARY STRIKERS TO RISE AND OUST TROOPS

WOULD TAKE OVER STATE

MILITARY READY TO ACT

Their Commander Calls Pamphlet the "Most Dangerous" He Has Ever Seen.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Purporting to be a proclamation of the Communist Party of America, a hand bill advocating overthrow of the military in Gary was given to correspondents at the afternoon conference with Colonel W. H. Mapes, commander of the troops. He said that four copies were found on a striker who was stopped on the street by Secret Service men, but not arrested.

"This is the most dangerous piece of literature that has ever come to my attention," said Colonel Mapes. "Other Red pamphlets have been severe but the subject matter has been usually general in direction. This is a direct appeal to the followers to overthrow the Federal troops in Gary. It is a most dangerous situation to deal with and it will be dealt with accordingly.

"Before we leave we intend to clean Gary of Red agitators."

Colonel Mapes has caused all printing shops in the district to be visited in an effort to ascertain where the proclamation was printed. The document reads:

"THE CAPITALISTS CHALLENGE YOU WORKINGMEN.

"PROCLAMATION OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA.

"Martial law has been declared in Gary, Ind. Soldiers of the regular army, soldiers who have seen service overseas, who have waded through the blood of their fellows on the battlefields of Europe, as the capitalist press is gloatingly declaring, are now in control.

"The army of occupation entered Gary fully equipped. Automatic rifles, rifles, hand grenades, machine guns and heavier cannon, cannon that can clear two miles of a city street in a few minutes, as the officer in charge said. These are ready for use in Gary, and the soldiers wear trench helmets made by the workers of Gary.

"Why are these soldiers here, workingmen of the United States? What has happened in the city of steel that requires this murderous equipment for the destruction of human lives?

"The workingmen of Gary are engaged in a struggle against the capitalists. They have suffered long. Low wages, long hours of exhausting work in the heat of the steel ovens, life sapping toil with no time for home life, this has been their lot.

Says Workers Revolted.

"At last they revolted. Risking suffering and hunger, risking the assault of the brutal bullies of the steel trust, who do not stop even at murder, they resorted to the strike to make their masters lighten the conditions of their toil. They organized their power and united dared challenge to a test of strength the industrial octopus which dominated the steel industry.

"Gary is the city of steel. It was built by the order of the Steel Trust. The influence and control of the Steel Trust extend to every nook and corner of the life of the city. Its spies are everywhere. The local government is its tool and expresses its will. This Steel Trust municipal government forbade the workingmen to show their solidarity by parades and by public meetings.

"It hoped by keeping the workers apart to break their spirit, to give encouragement to the few scabs who were working.

"For two weeks the workers submitted. They permitted the Steel Trust government to trample under foot the democratic rights which they had been so often assured were the heritage of the people of this country. They let the industrial masters demonstrate clearly that not 'democracy,' but iron-fisted autocracy, was for the workers the aftermath of the war.

"Then these workers broke into spontaneous protest. The Mayor, the Steel Trust tool, had forbidden them to meet in public. He had forbidden them to parade through the streets. But they would meet and would parade.

"They formed in line with 500 uniformed men, strikers all, at the head of the line and marched through the heart of the city.

"This mass action of the workers won. Their mass power conquered. The orders of the Mayor became mere rags of paper. Ten thousand workers marched through the heart of the city, and in place of upholding the orders of the Mayor the militia and police cleared the way for the strikers, became their servants, because they were showing their power.

"But capitalism was not done. The Steel Trust does not only have at its back and call the power of the local Government, but the national Government, the State, are equally its servants. The workers had won the first skirmish through their mass power. They must be taught

Plan Eight Federated States For New Austrian Republic

VIENNA, Oct. 13. (Associated Press.)—At the end of a long conference with representatives of the provincial Governments, Chancellor Renner said he hoped the new Constitution for Austria would be ready by the Spring. The general plan, he added, contemplated the federation of the Austrian States, each preserving to a large degree its autonomy, with the Central Government controlling interstate relations.

West Hungary is to become a separate State, and will not be incorporated into Styria, as was first intended. Thus the republic will consist of eight States.

PROTECT OFFICIALS MENACED BY 'REDS'

FIND THREATENING CIRCULAR

"Anarchist Commune Soviet" Urges Workers to Arm and Resist Authorities.

Extraordinary police precautions were taken last night to protect the homes of prominent men, public officials and authorities engaged in the prosecution of anarchists as the result of the finding near the Criminal Court Building of an anarchist circular calling upon the workers to arm themselves, and threatening Russian reprisals "for every worker killed."

The circular, signed by the "American Anarchist Federated Commune Soviet of New York City," made no direct threat of bomb outrages, but as an added safety measure the special policemen sent out last night by Chief Inspector John Daly but only kept watch over Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks, Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke, and Detective Sergeant James J. Regan of the Bomb Squad, all specifically named in the document, but maintained a guard over public buildings and churches.

Justice Weeks, Rorke and Regan all are concerned with the trial on charges of criminal anarchy of Gust Alonen and Carl Pinlo. Direct threat of armed reprisals is made against these three, but the exhortation to armed resistance against the authorities is directed also to steel strikers and others engaged in industrial conflict. The dispersal by the police of an attempted Red parade in lower Fifth Avenue last week appeared as the immediate inspiration of the menace to law and order.

The circular, described by the police as the most radical of which they have come in possession, bears no hint as to its origin beyond the subscribed name of the society. Policemen who have been warring on radicals have been searching some time for this organization, and as a result of this new circular are again making an effort to find the plant in which its literature is printed.

The circular reads:

ARM YOURSELVES.

The autocratic, barbaric suppressions and imprisonments of this self-called "democratic" country has been within the last two days really Russianized as in the olden days of Czardom.

Striking workers in all the industries, especially in the steel industry, are being killed and wounded to death daily by the police, soldiers, sailors, spies, and "special deputies"—all henchmen of the Government, which are the sole upholders and protectors of capitalism.

A peaceful parade on Wednesday, Oct. 8, to protest against the Allies and United States hypocrisy, dishonest and murderous starvation blockade on revolutionary Russia, was brutally attacked. Men, women, and children have been clubbed and trampled upon by mounted police murderers.

After such a murderous pogrom on people who thought they had at least the liberty to walk on "their" streets, capitalism's leading prosecutor, A. Rorke, against you workers, had the shameful, brazen audacity to ask: We are trying to find out whether there was a deliberate attempt to create a riot."

There was "a deliberate attempt" not only made, but also carried out, by the orders of this dirty scoundrel himself, who dared yet afterward to arrest some of those whom his co-henchmen have so inhumanely attacked.

Since the Government has Czaristically Russianized its methods in clubbing and murdering you whenever you raise your voices in protest against injustice or dare to go out on strike, there remains for you, the workers, only one thing left, and that is to arm yourselves.

ARM YOURSELVES.

We therefore call upon you, the striking steel workers, and of every other industry, to arm yourselves for to uphold your rights as free human beings, just as much as capitalism, through its Government, is armed and attacks you in order to keep you in slavery.

And from now on all of you workers who intend to go out marching on "your" streets will know that you shall never go out again, unless you will be armed, to repulse those that will dare attack you.

We appeal to you soldiers, sailors, and police who can think to refuse clubbing the workers who struggle to liberate themselves from the present economic slavery, but those of you who will refuse to be with the workers had better find out what used to happen with such in Russia when Czarism was in its full swing, as it is at present in this country.

Especially we would urge those otherwise leading henchmen of this city, Rorke, Weeks, Regan and their like, that they may as well drop their "high positions," for they will have to pay the price for every worker killed or wounded.

Workers of America, begin to arm yourselves and fight back in the same manner as you are being attacked.

The bloody war of capitalism, through its government, against you, the workers, is on.

Therefore, be not the meek, submissive slave any longer. Arise and start to fight back, until you who can produce the commodities of life shall also own and enjoy them. Then you will have no more wars and bloodshed, for capitalism, Governments, churches and the kept press will have been destroyed forever, and in its place we shall have the new society of brotherhood, equality and happiness, the Anarchist Commune Society.

AMERICAN ANARCHIST FEDERATED COMMUNE.

SOVIET OF NEW YORK CITY.

The circular was found in front of the Criminal Court building by Patrolman Kay Wilbur of the Elizabeth Street Station, who handed it to the bomb squad.

The police are puzzled by the fact that a copy of the document had reached their hands previously, having been given by some one, Sunday night, to Patrolman William Kreitzler of the traffic squad at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, by a man who said he found it and supposed it had fallen from the elevated railways. This copy which aroused little attention, may help in tracing the document to its authors, since it apparently was a printer's proof. It was printed on heavy glazed paper, with corrections written in.

VON DER GOLTZ OUT, WILL QUIT RUSSIA; LETTS GAIN AT RIGA

General Transfers Baltic Command to von Eberhardt—Berlin Stops Food for Troops.

ALLIED SHIPS HELP LETTS

Defenders of City Recross the Dvina and Occupy Suburbs and Left Bank.

5 DAYS' INCESSANT BATTLE

Col. Avaloff-Bermondt Asks for a Parley to Prevent Further Bloodshed.

BERLIN, Oct. 13, (Associated Press.)—General von der Goltz finally transferred his command in the Baltic region to General von Eberhardt on Sunday.

He is expected to arrive in Berlin very soon, according to a semi-official statement issued here today.

The statement announces that the German Government on Sunday deliberated on the latest note of the Entente with regard to the Baltic situation. It adds that a complete stoppage of provisions to the insubordinate troops in the Baltic lands, except those demonstrably returning, was ordered Saturday, that all passenger traffic to the Baltic will immediately be stopped and that only empty trains will be permitted to go to fetch the troops.

It is added that sharper control measures have been taken with a view to preventing the sending of ammunition to the East.

The statement says that General von der Goltz, in accordance with Instructions, communicated to the troops the Government's last withdrawal order and emphatically urged compliance with it.

An official statement is published denying formally the allegation in the Lettish appeal to the Entente that German troops in the Baltic provinces have done everything possible to support Bolshevism and have attacked the Letts from the rear.

The German rejoinder says that this statement is an abhorrent measure of agitation against Germany. Germany has not broken the peace, it is set forth, but on the contrary has done everything possible to enforce the terms of peace in the case of the misled troops in a portion of the Baltic provinces. It is a matter of record, it is declared, that the Baltic troops (Germans) have not bene the attackers, but that their return to Germany has been delayed and hindered by hostile acts of the Letts and Esthonians.

The statement alleges that it is the Letts who are assisting Bolshevism in every possible way, including measures to prevent Russian troops from reaching the front against the Bolsheviki.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (Via Copenhagen.)—Despite some semi-official assurances that the evacuation of the Baltic provinces is progressing the German press and public are gravely agitated about the situation.

Many clear-headed men here consider that the best solution of the Baltic problem is to let the German troops there join in the fight against Russian Bolshevism under Entente supervision.

ALLIED WARSHIPS JOIN IN BATTLE AT RIGA

Letts Recover Part of the Ground Lost in Five Days of Hard Fighting.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—Allied cruisers are aiding in the defense of Riga against German attacks, which for five days have been incessant and stubborn, according to a communication issued by the Lettish Foreign Office Sunday.

Riga is being bombarded by the enemy. The communication reads:

For five days the Lettish troops before Riga have been engaged in beating off incessant, stubborn German attacks.

The Letts have recrossed the Dvina River in the direction of Mitau and have occupied the suburbs of Riga on the left bank of the river, according to a telegram to the Lettish Press Bureau from Wenden, Livonia, fifty miles northeast of Riga.

The dispatch adds that the Cabinet, the National Council and other Government officials went to Wenden Friday from Riga, but that the coolness of the higher Lettish military officers partially retrieved the situation at Riga, and the Premier and Minister of Justice have returned there.

A military convention has been concluded with Esthonia, the effects of which already are to be seen in the assistance of the Esthonians at Riga.

The old town of Riga and the port have been greatly damaged, it is stated. Many civilians have been killed or wounded.

Claiming to have checked the attack of Lettish troops who landed at Libau from British vessels and who attacked the left flank of his forces, Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt has invited the Letts and Es-

PARIS AWAITS LAST RATIFICATION STEP

ALL RECEIVED BUT ITALY'S

Washington Diplomats Doubt if Her King's Decree Is Binding Without Parliament's Approval.

PARIS, Tuesday, Oct. 14.—Le Journal Officiel announces this morning the signing by President Poincaré of the document ratifying the Peace Treaty with Germany and other acts signed at Versailles June 28, which are to be deposited in the Foreign Office in accordance with the final clauses of the Peace Treaty, thereby ending the state of war.

Decrees published in the Journal Officiel yesterday morning put the interior affairs of France on a peace basis, ending the state of siege, lifting the censorship and transferring jurisdiction over police affairs from the army to Prefectures.

To end the state of war with Germany it is still necessary to deposit in the Foreign Office a text of the treaty signed by President Poincaré, which will be filed with the ratification document signed by President Ebert of Germany, which is already in hand. To this will be added the ratification documents signed by the Kings of England and Italy. A document will then be drawn up setting forth the fact of the deposit of the document, and this will be followed by the publication of the text of the treaty in the Journal Officiel. At that time the treaty will go into effect.

The exchange of ratifications will occur at the Foreign Office without ceremony in the presence of the Ambassadors of England and Italy and Kurt von Lersner, Germany's representative. Stephen Pichon, Foreign Minister, will represent France. The Italian ratification has not yet been received, but is expected at any moment, and it is hoped the formalities may be concluded rapidly.

Two sheets will be added to the treaty when it is filed, the first setting forth that representatives of the powers have taken cognizance of the treaty, and the second bearing the signatures and seals of the representatives. The document containing the minutes of the meeting will be filed with the treaty.

The Secretary of the Peace Conference received yesterday a copy of the Peace Treaty ratified by King Albert of Belgium.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Diplomats here are questioning whether ratification of the German treaty by the King of Italy by decree would have binding legal effect. Their opinion is that since it deals with boundaries the approval of the Italian Parliament must be obtained.

That brings up the question of whether the deposit of the Italian ratification with those of Germany, France, and Great Britain would bring the treaty into effect. The document provides that it shall come into force when it has been ratified by Germany and three of the allied and associated powers.

The Italian Parliament is now adjourned, and will not reassemble until December. Meanwhile there is a probability that Japan will act in the near future, so that the coming into force of the treaty probably would not be delayed long, even should the question of the legality of the ratification by the Italian King be raised.

In the case of Japan an imperial decree is sufficient, and the Emperor is understood to be willing to affix his signature immediately upon the conclusion of the examination of the treaty by the Japanese Cabinet.

SENATORS DISCUSS WILSON RUMORS

Resolution in Committee, Calling Upon the President for Information, Causes a Stir.

BAD TASTE, URGES WILLIAMS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—That no immediate move is in contemplation in the Senate toward any action consequent on the President's illness, involving inability actively to discharge the functions of Chief Executive, was evidenced today after the Foreign Relations Committee, for a brief time, had touched upon his indisposition, referring to the White House bulletins and outside reports concerning him.

The President's illness became the subject of discussion in the Foreign Relations Committee when a resolution, offered in the Senate last week, by Senator Poindexter, Republican, of Washington, was taken up, in which the President was asked to lay before the Senate data submitted to him by Minister Reinsch and the military attaché at Peking, relating to the Shantung settlement under the treaty to Japan.

Upon motion of Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, the committee passed over the resolution without action. Senator Williams arguing that, owing to the President's condition, it "would not be good taste" to put in any demand upon him at this time. During the discussion Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, suggested that if the President were so ill that he could not attend to legislative matters, Senator Williams or some other Democratic Senator ought to move that the Senate take a recess until such time as Mr. Wilson is able to resume the responsibilities of his office.

To Senator Fall's suggestion, Senator Williams made no reply.

Later, Republican members of the committee declared that if any move is made in the Senate to inquire into the President's condition or to consider means of temporarily filling the office of President in case of the disability of the President to assume his duties, it would have to be initiated by the Democrats. As for themselves, the Democratic leaders gave no indication that they regarded the President's condition such as to warrant any such step.

For the present at least it was generally agreed at the Capitol no action will be taken respecting the President's illness.

It developed during the day that some Republican Senators, skeptical of the ability of the President to sign his own name to the four or five communications from the Executive that have reached the Senate since Mr. Wilson's illness, have subjected the signatures to a close scrutiny. One of these Senators stated that one of these signatures does not compare with others of the President. The signatures on the recent communications, this Senator said, gave the impression either that they had been written by some one else, for the President, or that, if done by the President, he was "suffering from acute physical disability." The signatures, the Senator said, seemed "strained."

The intimation that any one in the President's confidence has been signing his name for him was strongly resented by Administration Senators, who characterized it as actuated by a "mean, unsympathetic partisanship."

The discussion over the President's illness was projected in the Foreign Relations Committee when the Poindexter resolution was read by the committee's Secretary. Senator Williams at once protested against considering it.

"Here is a resolution asking the Presi-

WILSON CAN DO BUSINESS

Able to Sign Bills, Grayson Says, and Attend to Urgent Matters.

VITAL ORGANS ARE NORMAL

Physician Pleads for a Fair Trial of the President's Rest Cure.

DECRIES FLYING RUMORS

His Sole Duty, He Says, Is to Preserve President's Health, Without Thinking of Politics.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The outstanding development of the past twenty-four hours in connection with President Wilson's condition is the declaration by Dr. Grayson, the President's physician, that his mind is as "clear as a bell," and that there is nothing in his condition that renders it impossible for him to act; but that it is considered best for him to continue the absolute rest cure, mental and physical, which has been prescribed, and to keep business from him as long as possible, except on very important or absolutely urgent matters.

"In a pinch," said Dr. Grayson tonight, "the President would be able to sign measures or to act, but for the present we are following the policy which has been the treatment from the beginning, of keeping business away from the President as long as possible."

Dr. Grayson said that the President's condition was about the same as it had been during the last four days. When he was informed that a proposal to obtain certain information from the President, relative to the treaty, had been under consideration today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which, however, had not acted on the proposal, Dr. Grayson said that if such a request were to come from the committee at this time he would pay no attention to it, but continue to devote all his time and efforts toward the effort to bring about the speediest possible restoration of the President to good health.

"We will continue to insist that the President should have rest and quiet and nursing, and that the element of time should be devoted to this treatment. I will try to keep business away from the President. I may be over-cautious in this matter, but I would rather err on the side of caution than to fail to be cautious in such a case.

"If it is absolutely necessary for some matter to be brought to the President's attention, he could attend to it, and that would be a different matter. But in my treatment of the case, in association with physicians who have been in attendance upon the President, I have forgotten all about politics and am thinking only of the President's health.

"The President's mind is as clear as it ever was. The only question is whether the treatment prescribed for him is to have a fair chance."

It was evident from Dr. Grayson's informal talk with the newspapermen that he was satisfied with the progress that had been made by the President, but that the physician's determination to have his rest cure treatment carried out was firmed.

"If we were to let up in our measure of caution," said Dr. Grayson, "we might regret it. It might be easy for me to let up in insisting that business be kept away from him, and easy to become too optimistic, but when I have the care of the President's life in my hands I consider it my duty to take no chances whatever."

Dr. Grayson issued a bulletin of the President's condition tonight, but had been considering the advisability of refraining from issuing bulletins twice daily. He pointed out that all the bulletins the last few days had been very much the same because the President's condition remained about the same, and it was not necessary to issue bulletins twice daily, but at the request of members of the press he issued a bulletin tonight, despite the fact that he felt that there was nothing new to be said.

Dr. Grayson gave fullest assurances today and tonight that if any material change occurred in the President's condition he would make the fact known. He asserted positively that nothing would be kept from the public if the President's illness should take a critical turn. He has, in fact, made arrangements under which representatives of the press will be notified in any such contingency.

Dr. Grayson today stood firm in his refusal to take official notice of the statements contained in the letter of Senator Moses of New Hampshire, or to discuss any of the current reports.

"We do not consider it proper," he said, "to pay any attention to these reports, but will stand on the official bulletins. If I were to pay attention to all these reports, I would have you newspapermen running your legs off trying to obtain comment from me."

rate of respiration, heart action, and blood pressure are normal and have been so since the onset of his illness, and that his kidneys are functioning normally. The morning bulletin was longer and more precise than usual and had a very good effect. More bulletins of this character, it is believed, would go a long way toward doing away with a number of reports that have been in circulation during the last week, especially in the last two days.

That the President has been able to transact some business was learned from Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who is in charge of the treaty fight on the floor of the House, who asserted that the President has within the past four days transacted some important business. Senator Hitchcock told the representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES that he was aware that the President had acted on at least two important matters within that period. What these matters were Senator Hitchcock, of course, would not say, and nothing was ascertainable at the White House as to their character. But it can be stated that they were important enough to be brought to the President's attention, and that if they had not been of that character they would not have been laid before him.

These facts demonstrate that when necessary, the President can also act on other matters. So far as the signing of bills is concerned, it is declared also at the White House that the President is fully able to do this, and to attach his signature understandingly, but that bills have not been presented to him yet for the reason that those awaiting his signature can still be held away from him for several days. These bills are the prohibition enforcement measure, the amendments "putting teeth into" the food control law, and the bill to curb rent profiteering in the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13, (Associated Press.)—J. T. Creamer, the Netherlands Minister to the United States, who is at Manchester, Mass., sent the following message to the White House today:

Her Majesty, the Queen of The Netherlands, has instructed me to convey to the President of the United States her profound sympathy with his illness and the expression of her heartfelt wishes for a speedy and complete recovery. I will greatly appreciate your kindly transmitting this message.

President Melendes of Salvador cabled as follows:

I deplore from my heart the ill condition of your excellency's health and make most fervent wishes for your speedy and full recovery.

The following message was received from the Italian commercial delegation to the International Trade Conference at New York:

The Italian commercial delegation to the International Trade Conference, just landed in the United States, rejoices at your reported improvement and wishes to express to you its cordial wishes and most respectful greetings.

CALLS MOSES RUMOR "SILLY."

Dr. Dercum Denounces Senator for Statement About a Wilson Lesion.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Dr. Francis X. Dercum of this city today assailed Senator H. Moses of New Hampshire for his statement that President Wilson had suffered a cerebral lesion and that concentration of mind might reopen the lesion with fatal results.

"I will not discuss that report," said Dr. Dercum. "It is one of the silly rumors of which there are entirely too many in circulation. It is nonsensical beyond discussion. We cannot listen to the opinions, predictions and guesses of every one who volunteers some expression relative to the President's condition.

"I have my opinion," he continued, "of any one who uses back stairs gossip or porch-climbing methods."

Dr. J. C. Raimers da Costa of this city, the surgeon whose sudden trip to Paris was linked with the President's reported illness at the Peace Conference, made it plain today that he would not comment on the President's condition or his visit to France.

"I will not discuss it in any way," he said. "I know nothing about it. Leave me out of it."

A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General of the United States, tonight declared that no member of President Wilson's Cabinet knows any more about the President's condition than appears in the newspapers.

Mr. Palmer was questioned on this point before he spoke at the Columbus Day celebration at the Academy of Music.

DEPLORE WILSON'S ILLNESS.

London Paper Hopes He Will Be Spared to See the League Through.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, (Tuesday,) Oct 14.—In commenting on the meeting at the Mansion House yesterday in behalf of the League of Nations, The Daily Chronicle this morning says:

"It is impossible to think at this time about the League of Nations without allowing one's mind to cross the Atlantic to that sick room in Washington, where the proposer of the league lies temporarily stricken. Wilson's illness is a matter of the gravest world concern. It could not have befallen at a worse time.

"We in this country have no desire to interfere in internal American politics, but the fate of the league affects a great deal more than any nation's internal politics, and with it we are deeply concerned.

"We can only hope the President may yet be spared to see it through into calmer water, and that the great American nation may be able to rise above domestic controversy to a realization of the noble opportunity, which now lies before it, to grasp or lead."

The Daily News says:

"Profoundly as all who recognise the part played by America in the inception of the League must deplore the decision of the American Senate to stand aside as the League approaches the first of its tasks, the urgency of those tasks is too imperative to make any further delay possible, even as a price of America's co-operation."

PRAY FOR THE PRESIDENT.

10,000 New Jersey Welcomers Bow in Silent Supplication.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Oct. 13.—More than 10,000 persons attending the Welcome Home celebration here today of 300 returned overseas soldiers and sailors bowed their heads in silent prayer for the recovery of the President of the United States. The request for the prayer was made by Governor William N. Runyon of New Jersey, who declared that because of the illness of the President all political feeling should give way.

The day began with a parade headed by seventeen girls bearing blue silk flags each having a gold star, in memory of the seventeen dead of Westfield. These were followed by the returned soldiers and sailors. The veterans were each presented with bronze medals.

In the afternoon there were athletic events and in the evening a reception tendered by the American Red Cross. The celebration closed with a display of fireworks.

King Albert Anxious About Wilson.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 13.—King Albert, who left here tonight for San Francisco, is deeply concerned about the condition of President Wilson and reads eagerly the bulletins on his condition. To those in his suite he frequently voices his anxiety and his earnest hope that the President may soon be restored to health.

FACE LONGER WAIT FOR TREATY VOTE

NORRIS RENEWS ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The entire time for the debate on the Peace Treaty in the Senate today was taken up by Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, who, after speaking three hours, completed the speech he began last Friday in denunciation of the award of the economic privileges on the Shantung Peninsula to Japan.

In his speech Senator Norris accused President Wilson of having repeated four times on his Western trip an erroneous assertion as to the reason for the Shantung provision having been accepted by the allied powers at the Peace Conference. The President, Mr. Norris said, had made a "reiterated misstatement of fact" as to the Shantung question after admitting, in a telegram to the Senator, that he had been in error.

Owing to the late hour at which Senator Norris finished his speech, Senator Lodge, author of the Shantung amendment to the treaty, deferred his own speech on the amendment until tomorrow. Under the unanimous consent agreement reached last week the amendment is to be moved for consideration on Wednesday. After a day or so more of debate it is expected that a vote will be reached, with the defeat of the amendment conceded by the Republican leaders.

Estimates of the date on which final vote on the treaty will come varied in the Senate lobbies today from Nov. 1 to anywhere up to the end of that month. Senator Lodge hoped, he said, for a final vote on the ratifying resolution by Nov. 15, while other leaders believed that it would be two weeks earlier or two weeks later.

Senator Hitchcock confessed that he was at sea as to the probable time for the ratifying vote. It all depended, he said, on how fast the Republicans were willing to rush debate.

"And nobody," he said, "knows what is in their minds."

Hint Delay Until December.

A hint was thrown out in the lobbies that the Republican leaders were taking advantage of the illness of the President to prolong consideration of the treaty in the expectation of holding off a final vote until the next session of Congress, which convenes Dec. 4. If the President were unable to advise with the Administration leaders in the Senate, it was suggested, the treaty situation might become deadlocked, so that final action before the next session would be impossible.

Senator Hitchcock said that he believed the Administration Democrats would be able to block any scheme of that nature, if the Republicans attempted it. The Democratic forces, he said, would insist upon a vote on ratification before this session was over.

In his speech, Senator Norris again told, as he did last Friday, of the President having declared in speeches that the award to Japan was agreed upon by Great Britain and France in order to induce Japan to enter the war on the side of the Allies. After calling the President's attention to the fact that the agreement between Great Britain and France with Japan was made in 1917, more than two years after Japan had gone into the war, Mr. Norris said, the President had sent him the telegram thanking him for "correcting an unintentional inaccuracy."

After that, Mr. Norris said, the President repeated the "misstatement" in four speeches. This was learned, the Senator said, upon a perusal of official copies of the President's speeches that he had obtained.

"The President, in making his correction," said Senator Norris, "did it in a private telegram to me and I did not give that telegram to the public until he had finished his tour because I had expected that, if he wanted to be fair with the American people, he, himself, would make the correction in as public a manner as he had made the misstatement of a very material matter in connection with the treaty. This morning some one gave me an official copy of the addresses of President Wilson. They have been printed by the Government.

Norris Traces Wilson Speeches.

"I had assumed that, though the President had not made a public correction of that important mistake and misstatement of fact, he would at least not repeat the misstatement in other speeches. I was dumfounded when, just a few moments ago, I found four instances where the President, since he sent that telegram to me, made practically the same statement that he had originally made at St. Louis."

Senator Norris quoted from the President's speeches in Los Angeles, Reno, Salt Lake City and Cheyenne, in which, he said, Mr. Wilson had given utterance to substantially the same statement on the Shantung question as in his St. Louis speech.

"I have already shown that Japan had been in the war for two and a half years before the agreement on Shantung was made," said Senator Norris. "There was not a free German ship in the Pacific, armed or unarmed, at the time that secret agreement was made.

"It is with extreme regret that I call the attention of the Senate to these facts. I assumed, of course, that when the President sent this telegram he would not repeat the error. It is hardly conceivable that he made a mistake at St. Louis, because he knew the facts were not what he said they were; but not only has he withheld the facts from the people, but after he has acknowledged in a private way the error he has gone on and repeated the statement over and over again to the people.

"The truth probably will never overtake the lie, because wide circulation was given particularly to the St. Louis speech, but I can hardly conceive how any man—I cannot conceive how the President of the United States—should deliberately state and restate, again and again, something that he not only knows but has acknowledged to be wrong, on an extremely important matter pertaining to the treaty."

Senator Norris turned from Shantung to a discussion of Korea, where, he said, the Japanese had committed atrocities only comparable with those perpetrated by the Germans in Belgium. Japan, he said, could not be trusted to keep faith as to the privileges awarded her in Shantung "any more than she can be trusted in Korea."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (Associated Press.)—Referring in the Senate debate today to President Wilson's statement at Los Angeles that President McKinley and John Hay, Secretary of State, had declined to protest against Germany's original acquisition of rights in Shantung, Senator Borah said that the Shantung lease had been consummated early in 1898, six months before Mr. Hay became head of the State Department. Mr. Hay, the Senator said, had pursued as Secretary a policy designed to curtail the efforts of various nations to obtain rights in China.

POLISH COMMISSION NAMED.

It Will Investigate German Activities for the Supreme Council.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The Supreme Council today appointed a Commission on Polish Affairs to investigate the execution of articles in the German Peace Treaty concerning the evacuation of territories assigned to Poland and fixing the German-Polish boundaries, the constitution of the free city of Danzig and the special organization under which Poland is to control and administer the port of Danzig and navigation on the Vistula.

The Council instructed Marshal Foch to inform Germany that the sale of aeronautical material to Sweden was considered null and contrary to the treaty by the Allies.

TO REORGANIZE AUSTRIA.

Coalition Parties Reach Agreement on New Constitution.

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—Chancellor Renner today announced that an agreement had been reached between the coalition parties regarding the new Constitution for Austria.

The German parts of West Hungary, which are added to Austria by the St. German Peace Treaty, will have the status of an autonomous land in the new republic, while Austria itself will be organized as a Federal State.

FIGHT KAISERISM IN SCHOOLS

Prussian Minister Says Agitation Is Incited Among Pupils.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (Associated Press.)—Herr Haenisch, Prussian Minister of Worship, told the budget commission of the Prussian Diet yesterday that he proposed to adopt radical means to crush political agitation among the pupils in the public schools.

He said that this agitation had been instigated by political propagandists seeking the regeneration of the Hohenzollern régime.

COLONEL HOUSE IMPROVES.

Bulletin Reports His Condition as "Considerably Better."

This bulletin was issued last night regarding the condition of Colonel E. M. House, President Wilson's confidential advisor, who returned, ill, from Paris on Sunday:

Colonel House is considerably better today, although still weak from an attack of renal colic which he experienced shortly after leaving Paris and from which he suffered during the voyage. His temperature and pulse are normal.

DR. ALBERT R. LAMB.

Gordon Auchincloss, who gave out this bulletin at the Colonel's home, said that bulletins regarding his condition would be issued twice daily. Earlier in the day it was said that within a few days, as soon as he was strong enough, Colonel House would go to a hospital for an X-ray study of his condition in order to determine whether or not he requires surgical treatment.

Colonel House was kept in bed and in seclusion yesterday, and was allowed to see no callers other than a few members of his immediate family.

dent for data at a time when, we are informed, legislative business is being kept away from him," said Mr. Williams. "The physicians do not want him to be concerned at this time with any governmental affairs. I think it would not be in good taste to adopt this resolution owing to Mr. Wilson's condition."

One Senator suggested that the reports from the White House indicated that the President was not able to take up legislative affairs now.

"If the Senator from Mississippi thinks that the President is unable to assume the responsibility of attending to affairs concerning the treaty, which this resolution touched upon, it might be well for him to move that the Senate take a recess," suggested Senator Fall. "That would relieve the President from immediately considering these matters while we have them up."

Another Senator suggested that there was nothing to indicate that the President was actually unable to discharge the affairs of office, but that his physicians had advised against it so as to save his strength and avoid a complete breakdown.

"Why annoy the President at this time?" demanded Senator Williams. "Why not ask the Secretary of State for this information?"

"The Republicans have been criticised in the Senate for directing requests for information on this treaty to the Secretary of State," replied Mr. Fall. "We have been called ignoramuses and asses by the Senator from Mississippi for doing it when, as he says they ought to go to the President."

One Senator remarked that the Senate was without information as to the President's real condition and that it had to proceed on the theory that the President was able to deal with matters of pending legislation, including the treaty.

"When President McKinley was down on his sick-bed, the Senate did not bother him with requests for information," declared Senator Williams.

"But at that time Mr. McKinley's condition was known to Congress," replied Senator Lodge. "There was no secret that he was dangerously wounded and incapable of handling the affairs of his office."

Without a dissenting vote, the Poindexter resolution was passed over for action. Later, when Senator Poindexter, who is not a member of the committee, heard of the committee's action, he said he did not know whether he would press it in the Senate at this time.

"The information it calls for is important in the consideration of the treaty, dealing as it does with the whole Shantung settlement," said the Senator. "I have outside information that documents called for in the resolution would throw an illuminating light on the purposes of Japan toward China. If the friends of the Administration do not want information that will interpret features of the treaty, I should think they would consent to having the treaty wait."

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, whose letter to a constituent in Manchester, characterizing the President's illness as a "lesion of the brain," created a stir in the Senate lobbies, declared that as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee he could say that no Republican member of the committee was disposed to institute any proceeding based upon the possible inability of the President to assume his executive responsibilities.

"It would be contrary to ethics for the Republicans to take any such step," said Mr. Moses. "To my mind, it would be an extreme violation of the proprieties. Until the Senate has definite knowledge, through official channels, that the President is unable to discharge the duties of his office, I fail to see how the Senate could act."

Mr. Moses reiterated what he had stated in his letter to his Manchester constituent, that, according to intimate word conveyed to him, the President's condition was such that he never again would be "an active force or factor in anything." The Senator had received word during the day, he said, that Mr. Wilson's condition was exactly as grave as he had depicted it in his letter.

"It is a brain lesion from which the President has been suffering. I am reliably informed," said the Senator. "His condition is reported to be very serious, although that does not mean that he will not recover. If he does recover, however, I am informed that he will never have the same rugged health as before and will not be able to devote himself to his duties with the same energy."

Senator Moses was reminded that Dr. Grayson, the President's physician, had characterized the Senator as not being an expert physician in his diagnosis of the President's ailment.

"Well," replied the Senator with a smile, "I believe I am as expert a physician as he is a navigator."

VON DER GOLTZ OUT, WILL QUIT RUSSIA

thonians to confer with him at Mitau. The purpose of this proposed conference is, according to an announcement by Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt, to "prevent further bloodshed and to bring about joint action against the Bolsheviki."

There has been no indication of an advance east of Riga by the German-Russian forces. The landing of 50,000 Lettish troops at Libau was a new development in operations along the Baltic, but, with the exception of the reference made to it by Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt, nothing is known as to the success of the movement.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—As far as the latest reports here disclose the situation, Lettish troops still hold the eastern part of Riga, on the right bank of the Dvina.

The steamer Lake Fray, belonging to the United States Shipping Board and carrying relief supplies to Riga, has been ordered not to proceed further until the situation at Riga clears. The steamer has put into Hango, Finland.

GERMAN RECRUITS FOR BALTIC

Many Go East to Join Nominally Russian Forces.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—A dispatch to The Manchester Guardian from Berlin reports that the Russo-German intrigue is of very long standing, an Eastern adventure having been in the minds of military reactionaries in Berlin since the beginning of the year.

It will be remembered, the dispatch states, that the far-reaching possibility of such a measure almost tempted independent action on the part of German armies in the East at the critical moment of the ratification of the peace treaty in the National Assembly at Weimar. For months, the correspondent states, intense recruiting for the army in the Baltic has been going on in Germany, not only for the so-called "Iron Division" and other German detachments, but also for nominally Russian forces.

Russian officers, often Russian only in uniform, are a familiar sight in Berlin and elsewhere throughout the country. Recruits, largely from South Germany, are continually passing through by railway. Many of these wear Russian uniforms, but most of them are in the German field gray with Russian shoulder straps and cockades.

In addition, there has been an organization of a militia or Landwehr from among residents of the Baltic provinces. Youths have been induced to enlist partly by the romance of military adventure and partly by offers of citizenship in the proposed new state and land upon which they may form agricultural colonies. The main argument has been the fear of the distress and anxiety awaiting them in Germany if they were demobilized.

Their reluctance to return home is considered intelligible, the more so because the intense political propaganda by their superiors is directed as much against Republican Germany as against Soviet Russia. The Independent Socialist newspaper Freiheit persistently declares that if this army retreats into East Prussia, a monarchist and militarist coup is seriously to be feared.

DESTROYERS GUARD FLANK.

Four British and Two French Ships Aid Letts at Riga.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Oct. 10, 10 P. M.—On this, the third day of Colonel Analoff Bermondt's attack on Riga, the bombardment has continued since morning. By this hour it has been somewhat reduced in volume.

It is reported that the Germans have withdrawn their threat against the centre of the city to concentrate for an attempted crossing six miles to the south.

Four British and two French destroyers at the entrance to the river guard the Letts' left flank, thereby releasing cavalry and infantry to assist at the new danger point.

Explorations in the city reveal grim evidence of the casualties amid the miscellaneous wreckage. The shops are all closed and barricaded except in numerous cases where the glass and shutters have been smashed to smithereens.

The courage of the Lettish soldiers has been emulated by the Lettish civilians. I saw two women doggedly digging potatoes while bullets were whistling around them. Yesterday I saw four little Lettish boys equipped with wooden swords playing at soldiers while shrapnel burst near. Several Lettish schools remained open, and among the civilian casualties today was a little fellow of 10 found dead and mangled with his schoolbooks.

Still our temples throb with the scream and crash of shells, while anxious thoughts focus on the problem "will the resourceful enemy succeed in his new attempt to cross at a point where his heavy shells can be freely used without danger to German property?"

The intrepid Colonel Berkais, commander of the rearguard, who is resisting to the death, is a man of few words. He regards the situation with jaw grimly set and with confidence shining in his eyes.

DENIKIN DEFEATS REDS AND UKRAINIANS

Judenich's Drive at Petrograd Opened with Smashing Victory at Jamburg.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—A wireless communiqué from General Denikin today claims further victories against the Bolsheviki in the direction of Orel and also in the region of Kiev.

General Denikin announces the capture of Ostrozhensky Vazhnot (a town which cannot be located on available maps) with 1,500 prisoners. The Bolsheviki made an attack upon his army with large forces in the vicinity of Orel but were unsuccessful. General Denikin captured 3,500 prisoners and occupied Krovip. (Possibly Kromy, about twenty-five miles southwest of Orel).

The Southern leader's forces also occupied the important provincial capital Chernigoff, about seventy-five miles north of Kiev, and thus is making headway against both the Bolsheviki and Petlura's Ukrainians. The advance continues.

The capture of Jamburg, announced yesterday, marks the beginning of the push by troops of the Russian northwestern army, under General Judenich, toward Petrograd, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail filed on Saturday at Libau.

General Glasenapp commanded the captors of the place and is reported to have taken four complete Bolshevist regiments, 2,000 other Soviet troops and the entire staff of the Tenth Bolshevist Division. General Glasenapp's losses are reported to have been 27 killed and 150 wounded.

General Vladimiroff, who was mainly instrumental in organizing the offensive, is quoted by the despatch as saying that the German-Russian offensive under Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt came too late to stop the advance of the Russian northwestern army.

It is officially announced that the last British troops left Murmansk Sunday.

OMSK, Oct. 6 (Russian Telegraphic Agency.)—A Bolshevist wireless dispatch picked up by the Intelligence Office of the Siberian Army, declares that the situation in Bolshevist Russia never has been so grave as it is at present; that never before has the front been so near Moscow.

The dispatch adds that anti-Bolshevist armies are moving toward the heart of Bolshevist Russia from all directions. It says the Bolshevist organizations are disintegrating, and that even in Petrograd there are at present only 9,000 members of the Bolshevist party.

The acting Minister of Foreign Affairs today received a representative of the Armenian Republic, to whom he promised the utmost assistance of the all-Russian Government in meeting the needs of Armenia.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—Telegrams from Helsingfors to Russian circles in Copenhagen say that the Bolsheviki are calling together a council of their leaders to discuss the serious situation in which they now find themselves.

It has been discovered that the anti-Bolshevist revolutionists in Moscow managed to get into communication with Bolshevist leaders, who supplied them with military secrets that helped Denikin.

It is announced that Lenin is imprisoned in a small town near Moscow. His arrest was carried out by the Bolsheviki themselves to prevent him from escaping to a foreign country.

MAY RECRUIT ARMENIANS.

Cabinet Expected to Discuss Question of Raising a Corps Here.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The question of raising a military force of Armenians in the United States has been brought to the fore as the result of the unofficial call by Mr. Kachaznouni, former Prime Minister of the Republic of Ararat, and Mr. Enfiajian, former Minister of Finance, on Secretary Lansing, it was learned today.

The matter has been taken up with Secretary of War Baker and it is understood may be discussed at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting. Attorney General Palmer may be asked for an opinion as to the legality of raising such a military force.

It was asserted officially today that such a step might be permitted by President Wilson under his war powers, and that a precedent exists in the permission given for the raising of the Polish legion during the active stages of the war. Poland, however, it was noted, was fighting against the nations with which this country was at war, and the United States has never declared war on Turkey, of which Armenia is a part.

Big Sum to German Unemployed.

$2,000,000 DRIVE FOR SMITH.

College Will Appeal Through the Alumnae for Endowment Fund.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—Smith College is to make a public appeal for an endowment fund, and the alumnae hope to raise $2,000,000. In preparation for the campaign, more than a hundred graduates will organize the Smith Alumnae Service School.

The school will convene here tomorrow for a three-day course. The subjects for consideration will be primarily the changes that have taken place in the college since their departure, and mainly the changes necessary for Smith to adjust herself to the new conditions as they affect women. The students will consider the problems produced by the war, suffrage, the home, and the high cost of living as they relate to women in and out of college.

The $2,000,000 will not only provide for additional educational courses, but for new buildings, including dormitories and a gymnasium. The income from the dormitories will be used to increase the faculty salaries.

The organization, as it stood at a recent meeting of the Central Committee at the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow in New York, consists of Mrs. Barrett Andrews, Chairman; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Thomas J. Doddard of New York, Miss Anne Paul of Boston, Miss Muriel Haynes of Augusta, Me., all of whom represent the alumnae association; Miss Anne Clark of Princeton, Ill., representing the undergraduate body, and President Nielson and Mr. Everett Kimball for the Faculty.

Thomas W. Lamont, Chairman of the Harvard Endowment Committee, will give the organizers the benefit of his experience in the drive for Harvard.

SOLDIER DEAD IN CRASH.

Private Southers Killed and Six Hurt in Washington Collision.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Private Edward Southers, driver of an army motor truck, was killed and six persons were seriously injured today in a collision between a street car and a truck near the Walter Reed Military Hospital.

All of the injured were passengers on the car. The truck was overturned and the front of the street car was smashed.

Middletown Transit Strike Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The tie-up of the electric lines of the Walkill Transit Company in this city and between here and Goshen has ended. All the lines resumed operation this afternoon. After a conference with officials of the company residing in this city and in Harrisburg, Penna., the company decided not to install one-man cars on city lines, which plan caused the strike.

"FORTY-SIX MONTHS IN PRISON."

What the French prisoners suffered under German captivity is told by Andre Bandoni, a French artist, in Current History Magazine for October. 35c a copy at news stands; $4 a year by mail. Current History Magazine, published by The New York Times Co., Times Square, New York. —Adv.

THIS MAN PROCRASTINATED

MR. B——knew, as you know, the importance of making a will and appointing a competent, dependable Executor and Trustee. He had a little family dearer to him than life and he knew that the fullest degree of protection for them demanded the making of his will and the naming of his executor and trustee—BUT he was very busy and he kept putting off the performance of that duty until a more convenient time.

SUDDENLY he—

NO Mr. B—— did not die, but he suddenly realized that he had been procrastinating for years!

NINE MORE FLIERS AT COAST GOALS

MISHAP COST FIRST PLACE

SIX RIVALS IN CLOSE RACE

Land at the Presidio After Thrilling Dash Over Mountains and Nevada Deserts.

Nine more American army aviators finished their transcontinental flights yesterday in the first half of the 5,400-mile reliability race, making twelve in all who have piloted their planes from ocean to ocean through the adversities of weather and luck. Six of the fliers landed safely at San Francisco, and three arrived at the army fields at Mineola.

Lieutenant Belvin W. Maynard, the preacher aviator who flew from the Atlantic to the Pacific in twenty-five hours actual flying time, remains the technical winner of the first half of the contest, although an unofficial computation of the flying time of Captain Lowell H. Smith indicated that he might have beaten Maynard by at least thirty minutes, if penalties were counted out. Maynard incurred no penalties on his swift flight across the continent.

Upon landing at Mineola, at 10:50 o'clock yesterday morning, Captain Smith computed his actual flying time for the 2,700 miles as 24 hours and 30 minutes, or at least between 24 and 25 hours. In his computation he counted out the four hours he remained on the ground near Cleveland, fixing a broken propeller. On the official figures this period will be counted as part of his flying time, because he was forced to alight between control stations. Had the condition of his propeller enabled him to fly the seven miles into the Cleveland control station he would have taken the lead from Maynard on the basis of actual flying time.

Eight Were Forced Down.

None of the other fliers has thus far been reported to excel Lieutenant Maynard's record, most of them having been compelled to alight between the control stations. The three reaching Mineola were forced down by various causes at points between control stations. This was true also of five of the six who reached the Pacific yesterday.

The three aviators who arrived at Mineola yesterday and the official time of the ending of their flights follow.

Lieut. M. E. Queens, De Haviland 4.....1:46:00 P.M.
Lieut. R. Worthington, SE-5-A.....1:47:05 P.M.

The six fliers who alighted at San Francisco, finishing their transcontinental flights, were:

Capt. H. C. Drayton, De Haviland 4.....1:41:29 P.M.
Lieut. Alex Pearson, Jr., DH-4.....2:25:00 P.M.
Capt. J. O. Donaldson, SE-5-A.....2:49:03 P.M.
Lieut. E. C. Manzelman, DH-4 plane.....4:34:50 P.M.
Capt. Harry Smith, DH-4 plane.....5:00:00 P.M.
Lieut. L. S. Webster, DH-4 plane.....6:29:00 P.M.

The six aviators who finished at the Presidio in the afternoon in the short space of five hours were in a thrilling race across the Nevada deserts and the Sierra Nevada Mountains, according to bulletin after bulletin received yesterday at the Contest Committee headquarters at the American Flying Club here. As the messages showed that the six men were fighting mile by mile through the five control stations between Utah and the coast, the interest surpassed that of the arrival of three aviators at Mineola.

Drayton Subject to Penalty.

Drayton had an early start over his rivals, having gone into the control station at Reno, Nev., on Sunday after he had been forced down on Saturday at a ranch near Lovelock, Nev. He has subjected himself to penalty by flying on Sunday to the control station.

Pearson, Donaldson and Webster started in the morning from the control station at Salduro, 518 miles from the coast, and battled closely for honors until noon, when Webster was forced to drop behind by trouble with his motor. With a burst of speed Lieutenant Manzelman and Captain Smith flew the 755 miles from the control station in Green River, Wyo., to the coast. Neither was able to distance the other, and they landed a half hour apart.

In their final spurt, Lieutenants Worthington and Queens flew the 503 miles from Cleveland to Mineola in about six hours, including required stops of one hour and a half at the intervening control stations. A similar burst of speed was put on by Captain Smith in his last two jumps to Mineola from the control station at Rochester.

Under the rules, Lieutenant Maynard may start on his second ocean-to-ocean flight by taking off at San Francisco at 1:12 o'clock this afternoon, Pacific time. His forty-eight hour rest period will have elapsed then, although he is not required to start until ninety-six hours have passed. Inquiries by telegraph yesterday failed to call forth definite replies about his intentions.

Neither Major Carl Spatz nor Lieutenant C. E. Kiel, the fliers who arrived here from the Pacific Coast on Saturday night, will start on their return trip today. Both said yesterday that they were not yet completely rested, and had set no time for their departure. Friends of Kiel said they would not be surprised if he attempted to get off as soon as possible in an attempt to win the honor of first landing at the Pacific in finishing the race. Major Spatz made no secret of his dislike of flying back across the continent.

Question of Racing Back.

None of the members of the Contest Committee was willing to be quoted on the desirability of requiring the aviators to race back, although all said they were unable to see what valuable data could be gathered on the duplication of the first half of the reliability race.

Captain Smith said that he was determined to start his return flight as soon as possible, and the same decision was made by the two other fliers who arrived yesterday. If they carry out their intentions it is probable that the three will hop off within a period of three hours tomorrow afternoon.

Four planes crashed yesterday in the race, but none of the pilots or observers was seriously hurt. Lieutenant H. D. Norris was reported down at Oconto, Neb. Captain J. B. Wright, flying a De Haviland, and Lieutenant S. W. Torney also were reported down between control stations in Nebraska. Another airplane was wrecked at Binghamton, N. Y., where Lieutenant T. Haynes crashed into a telegraph pole. It was the second attempt of the entry to get a start in the race.

Members of the Contest Committee commented yesterday on the high percentage of fliers who finished in their race from the Pacific. Five have arrived already at Mineola, and two may reach Roosevelt Field today.

Major J. C. Bartholf was at Rochester last night, ready to start this morning for Mineola. Lieut. P. J. Richter, was reported at Cleveland, with a good chance of making the Atlantic Coast today. The eight other Pacific Coast entrants are out of the race.

Officers said that much valuable data was being gathered on the various makes of airplanes. All other makes but the American De Havilands and the machines built on the types of the British Sopwith planes have fallen out of the race. In proportion more of the Sopwiths have struggled through than of any other make. They are known as the Sopwith Experimental 5. Much smaller than the De Havilands, they are powered with Hispano Suiza, motors of about 150 horse power. Most of the De Havilands are equipped with Liberty motors of about 400 horse power. The plane of Lieutenant Maynard is an especially high power Liberty, capable of generating 460 horse power.

SIX LAND AT THE PRESIDIO.

Aviators at Western Terminus Report Arduous Flights.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 13.—Six more eastern fliers finished their westbound race at the San Francisco Presidio Flying Field today.

Captain H. C. Drayton, who was leading, was held four and a half hours at Mather Field, Sacramento, because of fog conditions, so he did not reach the Presidio until 1:41:29 P. M. At 2:25 P. M. flier Lieutenant Alexander Pearson, Jr., landed, and while his log book was being inspected a lookout gave warning that Captain J. O. Donaldson, in a Sopwith, was in the offing, the first man to cross the continent, or even the Rocky Mountains, in a single-seated ship. He touched at 2:49:03 P. M.

Although he landed third at the Presidio, second honors will go to Lieutenant Parsons, because he did not leave Roosevelt Field, Mineola, until 1:11 P. M., Wednesday, three minutes after Captain Donaldson, who landed here fourteen minutes and three seconds behind the Lieutenant. Drayton, who landed first today and second in the race, will probably be put in fourth place, as he left Mineola at 9:10 A. M.

Lieutenant Earl C. Manzelman, carrying a civilian observer, arrived at 4:34:50. His observer, M. H. Goodnough, a civilian inspector at Hazelhurst Field, developed a light touch of pneumonia at Salt Lake City. He was bundled up and allowed to continue the journey, but reached San Francisco a sick man and probably cannot make the return flight. Sick as he was Goodnough crawled out on the tail of his ship just before landing to make better braking possible and to prevent the ship nosing over. He crawled back to the vertical fin of the rudder while the ship was several hundred feet in the air.

Captain Harry Smith arrived late but may be one of the contenders for first place, as his log book indicates he made better time than Lieutenant Maynard, who has been credited with the laurels.

The last of today's arrivals from Mineola was Lieutenant L. S. Webster, who landed at 6:29 P. M.

Luck has played a large part in the race. The luck of Lieutenant Maynard was in his decision to push his plane at top speed from the first. Many of the others preferred to throttle down their motors at first and wait until later for the final burst of speed. But Maynard raced from the first take-off and by so doing he missed everyone of the storms, both rain and snow, that every other flier from both East and West had to contend with.

Captain Drayton and his observer, Lieutenant L. J. Sweeley, who took turns at the controls, made the entire flight with a faulty engine. A new engine will be placed in the ship for the return race. Rain just before reaching Chicago loosened the fiber in the propeller and at times it was a question whether this indispensable part would hold out until the next stop.

The engine gave signs of stopping altogether just over Lovelock, Nevada, and the plane had to be volplaned into a ploughed field. Captain Drayton slid out over the tail, as the wheels were about to sink into the soft ground, but even this was not enough, for suddenly the ship stood on its nose and sent him hurtling through the air. His heavy flying outfit prevented serious injury.

Lieutenant Pearson and his observer, Sergeant L. R. Adkison, went through the same rain storm that bothered Drayton. Upon landing they found that the impact of the propeller against the drops of rain had chewed off from half to a full inch of wood around the rims of the blades.

The resourcefulness of Capt. Donaldson was taxed when in alighting at the salt beds of Saldura he broke his landing gear. Just before reaching the ground he removed his goggles. An instant later a drop of oil splashed into one eye, temporarily blinding him, with the result that his ship hit the ground with greater force than he had intended. He was in a Sopwith Experimental Five for which no spare parts of the kind needed were available, so grabbing a pine board, Captain Donaldson whittled out a heavy strut for his landing gear.

His record in crossing the continent in a Sopwith, which is a small, one-seater, light machine, made for pursuit work and easy stunts, and not for long distance flying, is considered remarkable.

Whether many of the Eastern men will continue in the race and fly back was problematical today. Each one who arrived expressed the fear that not many officers would attempt the return flight, but at the same time they all announced their own intention of flying back if their planes could be put in order.

Lieutenant Maynard and his observer, Master Electrician W. E. Kline, were busy today tuning up their De Haviland Four in preparation for taking off tomorrow afternoon at 1:12 o'clock.

TWO MORE MACHINES CRASH.

Lieuts. Haynes and Norris Hurt in Different Accidents.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 13.—An airplane driven by Lieutenant T. Haynes with Lieutenant Cleveland McDermot and Private Theodore J. Lake as passengers, flying from Mineola to Binghamton, crashed into a telegraph pole in landing here at 2:34 this afternoon, wrecking the machine. They had left Scranton at 1 o'clock. Haynes was cut about the face and nose, while McDermot was uninjured. The plane was demolished.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 13.—Lieutenant H. D. Norris of Washington, D. C., and his mechanic, H. J. Meyer of Cleveland, Ohio, participants in the transcontinental airplane race, were slightly injured today when their plane crashed into a hill near Oconto, Neb.

Both airmen suffered injuries to their left arms. Lieutenant Norris, however, was able to talk over the long distance telephone with The Associated Press, and gave an account of the accident. The men were westwardbound between St. Paul and North Platte, Neb., when they ran into a heavy fog and a fifty to sixty mile gale. They were able to see only a short distance ahead, and in an attempt to turn the machine around and land in a cornfield they plunged into the hill, narrowly missing a canyon near by. The machine was wrecked, putting them out of the race.

Lost Aviators Nearly Killed.

STERLING, Col., Oct. 13.—Lieutenant J. B. Wright and Sergeant V. Coleman, west-bound aviators in the transcontinental race, lost their way at 7:40 o'clock tonight and narrowly escaped death when they landed at a farmhouse near here, striking telephone wires and grazing a fence. Their plane was damaged, but they escaped injury. They will resume the flight tomorrow.

Fliers Deliver The Times.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 13.—Captains Harry Smith and Thomas Allen in Plane 29 delivered copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES to The San Francisco Chronicle representative at 5:42:59 today, two seconds after landing at the Presidio. It was the first aero delivery from Atlantic to Pacific Coast in the history of aeronautics.

READY TO FLY 10,000 MILES.

Aviators Expected to Start from Hounslow for Australia Tomorrow.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Captain Matthews and Sergeant Tom Kay are about to start on a long flight to Australia for a fifty-thousand-dollar prize offered by the Commonwealth Government. Their machine is a specially built Sopwith, with a 375 horse power Rolls-Royce engine, very similar in general lines and dimensions to the machine used by Harry G. Hawker and Commander McKenzie Grieve in their attempted transatlantic flight, except that the tanks are smaller and the cockpit takes the form of a comfortably inclosed limousine, with windows in the side and floor.

An ingenious feature is that sliding panels in the roof and rising seats enable the aviators to occupy the ordinary open position in which they are protected by the usual wind screens. The airplane is very fast, but immensely strong, and can land at very low speed. These qualities are called for by the fact that beyond Rangoon the landing grounds are very problematical.

The route which will be followed is over France, Italy, and Greece; across the Mediterranean (300 miles of sea passage) to Egypt; over Mesopotamia and along the Persian Gulf to Karachi and thence across India to Calcutta; then along the Dutch East Indian islands to Timor and Port Darwin. Roughly the total distance is 10,000 miles.

Captain Matthews, who is an old sailor and knows the Pacific islands intimately, is relying upon the hospitality of the various countries, but he is also taking a large supply of concentrated foods—and a repeating rifle. He is an expert navigator, and his instruments for observation and compass correction have been especially designed by himself. It is expected that the start will be made from Hounslow on Wednesday.

STEEL MILLS MAKE BIG GAINS IN WEEK

Two Districts Resume Operations and Others Increase Output in Last Eight Days.

ONLY TWO FIELDS CLOSED

But Strike Leaders Continue to Assert That There Are Few Desertions from Their Ranks.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—The nation-wide steel strike entered its fourth week today, and while steel officials throughout the Pittsburgh, Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, and Northern Virginia districts claim a complete victory and assert that the backbone of the strike has been broken, labor leaders continue to claim that their forces are still virtually intact, with only a few desertions.

A survey of the situation today, throughout the four districts, indicates that the forces arrayed against the strikers have made material gains since the first week of the strike and during the last week succeeded in breaking the suspension in the Mahoning Valley, Ohio.

As against four districts in which there were complete shutdowns last Monday, there are only two today, Wheeling, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio. The Mahoning and the upper Monongahela Valleys have resumed operations since last Monday.

No attempt was made this morning to operate any of the suspended plants in the Steubenville and Wheeling districts, nor was any attempt made to resume at the Cambria steel plant, Johnstown, Penn., which was suspended on the second day of the strike.

The Carnegie Steel Company made no attempt to start its plant in Youngstown, Ohio, today, although reports last night indicated the company would follow the lead of the independents of the district, some of which started last Friday. No statement was forthcoming from the company today as to why the plant did not resume, but it was understood in Youngstown that the plant has failed to secure a sufficient force to start up again. However, it was said at the Carnegie offices here tonight that while the unions had a very strong picketing force out, many of the strikers were returning to the mills.

Operations Start in Youngstown.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company added another blast furnace and a Bessemer converter to the one blast furnace operating last week. This company also had four open hearth furnaces running today and their tube mill was operating at capacity. The Brier Hill Company, at Youngstown, also operated one blast furnace and four open hearth furnaces today, and for the first time since the strike began turned out rolled plates. The Republic Iron and Steel Company, one of the independents, started a blast furnace this morning and had more than sufficient men to keep it going all day.

In the Upper Monongahela Valley district, centering at Donora and Monessen, the situation showed only slight improvement today, it was reported that a few additional men return to work at the American Steel and Wire plant, Donora, and the four operating plants in Monessen.

Conditions in the Pittsburgh district proper and in Braddock, Homestead, Duquesne and Clairton were virtually unchanged today. New men were being hired at all plants in these districts to replace the men who are still on strike.

At the Homestead works this morning, 100 old employes applied for work and the superintendents have started to pick their men instead of sending them all into the mill. The Carnegie Steel Company reported that for the first time since the strike began all the finishing mills at Clairton were operating today. At one of these mills this morning forty men applied for work, thirty-three of whom were old men.

In the Allegheny Valley district traces of the strike are rapidly disappearing, although the American Sheet and Tin Plate plants in New Kensington still are considerably handicapped.

Newcastle Reported Normal.

Reports from Newcastle today said that the strike there was broken, all plants being operated up to capacity. Officials said tonight that a hopeful sign at the Newcastle plant was the fact that the men had begun to carry their dinner buckets again, and that the temporary dining room in the plant was closed today. At Sharon nearly all the plants are operating, although they are all more or less crippled.

Secretary W. Z. Foster of the National Committee said tonight that the situation in Pittsburgh was at a standstill, with neither side making any material gains.

"It is remarkable," he said, "what the steel magnates are getting away with, and I wonder how long the officers of the law are going to allow the mill owners to violate the law. I have here a letter from Henry Raisse, Secretary of the Cleveland district, who tells me that yesterday at Lorain, when the men attempted to hold a meeting, they were rushed by 800 gunmen imported from Pittsburgh, and that several of our leaders were arrested, blindfolded, and driven eighteen miles out in the country in automobiles, and then dumped out to find their way home as best they could. That is a sample of what we are up against in this district.

"It has been said that many more men would go to work were they guaranteed police protection. In answer to that I will say that many more men would be out today if we were allowed to lay our case before them, but the police won't let us."

The Follansbee interests of Pittsburgh, who now operate a large plant at Follansbee, W. Va., and who have acquired a site just south of Toronto, Ohio, will start construction work at an early date. The plans call for the erection of four forty-ton open-hearth steel furnaces, four side-door ingot furnaces, one 1,500-ton hydraulic press, and one 30-inch reversing bar mill, ten finishing mills, four fifty-inch sheet mills, four forty-four-inch sheet mills, and two forty-inch sheet mills. Each finishing mill will have one stand of roughing rolls, ten cold mills, and twelve double annealing furnaces.

MEN BACK IN YOUNGSTOWN.

3,000 Strikers Returned Yesterday, Although There Was Some Disorder.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Oct. 13.—After a day that began with disorder and fear of serious trouble, tonight, saw the Mahoning Valley quiet and the steel mills working on a larger scale than at any time since the strike began. It is estimated that 3,000 strikers returned to work in Youngstown today.

In Warren more than 3,000 workmen of the Trumbull Steel Company's 5,300 employees returned to work this morning and the rest will return as soon as the rest of the mill can be put into shape for operation.

It is estimated that 3,000 aliens have left Youngstown since the strike began, their places being taken, in part, by negroes from the South.

Considerable turbulence was reported throughout the valley this morning at the mills. Crowds of strikers about each plant stoned strikebreakers and many arrests were made.

At East Youngstown an engine struck a handcar filled with men on their way to work, killing one and seriously injuring two others.

PITTSBURGH STRIKERS BEAT UP ORGANIZER

Foreigners Turn on Brogan When He Tells Them They Will Not Get Strike Benefits.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—At Clairton tonight several Lithuanian strikers encountered P. P. Brogan, an official of the union, who gave evidence on Saturday before the Senate Committee in this city, and asked him when the strike benefits would be paid. He replied that they must go along without financial help until the authorities in Washington settle the strike, which he could not promise in less than a month. They then fell upon him and before he could be rescued from his assailants he was badly beaten up. He was rescued by friends, there being no police near at the time.

Trouble threatened early tonight at Homestead, when the State Constabulary interrupted a meeting of the iron and steel strikers while R. L. Hall, an American Federation of Labor organizer, was speaking. The police charged that Hall was using incendiary language, and ordered him to desist. He refused, and the police rushed the meeting and broke it up, with very little resistance on the part of the strikers.

HUNT MISSING BALLOONISTS

Eagle Boats to Search Huron for Capt. Dammann and Aid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Two Eagle boats stationed on the Great Lakes have been ordered by the Navy Department to go to Tobermory, Ontario, to search for Captain Harold Dammann, the army balloonist, and his aid, who have been missing for several days. Their balloon was found in Lake Huron some days ago, after they had started in the recent endurance race from St. Louis.

Officers of the Eagle boats have been instructed to search Lake Huron and to send parties ashore on various islands in the hope of finding the missing airmen. The action was taken in response to a request from C. J. Dammann of St. Louis, brother of Captain Dammann.

We Sell Dependable Merchandise at Prices Lower Than Any Other Store, but for Cash Only

Store hours 9 to 5:30

About 10 days ago a big department store in this city announced a sale of Boys' corduroy suits at $9.75.
We bought one of the suits.
It was made of corduroy, but such corduroy! There was one pair of unlined trousers and the coat was lined with cotton albert.
We sell regularly in our Boys' Section corduroy suits with two pairs of lined trousers at $9.74.
The coat is khaki lined.

Ours are quality suits, too and the corduroy in our better suits is of a quality which prompts the manufacturer to put his name on it. The coat is lined with fine quality Alpaca, trousers lined throughout. Price $9.74.

One day recently a department manager of another big department came into the Boys' section and asked for a suit and an overcoat for his son.

Both father and son pleased

A suit and an overcoat to please both father and son were quickly produced and the price tags more than pleased the father.
"You get a discount, I believe, in the store where you are employed," remarked our salesman.
"That's all right," was the reply. "I understand that. But I get my boy's clothing here just the same!"

The answer is plain

Now if a man who knows as much about the stock in his own store as one of the store's department managers must know prefers to spend his money at Macy's rather than in his own store, what's the answer for the general run of folks?
It's too easy to call for further explanation.
By the way, the store which advertised the corduroy suits at $9.75 also advertised boys' raincoats at $3.75 and referred to them as a rare bargain.
We sell the identical coats and our price has never gone above $3.49 — just regular merchandise.

PIERMEN VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

number of picturesquely phrased requests to "put O'Connor out." "Throw O'Connor out." "He's no good," and other observations of a similar nature.

It developed, however, that Riley merely sought a chance to introduce Benjamin Tillett, one of the general organizers of the Dock Workers' Union of Great Britain. Tillett outlined the history of the labor movement in England, declaring at one point that he never "feared capitalists in my life; the only thing I fear is my own class when it sometimes takes the 'bit in its teeth' and does some very radical things."

A raucous voiced chap, who announced that his name was "Mul" Kely, inserted his views very often while the British labor leader was trying to tell the meeting something. Riley was the pet target of "Mul," who informed the chairman that the meeting wanted "a real longshoreman in the chair," and not Riley.

"Oh"—(a volley of boos)—said Riley, "you fellows are hot under the collar." More boos and a scattering volley of howls. "No one could please you fellows in the frame of mind that you are in now."

Thomas Berry, of the Cargo Repairmen's Branch, arose to speak next, but the crowd was undecided on whom it was going to listen to next. So there came alternate calls for Barry and for "T. V." the initials being those of O'Connor.

O'Connor Howled Down.

"Put T. V. on," begged somebody, and O'Connor stepped to the edge of the platform. Bonnybrook never held a greater thunderclap than Cooper Union did right then and there. There was a bit of applause, to be sure, but there were prolonged jeers, wails, and howls. Then O'Conner sat down.

Speakers came and speakers went thereafter for two hours and a half, when O'Connor got his chance to face the men. He walked to the edge of the platform again. His face was squared with determination, his hands were clenched at his sides. Riley had told him to "stick to it," and O'Connor's fighting pose indicated that he was going to stand there, looking out at the members of his union who were jeering him until he got his chance.

"There is an element in here mixed up with the longshoremen," Mr. O'Connor began, "who are trying to destroy our organization. O'Connor should not be condemned without a hearing. Every man should have the opportunity to defend himself.

"I want to clear up that misunderstanding about the I. W. W. stuff, which has so infuriated you men. The report that I ever said you men were I. W. W.'s is a confounded lie. I did not make that statement. I want to say that it took good work three or four years ago to clear the organization of the I. W. W., and I do not believe they are again back in our organization, but they are on our waterfront.

"There is not a man in our organization in Brooklyn who will deny that on the morning of the strike, circulars were distributed all along the waterfront by the I. W. W. calling the men out. No one else called the men out. The strike has no official sanction and never will have any."

From several parts of the hall came statements doubting the existence of the circulars, whereupon Mr. O'Connor exhibited one.

I. W. W. Blamed for Strike.

Continuing his remarks, Mr. O'Connor reiterated that he had never at any time said that the men of the organization were I. W. W., but that the strike was the result of the work of members of the I. W. W. He asserted that the I. W. W. actually drove the members of the association from the piers in Brooklyn.

Mr. O'Connor then took up the decision of the National Adjustment Commission, in which the men were awarded 10 cents an hour instead of the $1 which they asked.

"I didn't give your word to the Government," he said. "I didn't give your word to the commission, but you gave it yourselves. When the National Adjustment Commission convened in the Produce Exchange Building the delegates pledged themselves to stand by the decision.

"We have proven our case and are entitled to more money. The award does not suit me and never did. Joseph Ryan and I voted against it. We finally got the consent of the Chairman to take the question up again on Dec. 1. I told Ryan that I had sooner go back to the men with the old scale than take that nickel which was given us.

"Your word has been given in a solemn pledge. What are you going to do with it? Break it?"

There were a few who yelled "Yes," but a great number who said "No," although subsequent action proved to the contrary.

"It is a fight for the life of your organization," continued Mr. O'Conner. "It is a question of whether your agreement is worth the paper on which it is written."

The result of the vote of Hoboken local was then announced, at the request of the delegate from that local, it being 133 in favor of a strike and 11 against.

"Here, gentlemen," said Mr. O'Connor, "are 144 votes in a local that has more than 1,000 members."

When Mr. O'Connor repeated that there had been no recognized strike, and would be none, the crowd began again to hurl epithets at him, and finally he had to quit talking.

The last speaker was Joseph Ryan, Vice President of the International Longshoremen's Association, who was the other Longshoremen's member of the National Adjustment Commission. He asserted that the association couldn't get anywhere by fighting among themselves. "We ought to unite and cooperate to fight the enemy," he said. He backed up the statements made by Mr. O'Connor relative to the award, and declared that he felt certain an increase would be given when the case is reopened on Dec. 1. Following his talk, the vote not to return to work was taken.

$10,000 to Investigate Seaboard.

Chairman William Z. Ripley of the National Adjustment Commission announced last night that the United States Shipping Board yesterday authorized the expenditure by the commission of $10,000 in a thorough investigation of the longshoreman situation on the Atlantic seaboard, with a view of ascertaining the true conditions existing between the men and their employers.

"The United States Shipping Board is the largest operator of ships today," Professor Ripley said, "and as such it should be a model employer. This commission must therefore administer the public funds in its charge with efficiency. The condition of employment on our waterfront has in the past been notoriously unsatisfactory. The work is irregular, and the absence of direct responsibility of any single employer for the welfare of the individual man is one of the phases of the proposed investigation.

The Harbor Boatmen's Union will hold a meeting tonight in their hall, 55 West Street. This union has not issued a formal strike order, but many of the men employed on railroad boats have joined the Railroad Port and Terminal Workers in the strike. F. Paul A. Vacarelli is business agent of this local, but he has not appeared active in the present situation. William L. Fink represented the Boatmen's Union at the conference with the railroad committee Sunday.

Gompers Rebukes Strikers.

The letter from Mr. Gompers in which he sided with the officials of the International Longshoremen's Association and held that the men were at fault in striking, follows:

Your telegram in which you state members of your organization are on strike against an award of the National Adjustment Commission received. The Executive Council in session in Washington considered this telegram and decided:

That it is not in the province of the Executive Council to inject itself into a strictly trade struggle between factions in a national or international union. The dispute should be solved by those who have the power to enforce its rules and decisions.

But on the question of adherence to contracts the American Federation of Labor has taken strong ground. In 1906 the convention declared unanimously:

We wish in the strongest language possible to express our regret that any organization of workingmen shall fail to rigidly adhere to a contract entered into with employers of its members, and we believe it essential to urge upon trade unionists the absolute necessity of holding contracts between them and their employers inviolate.

If the longshoremen agreed to abide by the award, they have by striking violated one of the fundamental principles of the American Federation of Labor. The agreement to abide by the award was a sacred contract to accept it. We therefore hope that through the laws of your International Union you will successfully induce the strikers to return to work not only for their own honor and best interests, but in the interests of the trade union movement.

This assurance from the American Federation of Labor greatly strengthened Mr. O'Conner's position, although he said that he never thought for a moment that he was wrong in maintaining that the men were morally bound to respect the award made.

Although the mass meeting was substituted for the referendum vote, first proposed, for an expression of the men on the proposition of returning to work, some of the locals sounded out their membership anyway. Local 968, in Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, was the first to make report to strike headquarters at 144 Eleventh Avenue. The 1,500 members of this council, more than a majority of whom are negroes, have voted to return to work. Richard Sherton, a negro, who was the delegate to the District Council meeting Sunday afternoon, was one of the most ardent supporters of President O'Conner and Chairman Riley in their efforts to have the men go back to work today.

The National Adjustment Commission, against whose award the longshoremen went on strike, was in executive session yesterday in the Produce Exchange Building deliberating on the demands of the checkers and weighers employed along the Atlantic seaboard.

It was said at the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal, Kent Avenue and North Ninth Street, which receives foodstuffs for the larger grocery firms in the neighborhood, that the strike has not interfered in the least with the regular delivery of goods to the grocery companies. But most of the piers along the Brooklyn waterfront, like those in Manhattan, are congested with freight. In Brooklyn most of the freight consists of hides, tin, and other non-perishable articles, with the exception of the Ward Line pier, at the foot of Montague Street, where a large quantity of potatoes is piled up. These will not rot, officials of the line said, and they expected to move them within a day or two.

Ferry Workers Continue Strike.

The settlement of the strike of firemen, oilers, deckhands, and porters on the railroad ferryboats, tugs, and lighters, which at one time Sunday appeared to be near at hand, was halted yesterday morning, when the Railroad Port and Terminal Workers, in session in Jersey City, voted unanimously to stay out until they got their demands for increased pay and a change in working conditions. One of the reasons for the strike, it is reported, is the laying off last Thursday of eleven crews of Lehigh Valley Railroad tugs. The strikers charge the men were laid off because they were union men, while the railroad gave as the reason that work was slack.

Joseph F. Stanton, business agent of the union, sent a telegram to Director General Hines in Washington, advising him of the action of his union and requesting a conference. Chairman Stone, of the Railroad Administration said after receiving notice of the decision of the strikers, from Mr. Goldenhorn that the Railroad Administration would stand pat on its demand that the men return to work before there will be any further negotiations. In his letter Mr. Goldenhorn wrote:

"The Railroad Port and Terminal Workers by a rising vote unanimously rejected your proposal that they return to work at once and they appoint a committee to adjust their wage scale and working conditions; they voted to remain out on strike until your committee meets their committee and adjusts the wage scale and their demands as to working conditions.

"I was also directed to answer your charge made against them of breaking the agreement of March 7, 1919, which you stated they agreed to or acquiesced in. You stated in your letter to me that the Port and Terminal Workers violated their agreement and were not acting in good faith in calling the strike. Their answer is that the men never agreed to your award of March 7, 1919, and that immediately after it was made they protested most vehemently and that ever since the 7th day of March, 1919, they have been trying to 'meet your committee and have a proper living wage granted to them. They further complain that after the making of the March 7 award your committee broke its agreement and didn't pay some of the men the raise in wages granted until July and that even up to this day some of the men have not received their increase in pay.

"The men complain most bitterly of being sent from one committee to the other and of their inability to receive a hearing of their just complaints.

"They cannot understand why your committee should not immediately sit down with them and settle their affairs once and for all. Their matter concerns the Port of New York, and they fail to find any reason for taking this matter up with any committee in Washington.

"I have been authorized to say that they will meet your committee at any time you appoint for the purpose of adjusting their demands as to wages and time and conditions of employment, but they will not return to work until this is done. They are tired of being sent from pillar to post in an endeavor to right the wrongs and grievances about which they justly complain."

Another Strike Averted.

Extension of the strike to private shipping was threatened at one time yesterday afternoon, when union leaders at the headquarters of the Marine Workers Affiliation at 26 Park Place learned that some of the privately owned tug boats had been engaged in towing the floating equipment of the railroads involved in the strike. A meeting was held at the call of Thomas L. Delahunty, President of the Marine Workers Affiliation, and orders were issued through pickets directing the crews of all independent tug boats, including captains, engineers, deck hands, and firemen, to tie up the crafts if the owners persisted in having them do work for the railroads. A tie-up of these tugs would have resulted, according to a railroad official, in a coal shortage, thus menacing the subways, elevated lines, and all public utilities. However, the owners of the tugs readily agreed, union officials said, not to handle any more railroad business until the strike was settled.

Walter B. Pollock, Marine Director of the Railroad Administration, said yesterday the six tug boats had been busy for the last four days hurrying coal from Perth Amboy, Port Reading and the other coal ports for the supply of public utilities.

Thousands of freight cars, many of them loaded with foodstuffs, are held up on the Jersey side of the river, pending settlement of the strike. A large number of these are on barges ready to be brought across the river as soon as the men go back to work.

Traffic across the Hudson River was easily handled yesterday, owing to the fact that it was a holiday, and the crowds were more evenly distributed than on a work-day. However, there was considerable delay to vehicular traffic at the piers of the Lackawana Railroad, which is operating the only ferry boats in down town Manhattan across the Hudson. Nearly every minute in the day the string of automobiles and other vehicles stretched out for several blocks in either direction from the piers at Twenty-third Street, Christopher and Barclay streets, from which eleven ferry boats were operated to Hoboken.

BOSTON PIERMEN STRIKE.

Six Hundred Men Quit, Although Council Voted Against It.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Although the Boston District Council of Longshoremen voted yesterday against a strike, about 600 union longshoremen struck today in the East Boston district. The walkout was in protest against the National Adjustment Commission's award of 5 cents and 10 cents an hour wage increase for different classes of work. The Boston longshoremen had asked for a flat rate of $1 an hour and $2 an hour for overtime.

A member of the District Council said tonight that he believed the strike would not last long. The men who struck number about one-third of the union longshoremen at this port.

CONDEMNS ALTOONA STRIKE

Director General Hines Warns Men of Harm They Are Doing Labor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Strikes of railroad employes such as that in the Altoona yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad were declared today by Director General Hines as "creating the basis for the argument that it is nonsense to deal with labor organizations because they will not obey their own rulers and, therefore, make the orderly handling of business impossible."

The statement by the Director General was made in a letter to B. M. Jewell, acting President of the railway employes of the American Federation of Labor, in regard to the Altoona strike. Mr. Hines reiterated that the railroad administration's policy was that no grievance of railroad employes could be considered while the workers involved remained on strike.

Emphasizing the seriousness of every stoppage of work at the present time when "the railroad administration is straining every nerve to serve the people of this country and the people of Europe," Mr. Hines requested that his warning message be transmitted to the strikers whose unauthorized strike, he declared, was injuring the cause of organized labor as well as the general public.

BROOKLYN LAUNDRIES SHUT

Strike of Workers for Recognition of Union Spreads.

The strike of laundry workers, which began in Manhattan a week ago, spread yesterday to laundries in Brooklyn. Strike leaders declared that there are now 50,000 workers on strike. This figure, the laundry owners say, is ridiculous, as there are not more than about half that number of laundry workers in the entire city. The laundry owners claim that not more than 50 per cent. of the workers at the outside have gone on strike. Practically all the hand laundries are closed in Manhattan, and union leaders say that many of the 140 steam laundries are closed and others are operating with small forces.

Inquiry at the larger steam laundries yesterday afternoon elicited the information that they were operating with 100 per cent. of their employes at work. They admitted, however, that they had been put to some annoyance and inconvenience on account of the labor agitation and asserted that many of their employes had been intimidated by the strike leaders.

The chief issue between the employers and the union is that of the closed shop, and negotiations have been broken off.

THREATEN TRACTION STRIKE

Workers for Manhattan & Queens Company to Vote Thursday.

Employes of the Manhattan Queens Traction Company, meeting in Woodside last night, decided to vote Thursday on the question of striking to enforce their demands for recognition of their union, Local 933 of the Amalgamated Association, a 15 per cent. increase in pay and ten hours daily work within a twelve-hour period. They also want the reinstatement of Frank Wendell, veteran motorman, discharged last week because of an accident. He has been an active union man.

The road carries about 15,000 persons daily between Jamaica and the Long Island end of the Queensboro Bridge. W. F. Dumas, manager for the receivers, was out of town last night. He recently said the men's wage demand would be granted out of a small surplus saved by the receivership through frugal management.

BUGBEE ANSWERS "DRYS."

Prohibition a Fact, No Longer an Issue, Says Candidate.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 13.—State Controller Bugbee, Republican candidate for Governor, toured Bergen County today, winding up this evening with addresses in Ridgewood and Rutherford. He answered a letter sent to him a few days ago by a body of ministers as to where he stands on prohibition.

"Prohibition is an accomplished fact," he said. "The Democratic Party apparently stands for nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Republican Party has promised to uphold the Constitution of the United States and of New Jersey.

"If every resident of New Jersey opposed prohibition, it would make no difference now. Forty-five States have ratified the amendment and it is a law. New Jersey officials will have nothing to do with enforcing the law. Federal officials will make the arrests and see that the law is upheld. This subject should not be injected into this campaign."

Referring to the Public Utilities Commission, which Senator Edwards, his opponent, has charged is "owned" by the Republican Party, Mr. Bugbee said:

"The commission has been a millstone about our necks, they having increased the assessments of the State and the car fares of the people."

Industrial Conference Committee Hopes to Settle Steel Strike Issue.

M. W. Alexander Says Granting of Labor Request Would Mean Demands from Others.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Committee of Fifteen made plans today to present to the Industrial Conference tomorrow a proposal by which it is hoped the steel strike may be settled. The plan, however, will not be the resolution introduced by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, offering to suspend the strike, pending arbitration by the conference and with the proviso that the Steel Corporation must take back to work the striking workers. Instead, another resolution, embodying certain compromises, will be introduced into the conference by a delegate and then referred to the Committee of Fifteen, which will later report it out. It was learned tonight that members of the Committee of Fifteen believe this substitute resolution will be satisfactory to the body of the conference.

The committee held two long sessions behind closed doors today and did not stop work until nearly 8 o'clock this evening. At that time, although it was evident that the committee had had a strenuous day, Thomas L. Chadbourne of New York, the Chairman, announced that no statement whatever as to the proceedings would be made. He said the committee had decided that it would be "discourteous" to the conference to make known in advance what had transpired. Other members of the committee were equally reticent. They would not even say whether or not any conclusion had been reached.

It was learned, however, from an authoritative source, that the sub-resolution would be introduced, and that the Gompers resolution was already considered as good as dead. While the labor group will support the Gompers resolution solidly, the capital group will oppose it. Even if the public group should vote with the labor group in favor of the Gompers resolution, this would be of no avail, for under the rules adopted by the Conference, the votes of the three groups must be unanimous before any result can be achieved. No two to one vote would mean anything.

The fact that the Committee of 15 will report the Gompers resolution to the floor of the Conference tomorrow does not signify that the committee sanctions it. No recommendation will be made in reporting it out and the Conference must decide the issue.

The nature of the compromise or concession implied or indicated in the substitute resolution to be offered could not be learned tonight. It was said, however, that certain of its features would appeal both to labor and to capital. It was learned that the representatives of the employers' group have made strong objections to the clause in the Gompers resolution which makes it conditional that if the strikers return to work the Steel Corporation must re-employ them.

There were predictions tonight that, in addition to the Gompers resolution, the Committee of Fifteen would also report out tomorrow for the action of the conference the resolution by A. A. Landon of Buffalo, putting into effect a ninety days' industrial truce, and the resolution by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., allowing employers and employes to make their own agreements in each instance. If these are reported out the course of the Committee of Fifteen will follow that which it has taken in the Gompers resolution—to allow the conference to make its own determination.

If, in addition to these resolutions, the platform of the labor group, including eleven demands, is presented, a lively debate will probably ensue. One of the prominent figures in the industrial work of the Administration during the war said tonight that he had learned collective bargaining, equal pay for women, and the eight-hour day would all be discussed tomorrow, when the resolutions were presented. Whether any or all of the resolutions are adopted or rejected, there will be opportunity for expression of views.

The substitute resolution relating to the steel strike will probably not come shape of an introduction. By the rules up tomorrow on the floor except in the of the conference, such a resolution must be introduced by a delegate, and its presentation to the conference then assented to by the group to which he belongs. The resolution would then be referred to the Committee of Fifteen, which would decide whether or not to report it out. This usually takes at least a day. It is possible that the committee may hold a short session at the lunch hour tomorrow and decide to report out the substitute, although this was not the plan tonight.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13, (Associated Press.)—The Central Committee of the Industrial Conference is reported to have made substantial progress at its session today in devising a method of procedure for "putting all the members of the conference to work." A number of subcommittees for consideration of specific problems, together with a policy for the assignment of resolutions to those committees, will be recommended to the conference tomorrow. Under this arrangement it appears probable that conflicting views on fundamental issues, such as the open shop, collective bargaining, and the eight-hour day will be thrashed out and a basis for agreement reached in these select committees.

Magnus W. Alexander, Managing Director of the National Industrial Conference Board, which has five representatives in the employers' group of the conference, tonight issued a statement opposing intervention by the conference in existing strikes and disputes.

"Obviously, a decision by the conference to arbitrate the steel strike," said Mr. Alexander's statement, "would invite consideration of all other important pending strikes and of any new controversies that may arise while the conference is in session. The strike of the longshoremen in New York Harbor, of the shop employes in the Altoona plant of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, of the Allied Printing Trades in New York City, would be entitled in the opinion of many people to equal consideration by the conference.

"A reading of the President's letter inviting delegates to the Industrial Conference does not indicate that he intended the conference to be an arbitration board, but that he expected the conferees to find a common ground of recommendations for the establishment of an employment relation that would in future permit American industry to operate successfully and to the benefit of all parties concerned.

"There are over 100 proposals by delegates and outsiders which have already been submitted to the conference. Surely at least those sponsored by any of the three groups of delegates must receive fair and comprehensive consideration, and this task alone will keep the conferees in session for a considerable time.

"The important issue before the conference, therefore, is to define its own powers and scope of work. When this is done the business of the conference will move smoothly, for it is our belief that the delegates are fully conscious of the vast interests involved and are impressed with the importance of reaching effective and just conclusions as speedily as possible."

STRIKERS RETURN IN CANTON.

Company Officials Estimate 2,000 More Reported for Work.

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Striking iron and steel workers began to return to work in the mills here this morning by the hundreds. About 2,000 went to work, company officials said.

C. A. Irwin, President of the Canton Sheet Steel Company, said that his plant was running 100 per cent., while the American Sheet and Tinplate Company was reported running about 80 per cent.

when the case was referred to the Wage Adjustment Board. Three weeks ago, an ultimatum was sent to Washington, threatening a strike if a decision were not forthcoming. Strikers in Brooklyn tried to "pull out" the clerical force at the depots, but with scant success.

The first spread of the strike outside its original confine came last night when Mr. Cowie reported that the express workers in Jersey City had quit. These men had worked all day, and even had had indicated they would not join the strikers.

Mr. Cowie's order of embargo, sent to every express office in the country, read:

"On account of strike of vehicle and platform men in New York City, you will immediately embargo all business of every name and nature for Greater New York."

Governor Wires to Hines.

"I am not in a position to say whether we shall fight the strike," said Mr. Cowie, "but we will make every effort to preserve food products. There is a great deal of perishable foodstuffs at the depots now, and unless the strike ends soon, much of it will be lost. We will return as much of it as possible to the shippers. The rest we will have to destroy because of the rules of the Board of Health."

The text of Governor Smith's appeal to Director Hines, a copy of which was supplied by Mrs. Helen Moskowitz, Secretary of the Reconstruction Commission, follows:

"With your letter and the aid of loyal union officials, have attempted, without success, to avert strike on the American Railway Express. Tie-up is complete. Men say they want decision, not promise. Can decision be made immediately? Please inform me."

At the strikers' headquarters, Washington Hall, 761 Eighth Avenue, it was said that Michael J. Cashel, President of the local, had gone to Washington to confer with the Wage Adjustment Board. Martin Lacey, Secretary of the local, assumed direction of the strike.

CRITICS PRAISE PALESTRINA

New Berlin Opera by Pfitzner Considered a Masterpiece.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (Via Copenhagen.) The production of Pfitzner's "Palestrina" at the former Royal State Opera has been a great success, the newspapers praising alike the music, the singers, and the stage management.

The music is generally regarded as the "last word" of the composer, who is perhaps considered the greatest living exponent of the German musical idea, while the book is called a masterpiece of true poetry. Some critics express the opinion that "Palestrina" stands for Pfitzner himself. There is only one female part, the ghost of Palestrina's deceased wife.

Despite quadrupled prices, the house was crowded to the utmost. One box was occupied by President Ebert, who was surrounded by men in public life.

30 DEAD IN SICILIAN RISING.

Bands of Armed Peasants Roaming in Rural Districts.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Newspaper dispatches from Rome state that about thirty persons have been killed in encounters between armed peasants and troops in Sicily. There were many wounded.

The unrest among the peasants is increasing and bands of armed peasants are roaming throughout the rural districts.

A Rome dispatch dated Oct. 10 announced the revolt of 4,000 peasants against the military in Caltanisetta, the central province of the island, where the historic sulphur mines are. The dispatch stated that the cause of the revolt was the attempt of the Sicilians to gain possession of the land, and that they had succeeded in driving the troops out of Riesi, a town of 15,000 inhabitants, fourteen miles south of the town of Caltanisetta, and near the mines.

Riesi was the destination of Lieutenant Petrosino of the New York Police, who was sent to Italy to establish the identity of certain members of the Mafia, then in America, and he was about to start for that place when he was assassinated in the Piazza Marina in Palermo one evening ten years ago last March.

Sicilians have always resented the presence of troops among them, but since the armistice it has been found necessary to use them for police work on the island, replacing the favorite Carabinieri or force of State Police locally recruited and officered, who were needed elsewhere.

A Sale---For Men Who Want High Class Clothes
$35 $40 $45

Men's and Young Men's Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats

A sale designed for Men who want the same high-grade clothing they have always worn at the same prices they have always paid.

This Season's Styles

869 Suits, 321 Overcoats	$35.00
734 Suits	$40.00
821 Suits, 619 Overcoats	$45.00

Clothing of this quality is unusual these days at these prices. Gimbel merchandising has kept our clothing at practically the same price level as about a year ago—and this sale has been arranged to defeat definitely the impression that one must pay $100 or so for a first-rate suit or overcoat.

A Plain Statement of Facts

Gimbels are offering tremendous values these days—and the explanation is as simple as A-B-V.

You've read that the cost of making good clothes is rising daily—and that there's an actual scarcity of clothing on retailers' shelves. The retailers, when compelled to fill in stock, have to pay these rising prices.

Contrast with this the position of Gimbels. Gimbels have on hand a men's clothing stock of close to a million dollars—the largest stock in their history—and this stock was ordered by Gimbels at long-ago prices.

As a result, Gimbels are selling clothes for less than retailers can buy them.

We advise early purchasing. The assortment on sale is big enough and varied enough to suit any man, but we cannot say how long this assortment will last at prices as low as these.

Which by the French Origin Of a Collar, Cuff or Pocket, Flaunt Their Smartness

AFTER Paris has threaded her last dexterous stitch into a suit and sent it on its way across the Atlantic, her work is not finished, for its influence upon fashion has just begun. A supreme test of the skill of French fashion design may be realized when one sees the extent to which has served to influence the Misses' Suits in Franklin Simon & Co.'s Winter collection.

At times the whole coat of a suit may be French, again just a cuff is borrowed from the Paris model. It may be the clever flare of a short coat, the swing of a shorter skirt, the slenderness of a "shoestring" belt, the tucking of an outstanding pocket. The reason for the French suit's originality becomes the secret of the American suit's smartness.

REDS CALL GARY STRIKERS TO RISE

Bring Instruments of "Murder."

"The orders went forth. Soon the long line of truckloads of regular soldiers were on their way to Gary. The men who, the workers had been told a short year ago, were fighting their battle for democracy upon the bloodstained fields of Europe, and whom they had been urged to support by giving the last of their strength to the work of production, these men were coming to teach them 'democracy,' and with them came their instruments of murder, their automatic rifles, their machine guns, the cannon that could clear a street two miles long in a few minutes, and the helmets that the workers of Gary had produced. Gary was to be shown how the Czar and Kaiser treated rebellious workingmen.

"The National Government, the capitalist State, had stepped in.

"The Steel Trust was in danger of being beaten. It might have to submit before the power of the workers. To save itself it brought into the field the instrument forged by the capitalists to uphold their system of exploitation and oppression, the State, which in spite of all its democratic pretentions is but the physical expression of the dictatorship of the capitalist class.

"Workingmen of the United States, the capitalists are challenging you. They are demonstrating before your very eyes that the governmental power is theirs, for use against you when you dare strike against the enslavement which they force upon you.

"The homes of the workingmen of Gary are being raided, their meetings forbidden, their literature confiscated by the military regime which controls Gary. Martial law is supreme. The instruments to destroy the lives of the workers are ready.

Urges Strikers to Overthrow State.

"Are you, workingmen of this country, going to submit meekly to the use of military invasion and force to break your strikes? Shall the iron heel rule unchallenged?

"This is the hour to rouse the workers.

"Gather in great mass meetings. Bring to the attention of the unenlightened workers the meaning of martial law in Gary. Show them that it is not enough to strike against low wages and bad working conditions, but that the strike must be directed against capitalism.

"The workers must capture the power of the State. They must wrest from the capitalists the means through which the capitalist rule is maintained.

"The answer to the dictatorship of the capitalists is the dictatorship of the workers."

While Gary is under "military control," the army authorities have the power to at any time suspend the courts, and it has been officially intimated a military court may be established as soon as found necessary. A "firing line" has been referred to and it is possible the author of the communist proclamation, if found, would be the first to face it.

Mayor Is Threatened.

Colonel Mapes also read parts of an anonymous communication received by Mayor Hodges which warned the Mayor that a band was being organized to kill him as soon as the troops left the city and that it would march on the mills and kill the workers.

Many of the alleged members of the "Red Brotherhood" captured in recent raids by Federal operatives and soldiers in Gary, and who, according to General Leonard Wood, are held for deportation, plan a legal fight to remain in the United States. Paul Glazer, the union's counsel in Gary, and one of the men taken into custody and later released, heads the plan.

Despite the efforts by union leaders to keep the strikers in line, four plants in the Chicago district resumed operation today, and the usual Monday morning increase in workers was reported throughout the steel zone. At the Wisconsin Steel Company's plant at South Chicago 600 out of a normal force of 1,800 were said to be at work, and officials asserted the rest would return tomorrow. Two hundred out of 400 men reported for work at the interstate Iron and Steel Company's plant. The Mark Manufacturing Company's plant at Evanston also resumed operation.

The Steel Corporation's Gary plant announced tonight that 50 per cent. production had been reached. Ten days ago, when the return of men to the mills increased the force to half the normal number, the output of steel was limited, but department heads have carried out a successful program of reorganization, and with the return today of approximately 500 additional men the mills began production on a large scale.

MASON TO LEAVE PRISON.

"Big Bill," Sentenced Often for Burglary, Gets Commutation.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Oct. 13.—A commutation of sentence arrived at Sing Sing today for "Big Bill" Mason, notorious burglar and dean of the craft, who has been in the prison on and off over a period of thirty years. Mason at one time was rated as one of the most dangerous criminals in America. Governor Smith took several months off the sentence of Mason, now nearing 75 years of age, who of late years has been a model prisoner. He will be out in a few days.

On one occasion Mason and the late Inspector McCloskey of the New York police fought a duel in the West Shore ferryhouse and McCloskey captured the robber after one of the latter's fingers was shot off. On another occasion, after Mason had made a big haul of jewelry and silverware from the country home of Ogden Bradley at Dobbs Ferry, he ran afoul of Policeman William Carroll of Yonkers. Mason shot Carroll's helmet off, but the policeman fired away at the burglar until he caught him.

Mason's last "job" was a robbery in Port Chester four years ago. When arrested he was arraigned before Judge Edward V. Brophy, afterward appointed Warden of Sing Sing.

SOCIAL UNIT PLAN INDORSED

Speaker Urges National Organization Based on Cincinnati Experiment

At a dinner of the Social Union Organization at the Woman's University Club last evening there was a discussion on the result of the experimental organization of a community on the social unit plan, which has been tried in Cincinnati during the last three years, and which was universally voted to be a success.

Mrs. Charles Tiffany presided. Wilbur C. Phillips said that there was a new social order looming on the horizon, and asked if it was to come in a revolution or in a normal, sane way, in a constructive idea of democracy, or in a destructive idea. He said that the experience in Cincinnati was a success, and he proposed a national organization.

The men who have studied the demonstration in the Mohawk-Brighton district of Cincinnati, Mr. Phillips said, believed that the results justified the extension of the plan to an entire city which would be a laboratory for the nation to work out a model community plan, and proposed that a plan-forming body be organized, made up from all classes of workers to study the subject each from his own angle, to form the faculty of a high school in community organization, whose findings would be at the disposal of every community in the United States.

Edward T. Devine said that such a community as that in Cincinnati was the one thing capable of lining up Jews, Catholics, and Protestant clergymen. A letter read from John W. Walker, ex-President of the Illinois Federation of Labor, said that the writer went to Cincinnati prejudiced against the idea as he was "against welfare charity and paternalism," but that he had seen that the social unit experiment had brought people together, eliminated race and other prejudices; that "it was a source of better things for all the people, second only to the organization of labor itself."

Other speakers were Robert E. Chaddock, head of the statistical department of Columbia; Ella Phillips Crandall, head of the National Organization of Public Health Nursing; former Health Commissioner Haven Emerson, George Foster Peabody, John Lovejoy Elliott, John Collier, and the Rev. Charles Stelzle. Among those at the dinner were Mrs. Willard Straight, Albert J. Milbank, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Henry Ollesheimer, Mrs. Walter E. Sachs, and Mrs. Alexander Cohut.

CUT BERLIN THEATRE LIGHTS

Plays with Simple Effects Are Required Under Restrictions.

BERLIN, Sept. 2, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—The theatres in Berlin, especially the more pretentious ones, are planning to cut down their programs and revive their schedules, so that plays with only simple lighting effects are required as the result of the light restrictions for the coming Winter.

The opera is beginning to comply with the order by starting Carmen at 6 o'clock. The German Theatre voices the sentiment of all big houses by saying it will be necessary to abandon plays with big scenery and special lighting effects. The classic and artistic plays will probably vanish for a time.

The opera director has not yet made a statement as to how seriously the light restrictions will hamper the performance, but it is expected that it will be necessary to omit important parts of the plays. The Lessing Theatre announces that it will be impossible to present its plays, according to the artistic viewpoint.

The hotels will feel the restriction most after the theatres, because guests cannot have light to dine as usual.

Harvard Fund About $6,000,000.

The Harvard Endowment Fund Committee announced last night that it had $9,000,000 more to raise in its campaign for $15,250,000. In the first two weeks about $6,000,000 has been collected. Recent subscribers, all of this city, are James* Byrnes, $150,000; Howard J. Fachs, $5,000, and William B. Nichols, $1,000.

FARMERS PLAN STORES.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 12.—The farmers in Broome County believe they have solved the problem of reducing the cost of living by the establishment of farmers' co-operative stores, where goods will be handled at cost. A company now is being organized in the town of Lisle, in this county, with a capital stock of $20,000 to finance such a store. The stock is sold at $100 per share.

Options have been secured on the Dudley Hotel, a large centrally located building, to be remodeled into a department store, which will contain a rest and restaurant. If successful, similar stores will be started in various parts of the county.

MANDAN, N. D., Oct. 13.—Stricken with paralysis, Albert Brooks, aged 72, called the State's Attorney to his bedside today and confessed he had killed his wife in Columbus, Ohio, twenty-five years ago.

According to the story told the State's Attorney, Brooks struck his wife across the breast with an iron bar during a quarrel. He fled to San Francisco, and has been traveling over the country since, coming to Mandan about eight months ago. Doctors hold out no hope for his recovery.

SAVE LIVES IN CAPITAL FIRE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Several persons, including women clerks, were rescued by firemen today from the American Forestry Association's building on H Street near Fourteenth Street, which was damaged by flames.

One woman was overcome by smoke and the records of the association were damaged by fire and water.

Favor Delay in Trust Law Operation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Favorable report was ordered today by the Senate Judiciary Committee on the resolution of Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, postponing until July 1, 1920, operation of the provision of the Clayton anti-trust law, prohibiting common carriers from purchasing from or dealing with corporations which have interlocking directors.

Defeated by Death—

As emphasizing a fundamental fault in appointing individuals only as executors or trustees, the following facts should be of interest as well as of value to those who give a proper consideration to the manner in which their estates shall be handled after death.

A wealthy woman who died had appointed in her will as executors three men of high standing.

Her estate was valued at more than $5,000,000.

This left but one remaining executor.

It was found that the will of the lady in question made no provision whatever for the appointment of successor executors.

Her wishes were defeated.

It is clearly desirable to appoint as executor or co-executor a national bank of high repute and thus make impossible, through the death of an individual executor, the defeat or alteration of your careful planning.

We are qualified to act as executor or co-executor and cordially invite your consideration.

Asks If Our Government Should Commit Suicide to Benefit Industrial Organization.

ATTACKS STEEL STRIKERS

Compares Foster and Fitzpatrick to the Junkers Who Started the War—Favors Profit Sharing.

Speaking last night at the opening meeting of the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University at the Horace Mann Auditorium, Broadway and 120th Street, on "The Real Labor Problem," Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, declared that the people of the United States were at a most crucial point in their history and were called upon to decide whether they would sacrifice the Constitution and their present form of government so that labor might be made more content, or whether they would so organize and administer the nation's industries as to confine the progress of labor within the well-tested principles and ideals of political democracy on which the government of this country was founded.

"The real labor problem, as it now presents itself to the people of the United States," Dr. Butler said, "is, Can the nation's industries be so organized as to bring to the service of industry the well-tested principles of political democracy, without overturning the foundations of the Republic and without destroying the only guarantees on which order, liberty, and progress can possibly rest? Must the American form of government commit suicide in order to give to industry better and more satisfactory organization?"

Condemns Steel Strike Chiefs.

Referring to the steel strike, Dr. Butler said:

"The history of the beginnings of the steel strike reads strangely like the beginnings of the European war. The ultimatums of Mr. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Foster might well have been written by Count Berchtold, Chancellor Bethmann Hollweg, or Minister von Jagow. The published statements of these gentlemen are alike in that they make no appeal whatsoever to right and justice, but simply give notice of peremptory demands and announce that when a fixed limit of time expires force will be used to support the demands. Yet few people realize that the demands and ultimatums of Mr. Foster and Mr. Fitzpatrick are just as much contrary to our political principles as those of the Ministers of the Central Powers."

Speaking of the way in which the labor problem must be solved, Dr. Butler dwelt upon the importance of production, and continued:

"When this point has been made clear and industry is viewed as a co-operative enterprise in production, then it follows that those who work with their hands, like those who work with their brains and those who work with their savings, are entitled to take part in the organization and direction of the industry and to have a voice in determining the conditions under which their co-operation shall be given and continued."

Advocates Profit Sharing.

Referring to profit sharing, Dr. Butler said:

"Reasonableness indicates that this profit should not go to one group alone of the three who co-operate in production, but should be apportioned between all three groups in accordance with a plan drawn to meet the facts of a given industry. If, on the other hand, there be a loss instead of a profit, or a deficiency in the amount needed to meet all of the items ust stated, the amount of that deficiency is met, as matters now stand, by those who work with their savings alone. There is merit in the suggestion that a given industry should in years of prosperity establish an undistributed reserve fund against which should be charged any losses that might subsequently be incurred.

"If, however, we are not to use or are not to be permitted to use the methods of reasonableness in dealing with these problems, then we must be prepared for the use of force. This alternative is shocking. It would mean nothing less than the substitution of anarchy for order, of physical power for justice, and of a perpetual struggle between changing and conflicting interests for the calm and temperate discussion of principles.

"The strike is at best not a method of reasonableness but a weapon of industrial war, and it ought in time to become obsolete with the submarine and the Big Bertha. It will become obsolete when the men come more clearly to understand what industrial co-operation really involves, on what basis it rests, and how entirely at one are the interests in production of every co-operating agency in any industry.

Rule of the Minority.

"Recently the startling doctrine has been taught and practised that the strike may be used to enforce the views and wishes of a small minority of the population in matters relating not only to public transportation and to other public utilities, but to political and public acts of every sort. The Government of the United States may deem it necessary to send troops and to ship munitions to Siberia, but under this doctrine stevedores and longshoremen at the ports of San Francisco and of Seattle would be entirely justified in refusing to load or to permit to be loaded the vessels which were to carry such troops and munitions in case they as individuals should happen to disapprove of the Government's policy in this regard.

"Still others might say that they would refuse to assist in operating the railways of the United States, and would unite to prevent their being operated by others, unless a certain designated public policy in regard to railway ownership and operation were quickly adopted.

"It must be apparent from these illustrations that without complete loyalty to the democratic principle, without respect for law, without sincere devotion to American ideals of government, and without good will on the part of all elements and groups of society, the economic and political life of the nation can no longer go forward, and that we are in imminent danger of national shipwreck and of incalculable disaster."

Dr. Butler denounced the police strike in Boston and added:

"A strike by a public servant is a direct assault on the whole community and is nothing less than only a mild form of treason; and it may not always be mild.

"To solve the real labor problem, then, we must think straight and clear regarding facts of industry and think straight and clear regarding principles of political organization. Moreover, we must shun and take active steps to limit the influence of those who foment unrest and organize industrial war and who thrive upon this process. These are public enemies and the hand workers' meanest friends. From the very active company of those who would not hesitate to tear down or to overthrow the Government of the United States in order to attain their immediate personal or group ends, there has not come a single suggestion which does not spell destruction. Not one of those who claim to represent these movements and tendencies has proposed to build up anything. They are all bent upon destruction in the wild hope that after their joy in tearing down has had full satisfaction, somewhere and somehow personal advantage may accrue to them. In the process they would not hesitate to destroy America."

Military Mass at New Brighton.

More than 2,500 persons attended a military mass at Curtis Field, New Brighton, yesterday in memory of the Staten Island soldiers who died in the world war. The Right Rev. Mgr. Charles A. Cassidy, rector of St. Peter's Church, New Brighton, celebrated the mass. The sermon was preached by Mgr. John T. Chidwick, of Dunwoodie. N. Y. A battalion of regulars from Fort Wadsworth, returned soldiers from overseas, civic and religious societies, escorted by the Knights of Columbus, marched from the church to the field.

Roosevelt Flag Gaining Stars.

Announcement was made from the headquarters of the Roosevelt Memorial Association last night that the Roosevelt flag, which is being carried in this state from city to city, where additional stars are sewn on, will arrive in Bronx County next Tuesday. After the flag receives forty-eight stars representing cities and counties, it will be placed on Col. Roosevelt's grave.

Presents New Soldiers' Relief Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A special committee representing each section of the country would be appointed to draft a soldiers' relief bill, under a resolution introduced today by Representative Ferris, Democrat, Oklahoma. He said the Mondell Soldier land bill, which has the approval of the Interior Department, was neither acceptable to Congress nor to discharged soldiers.

TROOPS AID BREST WORKERS

Enable More to Enter Arsenal—Situation Is Still Serious.

BREST, Oct. 13.—The situation here created by the strikes of the arsenal employes, which increased in gravity yesterday and took a decided revolutionary turn, remained serious today. A strong force of troops, however, was guarding all the gates of the arsenal this morning, enabling the nonstrikers among the workmen to enter the works in larger numbers.

During Sunday there were frequent collisions between the strikers and the forces of police and troops, columns of strikers marching about singing revolutionary songs and throwing stones at the police and the cavalry. On one occasion the cavalry charged the stone-throwers.

Business was almost at a standstill today. Not a store was open and the streets were deserted, except for the strikers.

50 PUPILS OUT ON "STRIKE."

Summit High School Students Form Parade for a Holiday.

SUMMIT, N. J., Oct. 13.—Fifty pupils of the 300 boys and girls who attend the Summit High School "walk out" today on a holiday strike. The strikers formed for a parade at the school at the time of its opening and marched through the streets of the town, singing and cheering.

Superintendent of Schools Sprague treated the strike lightly and said that the most serious result would be to give the pupils who failed to appear an absent mark, the same as on any other day they failed to report.

ITALIAN ATTACKS WILSON.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—Hisses met the mention of the name of President Wilson, Mrs. Wilson was criticised for accompanying her husband on his trips, and the nation's Chief Executive was styled as the "self-appointed leader of the people" in going to Europe to attend the Peace Conference, at a meeting of Italians in Ford Hall today.

The Italians assembled to commemorate the name of Christopher Columbus and to protest against the attitude of the representative of the United States Government at the Peace Conference on the Fiume question. Three thousand dollars was subscribed for d'Annunzio's army.

Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, a Boston lawyer, made the attacks.

SPAIN HONORS COLUMBUS.

Spanish-Americans Join in Madrid Celebration of Discovery.

MADRID, Oct. 13.—The anniversary of the discovery of America was celebrated here and throughout the provinces yesterday.

King Alfonso, the members of the Government and the representatives here of all the Spanish-American countries attended the celebrations in the Capital. Speeches were delivered by the Ministers of Cuba and Panama advocating close relations between Spain and the Spanish-American nations.

The Minister of the Interior announced on behalf of the Government that an official celebration of the 400th anniversary of the voyage of Magellan to the New World would take the form of an exposition at Seville in 1920, and that also a Spanish-American Congress would be held to which representatives of all Spanish-American countries would be invited. Lengthy articles are printed by this morning's newspapers in support of this plan.

Gas Kills Auditor.

Allan H. Cameron, an auditor, 31 years old, of 102 West Ninety-second Street, was found dead last night with a gas tube in his mouth in the apartment of Alfred Avard, adjoining that of his own family. The Camerons had taken care of the Avard apartment in the absence of the family.

New York Housewives---Attention!

To lower living costs
Is the problem
Bothering every one.
Some have tried
To cut living costs
By serving
Smaller portions
But found that this
Was stealing
From the grocer
To give to the doctor.

So we Boosters
For better things
Have decided to give
To the good housewives
Of New York
A recipe we discovered
For saving money
On the table
And Improving health
In the bargain.

We have noticed the
Delicious, juicy red
Jonathan Apples
Now so plentiful
From Washington,
Oregon and Idaho,
And we have figured out
The cost of Fresh apples,
Baked apples
And apples in other ways
Served as desserts
Compared with the cost
Of other desserts
Of equal or less
Food value.

You'll be surprised
To know
That we found
That dozens of Delicious apple desserts
Could be made
At a cost
Of a third to a half
Less than other
Very commonly used
Less palatable desserts
From Washington
Oregon and Idaho
Were bought by the box.

These Western apples
Are so carefully inspected
Before they're packed
That there is seldom
A bad one found
In a whole box,
So ALL of every apple
Can be used
And there's no waste.
And, of course,
The price per apple
Is very much less
When bought by the box
Than when purchased
In small quantities.

Then we figured out
The comparative
Food values
And were further
Surprised to find
That one of these apples
Equalled the food value
Of one lamb chop,
Or two slices of bread,
Or one egg.

In addition,
We also found
That apples
Contain lime salts,
And iron, and sulphur
And magnesia
And many other minerals
Essential to health.

There's a lot of truth
In the old saying
That "An apple a day Keeps the doctor away."

So we're now wondering
Why more people
Have not before
Realized these qualities
And decreased living costs
And improved health.

HAYS URGES JERSEY REPUBLICANS TO WIN

OUTLINES PARTY POLICY

Federal Budget Plan Indorsed—Government Regulation Advocated, but Federal Ownership Opposed.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee has sent a letter to Republican State Chairman Edward C. Stokes, of New Jersey, in which he urges that a heroic effort be put forth in the election this Fall by New Jersey Republicans to roll up a tremendous majority, for the effect this will have throughout the country in the Presidential election next year. New Jersey is one of the few States where the election this year will be of importance, a Governor being elected.

"Let the Republican victory in your State be so overwhelming, with a majority so tremendous, that from New Jersey will go out a voice reassuring the nation in most emphatic terms that the Republican Party is moving unfalteringly into that complete control which the people want and which the country needs so much," wrote Mr. Hays.

Mr. Hays went on to express the opinion that such a message would be one of reassurance to the entire country and to all classes, including labor, business, the farmer and the soldier. The Republican Party, Chairman Hays stated, would "measure its future steps fogward by the new needs of the nation, with absolute justice for all."

"Under this wise guidance," wrote Mr. Hays, "the labor of the country is eneitled to and will receive fair representation in all the councils of the nation. We will have just remedial legislation for the betterment of this important group of the population at all times, not only because it is their due, but because by justice always we can prevent the insidious influence of the criminal elements of the I. W. W. from taking hold in the ranks of real labor.

"In the great readjustment ahead, business must have sympathetic help, not antagonistic curtailment. It must be treated with an appreciation of its fundamental importance, and not as a demagogue's shuttlecock. And by the proper care and our protective tariff we will see that we retain in the country those new industries which have become ours.

"There is a time not far distant when our heel must be in the ground. Law and order shall reign in this country. With a vision of this country's mission and with the highest sense of justice for all men, Republicans will keep their eyes always ahead, but will keep their feet always on solid ground."

Discussing Federal ownership Mr. Hays wrote:

"The Republican Party from its inception has stood against Federalization of industries and activities. There must be strong Federal regulation, but not Federal ownership. We have always endeavored, and still shall endeavor, to find the middle ground so well defined between 'the anarchy of unregulated individualism and the deadening formalism of inefficient and widespread State ownership.' We are against paternalism in government, and we are against that form of pedagogic paternalism that has developed recently in this country. We are against autocracy as vigorously and unalterably as we are against anarchy. Bolshevism and Kaiserism are equally dangerous in industry as in government. We are against both."

Mr. Hays wrote that he had been informed that the last Congress appropriated more money than all the Congresses that have preceded it did in the aggregate, and pledged the party to the enactment of a law providing for a national budget system to check waste. He also pledged the enactment of laws for the development of trade, improvement in the diplomatic service, and solution of the shipping problem in a manner that would make sure to the United States a merchant marine adequate to meet the development of world trade.

Although yesterday was a holiday, Mr. Hays spent most of the day at his headquarters of the National Committee in the Knox Building, at Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue. He had conferences there with a number of National Committeemen, including Fred W. Estabrook of New Hampshire, Governor Stanley of Kansas, J. J. McGraw of Oklahoma, Jacob L. Babler of Missouri, J. Sweet of Maine, and George W. Bean of Florida. All, it was said at headquarters, brought reports indicating activity and enthusiasm among the Republicans of their respective States in connection with preparations for the fight next year.

WORK FOR MISS REMBAUGH.

Women Canvassers Say Italians Will Not Support Tammany.

It has taken a woman candidate for Municipal Court Justice to turn the Italian women of the city into politicians. Campaign workers for Bertha Rembaugh, running for that office in the First District, Manhattan, spent the holiday yesterday in canvassing among the Italians and found they said, old-time Tammany strongholds standing for the Republican ticket and Miss Rembaugh.

One woman said: "I have nine sons and I am going to bring them all up to vote for women."

This was on Crosby Streets, and one of the Italian men living there told the women:

"We are tired of Tammany and we are going to vote the Republican ticket this year." They did not say whether their interest in an Italian running for President of the Board of Aldermen had anything to do with this change of heart.

The interest of the Italian women in politics is a great change from the days when the suffragists worked in this part of the city, where they found the Italian women the most lukewarm of all nationalities, to any consideration of city or national politics.

A series of dinners has been announced by the campaign workers for the coming month in the interest of Miss Rembaugh for the women of the different nationalities among the many to be found in the First District.

Mrs. Leslie J. Tompkins is Chairman of Miss Rembaugh's canvassers. There are four lawyers, Miss Florence Brunning, Mrs. Helen Potter Hanson, Miss Mary Potter, and Miss Helen Barnes. Miss Brinckley is a social worker; Mrs. Joseph Griswold Dean was prominent in suffrage days, and other one-time suffrage workers are Miss Ethel Stebbins, Miss Clara E. King and Miss Elinor Garrison.

COLBY PREDICTS VICTORY.

Many Callers at Headquarters of Newburger-Smith Committee.

Bainbridge Colby took personal charge yesterday at the recently opened campaign headquarters in the Hotel Wallick of the Independent Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee, created to effect the re-election of Justices Joseph E. Newburger of the Supreme Court and Richard H. Smith of the City Court, who were sidetracked by Tammany leader Murphy when they sought renomination. Mr. Colby was busy all day receiving delegations assuring him of their support in the Newburger-Smith campaign. A large number of Mr. Colby's callers were from the Bronx.

"I am satisfied that we are in a fight for winning candidates and a winning cause," said Mr. Colby before he left headquarters.

Mr. Colby said an active campaign was being planned and that a number of former Justices of the Supreme Court and even higher tribunals would take the stump for Justices Newburger and Smith. The big meeting of the campaign will be held at Carnegie Hall. Mr. Colby said the date and speakers would be announced today or Wednesday.

"THE Car of the Future will be a LIGHT-WEIGHT car!"

And now from France comes the economy record of the Paris taxi-cab:

"Twenty and four-tenths miles per gallon when operating in city traffic; twenty-three miles per gallon when running in the open country!"

Facts, not theories! Averages, not exceptions! Averages based on the performance of three thousand cars all covering eighty to ninety miles a day at an average fuel consumption rate of four gallons a car!

WHY?

Why should a taxi-cab operating under the unfavorable conditions of city driving show a better performance record than the average American passenger car running under the fuel-economizing conditions of the long haul?

LIGHT WEIGHT—that is the answer.

The Paris taxi-cab is stripped of excess weight. It does not carry more weight than is necessary to good performance. It depends for its riding qualities upon balance, proportion and spring suspension—factors of roadability that exact no exorbitant toll of fuel, oil and tires.

And Paris taxi rates are far less than ours, notwithstanding the fact that fuel costs 100% more there than here—conclusive evidence of the economy of light weight.

France already has a four-passenger touring car weighing only 1,100 pounds and giving more than thirty miles to the gallon.

Excess weight—at least five million tons of it are hauled daily by American motor cars and trucks at the expense of the American gasoline supply, American pocket-books and American motor car development.

Excess weight is rolling up a total of two hundred and seventy-five million dollars annually against American motor car owners in unnecessary gasoline expense.

Excess weight is causing a needless drain of more than a billion gallons annually on the American gasoline supply, already insufficient.

But the car of NO excess weight—the car of less than a thousand pounds—the car that will average thirty to forty miles a gallon of fuel—at least twenty thousand miles a set of tires—THAT CAR WILL COME!

You to whom a gallon of fuel means only fifteen miles or less—you will want the car that exacts a fair return for your gasoline expense.

You who know the pounding, mauling, grinding of excess weight on tires—you will want the car that uses tires as cushions, not as mill stones. You want economy—not expense.

So, while France says to America, "The Car of the Future will be a LIGHT-WEIGHT Car," America, ready to give to the world a car that will make France's economy record seem like a table of wastefulness, echoes: "THE Car of the Future will be a LIGHT-WEIGHT Car!!"

CLERGYMAN OFFERED TO GO

Declines to Comment Further on His Remarks to His Congregation on Sunday.

The Executive Council of the Free Synagogue will meet tomorrow to take up the situation arising out of the difference of opinion between the views of Dr. Stephen S. Wise and some members of his congregation who deplore Rabbi Wise's recent attacks on E. H. Gary for his attitude in the steel strike. The meeting will take place at the Free Synagogue House, 36 West Sixty-eighth Street. Abraham I. Elkus, President of the Executive Council, will preside.

Dr. Wise announced last Sunday that if any considerable number of the members of his congregation indicated that it would be better for him to relinquish his pulpit he would do so. The rabbi made an attack on Judge Gary a week ago last Sunday. A regular meeting of the Executive officers of the Synagogue was held the following day and there was earnest discussion on Dr. Wise's sermon.

In view of the fact that preparations were being made to launch a movement to acquire funds for a building in which to house the Synagogue's activities, Dr. Wise thought it best that those who appeared to differ with him have an opportunity of hearing for themselves exactly what his views were. He therefore, repeated his views Sunday, saying he hesitated to appeal for funds for the new building unless he could feel that his views on economic questions were so clearly understood that no question could arise with respect to them.

Seven members of his congregation have already resigned, Dr. Wise said. He declined last night to discuss the situation pending the meeting scheduled for tomorrow.

REPORT FOSSIL GIANT FOUND

Vera Cruz Workers Say It Is 32 Feet 10 Inches Tall.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—The fossilized remains of a giant measuring more than 32 feet 10 inches in height were, according to report, recently discovered by workers near the little village of Nanacamilpa, State of Vera Cruz.

The natives, who still cling to many of the traditions of their Indian ancestors, declared the giant was related to the gods of their forefathers. They erected a catafalque in the plaza upon which the giant rested in state for many days, covered with flowers and carefully guarded at night.

The discovery attracted the attention of scientists here. The Director of Anthropology at the National Museum expects to leave soon for Nanacamilpa to investigate. He is inclined to believe the fossil is that of a prehistoric vertebrate, not a human being.

LOSES $45,000 IN PEARLS.

Necklace Worn by Mrs. Percy M. Chandler Disappears.

Through advertisements in yesterday's newspapers it was learned that a pearl necklace valued at almost $45,000 and belonging to Mrs. Percy M. Chandler, of 11 East Forty-fifth Street, had disappeared from her neck on Saturday night. Mr. Chandler said yesterday that he did not know whether the necklace had been stolen or had been lost, but the police had been notified of its disappearance and a considerable reward will be paid the finder.

The pearls were missed at the Palais Royal, where the Chandlers were dining with Capt. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and Mr. and Mrs. George de Beneville Keim of Philadelphia, after witnessing the performance of "Happy Days" at the Hippodrome. Preceding the theatre, the party ate at the Ritz-Carlton, where, Mr. Chandler said yesterday, his wife still was wearing the necklace. The string consists of ninety-five large pearls and it was given Mrs. Chandler by her husband two years ago.

2 DIE AT SEA IN MYSTERY.

Request for Police to Meet Onato's Crew May Indicate Mutiny.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The death of the Captain and the mate of the British schooner Onato and the abandonment of the vessel at sea were reported in messages picked up at naval radio stations today. The messages, which came from the American steamer Sarcoxie, indicated that the other members of the crew were taken off by the steamer last Thursday and asked that a police boat meet the Sarcoxie on her arrival in New York from Rotterdam.

How the Captain and mate met death was not disclosed. The request for the police boat led to a suggestion that they might have been killed in a mutiny. The messages did not say what caused abandonment of the schooner. The position where the crew was taken off was given as latitude 47.04 north, longitude 38.45 west, or about 300 miles east of St. John's, N. F.

LANSING ASKS MEXICO TO GARRISON MAPIMI

Requests That Force Be Stationed There to Protect Americans if Villistas Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Secretary Lansing has asked our Embassy in Mexico City to "urge the Mexican Foreign Office to permanently station a garrison of 400 men at Mapimi for protection of the Americans there against possible attack by Villa forces." Mapimi is in Northeastern Durango.

Indications that the Mexican Government is beginning to heed the demands of oil men for protection is indicated in a report today from Tampico. The Aguila company notified the Mexican authorities that they were threatened with a raid by rebels, and for the first time since the present régime came into power the Government sent troops at once and averted the raid.

WANTS FITZGERALD OUSTED

House Committee Charges Fraud—Finds Tague Was Elected.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Formal recommendation that Representative John F. Fitzgerald of Massachusetts, former Mayor of Boston, be ousted from his seat in the House was presented today by an elections committee headed by Representative Goodall of Maine. A majority report proposed that Peter F. Tague, former representative, be seated, while Representative Luce, Republican, Massachusetts, proposed that a new election be ordered by the House.

Both men are Democrats, contesting the election of last November, and House leaders tonight agreed that committee reports should be called before the House Saturday for final action.

Mr. Fitzgerald's plurality of 238 on the face of the returns was reduced to 10 by the committee's canvass of 1,800 contested ballots, and the discard of the votes cast in three precincts of the Fifth Ward of Boston on the ground that fully one third were fraudulent, was held by the committee majority to give Mr. Tague the election by 525 votes. Colonization of voters, illegal registration and fraud were the grounds given by the committee for its action.

Holding that it was impossible to show that Tague received a plurality and that the rejection of votes in three precincts was unjustifiable, Representative Luce urged that the House order a new election.

Hines Asks Board to Act.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Director General Hines today asked the Railroad Wage Board to expedite its report on the wage demands of teamsters employed in New York by the Railway Express Company. The men had a hearing Sept. 11.

2,500 AUTOS FORM PARADE.

More than 2,500 motor trucks, many of them elaborately decorated, took part yesterday in Brooklyn's Ship-by-Truck industrial parade. The large commercial interests in Brooklyn were represented, many of them entering fleets of twelve to twenty trucks, and hundreds of retail stores had from one to half a dozen light delivery motor vehicles. More than fifty express and long-haul companies were represented with large trucks. Among them were concerns running daily lines to Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia, Bridgeport and Boston.

The parade took two hours to pass a given point. It started from Carroll Street and Fourth Avenue at ten o'clock and went to Eastern Parkway, going through Bedford, Norman, Montrose, Bushwick, Jamaica, Pennsylvania, and Pitkin Avenues. It was headed by a fleet of army transport motor vehicles.

Ship-by-Truck parades, to show the importance of motor transportation, have been held in many western and southern cities. The committee responsible for the success of the Brooklyn affair, representing various motor interests, was headed by A. S. Rampell, chairman, R. W. Sykes, Jr., secretary, and W. R. Crouch, treasurer.

CURIOSITY—the Great Teacher

CURIOSITY is the beginning of all knowledge. Do you know any subject about which your child has not asked you a dozen questions? Let him ask as many as he likes, and be sure to answer them correctly. That is the parent's most important and most easily neglected duty. If you discourage your child's curiosity you will injure his mind, and the bright boy or girl becomes stupid or indifferent. Through curiosity Columbus discovered America. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the simplest and most natural method of helping the child to educate himself. IT ANSWERS EVERY QUESTION A CHILD CAN ASK IN PLAIN AND SIMPLE LANGUAGE. So captivating is this great original work to the mind of a child that he absorbs with little effort the profound truths and great facts of the world of knowledge, while reading its delightful pages and looking at the thousands of striking educational pictures.

YOUR CHILD IS UNIQUE

Your child is like no other child in the world. He has his own peculiar taste and need for both physical and mental food. If you put a meal before him and let him choose what agrees with him best, he will thrive. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the right kind of nourishing food for the child's mind during the growing years. Give your child this remarkable, original work, and watch carefully which of the 16 Great Departments interests him most, Nature, Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Literature, Poetry, or Manual Training. It will prove THE KEY to his natural bent, and the kind of work or profession in which he will most easily succeed.

YOUR CHILD'S CHANCE

In round numbers, what is your child's chance to become successful? If uneducated, he has one chance out of 150,000; with a common school education, 4 chances; with a high school education, 87 chances; with a college education, 800 chances; WITH THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the home, every chance. It is not a luxury, it is an absolute necessity. It is an INVESTMENT in your child's future which will pay dividends as long as he lives. In over 600,000 homes today the children are being educated with THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. Give your child his chance to compete with them.

LEAGUE CAMPAIGN OPENED IN ENGLAND

King George Commends Cause to All Citizens of the British Empire.

GREAT MEETING IN LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—With a message from King George which may be said to voice the strong commonsense view of the majority of the British Nation in regard to the covenant of the League of Nations, with a stirring appeal from Lloyd-George, with an eloquent address by ex-Premier Asquith and speeches by Lord Robert Cecil, Lord Reading and Sir John Clynes the campaign initiated by the League of Nations Union, a purely British association, made a good start at Mansion House today.

The three allied ratifications of the Paris Peace Treaty, required to give it full legal validity, are expected to be forthcoming within a week and the League of Nations will then become a reality of international politics. The object of the campaign inaugurated at Mansion House is to work up public support for the league so that it will become possible to make it a working reality.

In the minds of some of the keenest advocates of the League here the covenant is regarded not as consecration of the Treaty of Paris but as a machine whereby what are admittedly flaws in that treaty may be remedied.

The Mansion House meeting was an impressive gathering.

LONDON, Oct. 13. (Associated Press.)—A nation-wide campaign in favor of the League of Nations opened this afternoon under the Presidency of Sir Horace B. Marshall, Lord Mayor of London, at the Mansion House. For the occasion the League of Nations Union called together many of the leading British statesmen, including Herbert H. Asquith, Lord Robert Cecil, Sir John Clynes, former Food Controller; Earl Curzon of Kedleston, President of the Council; Andrew Bonar Law, Lord Privy Seal, and Sir Donald Maclean, a National-Liberal Member of Parliament.

In addition, all the foreign Ambassadors and diplomats and men prominent in various walks of civil life, churchmen, laborites, industrialists, scientists, and lawyers were present. Premier Venizelos of Greece, Mr. Asquith, Sir John Clynes, and Lord Robert Cecil were among the principal speakers.

King George sent the following letter to Lord Robert Cecil:

We have won the war. That is a great achievement. But it is not enough. We fought to gain a lasting peace, and it is our supreme duty to take every measure to secure it.

For that nothing is more essential than a strong and enduring League of Nations. Every day makes this clearer. The covenant of Paris is a good foundation. The nature and the strength of the structure to build upon this must depend on the earnestness and sincerity of popular support.

Millions of British men and women, poignantly conscious of the ruin and suffering caused by the brutal havoc of war, stand ready to help if only they are shown the way. In the knowledge of what already has been done, appreciation of the difficulties which lie before us and a determination to overcome them, we must spare no efforts.

I commend this cause to all citizens of the Empire, so that, with the help of all other men of good-will, a buttress and a sure defense of peace, to the glory of God and the lasting fame of our age and our country, may be established.

The reading of the King's letter was greeted with cheering.

Lloyd George sent a message to the meeting, saying:

Civilization cannot longer afford to squander its time and treasure on the destruction of its own handiwork. The allied Governments are pledged to the League's noble ideals. I appeal to my fellow-countrymen to support international order and good-will.

Mr. Asquith declared that the military and naval armaments of nations were being continued out of all proportion to the actual requirements for the preservation of order, and said he hoped the members of the League would fulfill their pledges under the covenant purely as a duty.

Mr. Asquith added that with the people alone lay the initiative and ultimate responsibility. The alternatives before them were to relapse into the old insane hostilities, or the provision and defense of a way for the free spirit of mankind.

Sir John Clynes said that labor must be more than a critic in the League's task; it must co-operate in it.

Bar Capital Police from A. F. of L.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Under a bill passed by the House today members of the District of Columbia police force would be forbidden to join labor organizations. Members of the force last week voted to give up the charter granting their local union a membership in the American Federation of Labor.

Report American Loan for Queensland.

BRISBANE, Oct. 13.—References to a reported negotiation of a loan of £2,000,000 in America for the State of Queensland were made in the Legislative Assembly here on Friday, but the State Treasurer subsequently refused to confirm or deny the rumor.

TO QUIT AS VICE ADMIRALS.

Daniels Agrees on Rank for Sims, Benson, and Mayo.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Secretary Daniels in conference today with Chairman Page of the Senate Naval Committee, was said to have acquiesced in the Senate proposal to give the retirement rank of Vice Admiral to Rear Admiral Sims, Benson, and Mayo instead of the rank of Admiral(which was proposed for the first two named officers by President Wilson.

Senator Page said, however, the bill would not be pressed until it was learned whether Admiral Benson would accept the lower rank.

The nomination of Admiral Coonts to be Chief of Naval Operations, also was discussed at the conference. Mr. Daniels was told that some Republican objection had arisen to confirmation of Admiral Coonts because he was a Southern Democrat, and succeeded another Democrat, who held the post for four years. Senator Page said he believed their nomination finally would be confirmed.

Son of Landlord Says He Was Hit with Rolling Pin During Rent Strike

Another assault growing out of high rents and a scarcity of apartments came to light yesterday when Mrs. Esther Yerkowitz of 148 Maujer Street, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Bridge Plaza Court on a charge of felonious assault and paroled until tomorrow to permit her to get a lawyer. It was alleged that in a fight growing out of a rent strike in the house where Mrs. Yerkowitz lives, she assaulted Abraham Ernstedoff, 18 years old, of 142 Maujer Street, the son of the landlord.

According to Ernstedoff, he was set upon by a crowd of angry women tenants, and when his mother came to his defense with a rolling pin, Mrs. Yerkowitz took it away and struck him with it. A crowd gathered in front of the house, making it necessary to call the police reserves to disperse them.

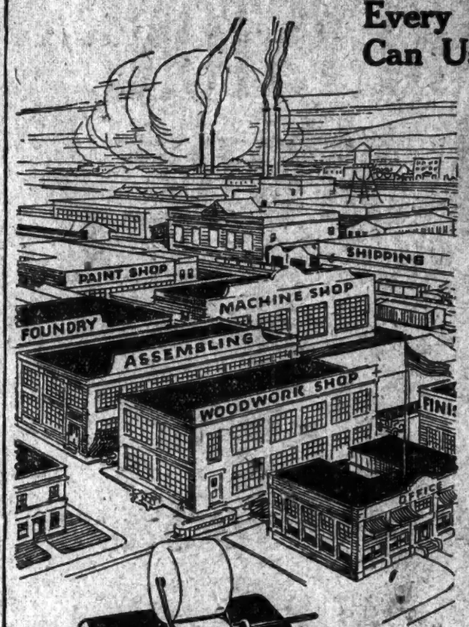
Dalton

ADDING-CALCULATING MACHINE



Every Factory Department Can Use a 10-Key Dalton

Every department of a manufacturing plant having any figuring work to do should be equipped with a 10-Key Dalton.

We say "a 10-Key Dalton" because its simplicity and broader usefulness in handling figure problems make it the ideal figuring machine for every department.

The Sales Manager can make out an estimate or figure quota percentages, add up sales or do any of the figure work that constitutes his records. He doesn't need to hunt up an adding machine operator—he can use a Dalton himself.

The Shipping Room, Pay Roll Department, General Accounting Division, Shop Office, all can use Daltons. A simpler, faster adding machine which multiplies as easily as it adds, multiplies faster than any ordinary calculating machine, and which is operable by any one in the organization, from office boy to President.

Phone for Demonstration

The rising labor market has so increased the demand for Daltons that we have doubled and TRIPLED our manufacturing capacity. You are never short a Dalton operator. Any girl, boy or man in shop or office can be put on a Dalton and self-train into an expert in a very short time. A Dalton invites use. Why not phone and have a Dalton demonstration in your office.

Its beauty, of course, needs no demonstration, for its distinctive, individual design is quite apparent.

Traffic in West Street, New York

Is your truck mileage per gallon low?

DOWN in West Street, coming up Hudson Street, it is start—stop—throw on the brakes—slip the clutch—speed up.

Streets are slippery, traffic jammed—that is the kind of running that means big gasoline bills.

Under such conditions sluggish gasoline that vaporizes slowly, is wasted by the pint. Raw gasoline shoots into the cylinders, is wasted, thins the oil, damages the bearings and the fast moving parts.

Whether you use a fleet of big dual treads or a single delivery car, you can get better mileage. You can bring down the number of layups for repairs—those layups that cost you about $25.00 a day. Order your drivers to use Tydol, the Economy Gasoline.

What really explodes in your engine

With Sluggish Gas: 8 parts of air to 1 part of gasoline
With TYDOL Gas: 15 parts of air to 1 part of gasoline

How to make 15 to 1 adjustment

After filling the gasoline tank with Tydol, run the engine until warm. Then lift the hood.

When the engine begins to slow down, turn the gas adjustment back, increasing the flow slightly until you get a maximum engine speed.

This will give you the 15 to 1 adjustment. If you have a "rich" and "lean" adjustment on the dashboard you can use an even leaner adjustment than the above.

On hills and in traffic use the rich dash adjustment; on the level or in the country use the lean.

Tydol will operate on the rich mixture needed by inferior gasoline. But Tydol is made so you can use the 15 to 1 mixture—less fuel and more air.

Tydol vaporizes fast. It spins out extra miles per gallon on the famous lean 15 to 1 mixture. Every drop delivers live power at the piston heads.

With Tydol in the tank have your mechanic make the 15 to 1 adjustment (see chart at left). Your engines will have new pickup, power under overloads, more speed in heavy traffic. Have your drivers always keep Tydol in the tank. Tydol costs no more than sluggish gasoline.

BRING JACOB LUBAN BACK FROM MEXICO

First Prisoner to be Extradited from There in the Last Four Years.

Jacob Luban, who said he was a theatrical manager, living at 248 West Forty-sixth Street, was locked up at Police Headquarters last night on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. He was brought to New York on the Ward liner Morro Castle from Tampico, Mexico, where he was arrested on July 25 last. The original charge against Luban was forgery, it being alleged that he forged five checks totaling $5,000 and obtained the money from the Grand Street branch of the Corn Exchange Bank. He was arrested on March 7, 1919, and the trial was set for May 15. In the meantime he was released on $10,000 bail, furnished by the New Amsterdam Casualty Company. On February 28 Monte Gibson and his wife, Catherine, were arrested, charged with passing five forged checks, and it was alleged that Gibson confessed and mentioned Luban's name.

Detectives learned that Luban had a brother in business in Tampico, Mexico, and Detective Patrick J. Mesney and Assistant District Attorney Thomas I. Sheridan went there to find him. He was arrested by the Tampico authorities. Luban hired lawyers and fought extradition, but the Mexican Government turned him over to the New York representatives on Sept. 15. He is the first man to be extradited from Mexico during the last four years.

Luban was a witness for the prosecution in the Becker trial and was sentenced to prison by Judge Dike in Brooklyn. He was pardoned by Governor Whitman, but was rearrested and sentenced for forgery. Again he was pardoned by Governor Whitman. His third arrest resulted in his jumping his bail.

Asked by a passenger why he fled, Luban said he could not get a square deal in New York. He declared that the police of New York "are after anybody who helped to send Becker to the chair" and that his life was not safe. He also said that he expected to be "railroaded" by the police.

Luban will be arraigned in General Sessions today. Gibson, it was said, is expected to testify against him on the forgery charge.

AMERICAN RACE IMPROVING.

Better Physically Than in Civil War, Says Ex-Draft Director.

Dr. Victor C. Pedersen and Martin W. Conboy, ex-Director of the draft in this city, in addresses before the Society of Medical Jurisprudence at the Academy of Medicine last night, discussed medical deductions drawn from their work. Mr. Conboy said the physical fitness of the men of the country apparently was better than in the days of the civil war.

Dr. Pedersen said only one-third of the 10,000,000 men drafted were examined. Of these 29.6 per cent. were disqualified, and 70.4 per cent. sent to camps. At the camps 8.1 per cent. were rejected, and 91.9 per cent. inducted. When the United States entered the war, he said, there were 2,562 physicians in the army and navy. When the armistice was declared there were 38,000 physicians in service, or 26 per cent. of the medical profession of the country.

Dr. Pedersen said that if the devastation caused by influenza were deducted "the morbidity of the entire American Army sinks to 2.2 a thousand," or hardly more than the sick rate in peace times.

Mr. Conboy said that the draft revealed that the native Americans were better physical specimens than the foreign born, but there seemed no difference between children of native parentage and of foreign stock born in this country.

The second season of the Theatre Guild, the organization which has "John Ferguson" to its everlasting and very negotiable credit, was launched last evening at the Garrick with a pretentious, appreciative and, in many respects, a satisfying production of "The Faithful." This is the three-act tragedy by the poet Masefield, a prose play of old Japan, first published some four years ago and once almost produced by Winthrop Ames.

The Theatre Guild has mounted it beautifully, cast one or two rôles as well as any one could ask, and then left the most important rôle of all to an actor whose arrestingly inadequate performance mars the whole presentation and makes the difficult second act an uncommonly tedious and unpersuasive interlude between the first and third.

The Masefield tragedy reworks a legend of ancient vengeance, of a vow sworn and kept by men who must forfeit all they have and are to keep it. Asano, the gentle and beloved lord of a pleasant valley in Japan, has, as his covetous and contemptuous enemy, one Kira, a jackal of mean birth, whom they all knew when he was a boy snatching with dogs at the broken meats after a feast, but who, by intrigue, is risen now to a threatening overlordship of all that province. Asano is willing to go out into the wilderness with what he believes, but he is tricked to his death.

Then, patiently, faithfully, his followers devote their task of avenging him, killing Kira at last at the zenith of his power, though they must profane a sacred place in the killing and must themselves pay the death penalty in consequence. As their last hour strikes, the leader of the avenging band speaks the final speech of the play:

"You trumpeters, who call the faithful to death in all the armies of the world, blow a long point.

That long-dead heroes
Manning the ramparts of God
May hear us coming,
Baring our hearts to the sword
For him we loved so.

All this is set forth in a spirited and imaginative text that flashes at times into moments of such genuine poetic beauty as are Masefield's own. Yet "The Faithful" is most difficult to embody in the theatre because to fishy Occidental eyes, moments of true Japanese sublimity verge perilously on the ludicrous. So the imperial orders which, from time to time in "The Faithful," bid the characters kill themselves, arouse mutinous memories of "The Mikado."

The occasional reliance on the punctilio of Japanese fidelity does impishly recall the embarrassing predicament of our old friend Ko-Ko of Titipu. Nor is it altogether because of a long training in a Gilbertian Japan that we of Times Square are too profane to sit in undisturbed reverence at the feet of a Japanese tragedy. That is, to some degree, pu ng the rickshaw before the coolie, for o us playboys of the Western world there is a lurking comedy in Japan, which is why the Savoyards thought the Japanese such good material for a comic opera.

So one is on the nervous edge of levity when the great-hearted, loyal Kurano, intent on his secret mission and seeking to disencumber himself of all distractions turns to his beloved wife with a startling utterance that runs something like this:

"You are harmless as women go, what is called virtuous, loving wise. Go and drown yourself."

Whereat the Theatre Guild must not feel too outraged if, once in a while, a titter ripples across the Garrick and a Broadway damsel out front can be heard shifting her gum long enough to observe: "My Gawd, she'll probably go slam out and commit Harry Carroll."

At least one of these pitfalls is discreetly cut from the text and another is passed in safety, thanks to the fine style and dignity of the performance of Rollo Peters as Asano. It is a really brilliant performance of the evil Kira that is given by Henry Herbert, who was the idiot in the Ervine tragedy. The last act is preëminently his, and in it you can hear the footballs of fate, ever so softly, pat-pat-pat on the floor mats without.

Fine bits are done by Walter Howe, by Boris Korlin, by Erskine Sanford (as Honzo), and by Henry Stillman as the Envoy. This is very curious. Here is a part which, textually, is one of the most beautiful intrusted by a modern playwright to a player in our time. Its almost every beauty is forfeited by the slovenly, dull, almost inaudible utterance of Mr. Stillman, and yet, spiritually, his grasp of the rôle is so complete that there is a saintly halo glowing faintly over his embodiment.

It is well that all these parts are so well played and yet it is not enough. For the best rôle of all is mulled over and ruined by Augustin Duncan. Here is a part on which the author relies overmuch on the virtuosity of a single actor. It calls for a Lionel Barrymore, who could make "The Faithful" magnificent. It falls instead to a sort of Howard Kyle—a Howard Kyle with the curiously hollow and reverberant voice of a Charles Hopkins. Much mugging and impotent gesture, much booming at the wrong time are in this distressing performance. Thus does the second act stagger and reel interminably. It is too bad.

The Lee Simonson settings are lovely in color and fittingly reticent with several of the forestage scenes screened by reproductions of austere and wintry Japanese prints. The inner scene is a warmly lighted place of tawny screens and oval windows.

The place the Theatre Guild has won in its short life was indicated by the uncommonly distinguished audience which helped inaugurate its second season. The author was nowhere to be seen, as the shrinking stars say in their curtain speeches, but certain of his compatriot contemporaries were there. John Drinkwater was there. And so was Lord Dunsany.

Parish Williams Makes Debut Here.

Parish Williams, a tenor singer from California, made his first appearance in New York last evening at Aeolian Hall. What he brings to New York is not so much voice as it is a pleasing and sincere style, a clear enunciation, an attempt to give variety of characterization. He is limited by the resources of his voice, which is small and possessed of little range of color, and while it is for the most part used with freedom, there are moments when constriction causes it to sound throaty.

He sang with excellent understanding an Italian song, by Haydn; "Come and Trip it as You Go," by Handel, and the charming "Have You But Seen a White Lily Grow?" and in the English songs his enunciation was excellent. A group of capital Scandinavian songs by Sinding, Bendix, Lange-Müller and Grieg gave especial pleasure. He was more at home and more successful in these than in his French group, and had to repeat the Serenade of Lange-Müller.

Three Plays Move to New Stages.

Three current plays were last night transferred to new stages. "At 9:45" moved from the Playhouse to the Vanderbilt Theatre, and "The Five Million," also, was transferred from the Lyric to the Comedy. "John Ferguson," which has been playing at the Fulton Theatre, began a supplementary engagement of two weeks at the Cort Theatre, with a number of new players in its cast.

"Hamlet" and "Little Whopper."

The Sothern-Marlowe season entered its second week at the Shubert last night when "Hamlet" took the place of "Twelfth Night" in the bill. At the Casino, new musical comedy called "The Little Whopper" was presented for the first time, with book by Otto Harbach and music by Friml, his old partner in such enterprises. Both these productions will be reviewed in this newspaper at a later date.

"Five O'Clock," although it is rather oddly mixed in mood, is a play well fashioned and in the main highly entertaining. It has humor, sentiment, and drama—all of them genuine, but mixed in rather unfortunate proportions. Last night's audience at the Fulton Theatre received the piece with something more than the usual enthusiasm, but there was no blinking the fact that now and then they were puzzled.

"Five O'Clock" begins in the mood of American rural comedy—the mood of "Wallingford" and "The Fortune Hunter" and countless others—and presently both interests and startles by the introduction as its main theme of a serious pathological question, to wit, the detention in institutions for the insane of persons who are mentally well-qualified and who should be permitted their freedom.

Here, obviously, is material for real and intense drama, and, indeed, the authors of "Five O'Clock" extract several emotionally effective scenes from it. But when, interlarding these scenes, one meets the exaggerated rural folk of farce, when the very relatives of the youth in the asylum are shown to be the overgiddy folk who generally people burlesques, then an audience is certain to find some difficulty in adjusting itself to the story.

Once this corner has been safely turned, however, "Five O'Clock" is on its ground. The second act, which is the body of the play, shows certain phases of the examination into the mental state of the unfortunate victim, and moves briskly to a good climax.

The youth, who has spent thirteen years of his boyhood in an institution owing to the whims of his Back Bay relatives—it will be seen how hard it is to bend such a premise to comedy—has put in his spare hours writing a book dealing with the abuses which result from institutions of this kind. The publication of this volume wins him his freedom, and the threads of the story are gathered together in a third act which shows the hero hard at work putting his theories into practice by providing a home for all the homeless and backward children of the neighborhood.

The principal author of "Five o'Clock" is Frank Bacon, who had as his collaborator Freeman Tilden, a magazine writer. The play has many of the touches which distinguish Mr. Bacon's "Lightnin'," although in the main, of course, it is not nearly so adroit a play. Mr. Bacon, slipping over from the adjacent Gaiety, was able to make a brief appearance and a curtain speech after the second act.

The play is well-acted throughout by a cast headed by Tim Murphy, who does excellent work as a rugged country doctor who stands by the hero's mate when the test comes. David Higgins makes a real figure of an old servant, and Leslie Austen is the youth of the institution, handling a difficult role with authority. Good performances are also given by Joseph Conyers, Alberta Burton, and Vivia Ogden, Lester Paul among others. The play has been well staged by David Burton.

When Harry Bersford and ten youngsters in "Boys Will Be Boys," the new Cobb-Kennedy play at the Belmont, asked last evening a first-night audience at the final curtain to "come to their Christmas party," it may have been already written in the stars that Peep O'Day will celebrate Fourth of July with those boys, and maybe many Christmases to come in this broad land. For out of a world of humor in Irvin Cobb's stories had emerged, not only Judge Priest and a dozen more of the familiar characters, but also the village ne'er-do-well, a sort of Kentucky Rip Van Winkle and Pied Piper of Hamelin combined, in a simple, human plot, shrewdly devised for the stage by Charles O'Brien Kennedy, yet bearing the Cobb hallmark in every line.

Mr. Cobb once tried his hand at staging his own people in "Back Home," and he tried again in "Under Sentence," with Rol Cooper Megrue. The present play, for all it may seem a bit tallformade, like Peep O'Day's first store clothes, seems to have found the way to get the Cobb jokes over. The laughter and applause began with the opening scene behind Gafford's livery stable, where Peep explained. "When I hear anybody say, 'Get out o' there, you white trash,' I know they means me." And when a third act ended in the broken-windowed schoolhouse, the audience still sat or stood, cheering the actors, while Mr. John Drew, down in front, was strutting like a boy with the rest.

Bersford's Peep O'Day is one of those rôles that may strike like "Lightin'," an American rake, reinforced as it is by William St. James's rotund Judge Priest, Claude Cooper's Nick Bell, and George Park's Sergeant Bagby, the ex-minstrel on Peep's sanity; C. H. Riegel and Carl Anthony, as the two conspirators after Peep's inheritance from Ireland, and Robert Armstrong as the young lawyer for the defense and suitor for Winifred Wellington. Together with Edna Archer Crawford as the village vamp, Rose Mary King as the palmed-off niece from Cincinnati, Frank L. Frayne as the Judge's darky, and others not forgetting the ten young boys, they all rang true. Cobb himself could have acknowledged the corn, but he neither appeared nor spoke.

As Peep said, "A man can't hardly have a second childhood when he's been cheated out of the first." His senile delight in copper-toed, red-topped boots, his hiring a circus to please the little boys, his robbing a safe to help the young lovers, were all natural enough while the story was being told. It's the sort of play a boy "from 6 to 60" can take his mother to, and from the behavior of many youngsters of the mentioned ages in last night's house, that's what a good many boys are going to do.

To the Public No. 1.

Amusement lovers will be interested in the announcement that an institution dedicated to their enjoyment will be opened at Broadway and 51st Street, New York, in the near future.

This theatre will be known as the "Capitol" and will be unusual in many respects.

It will be the largest theatre in the world; so vast in expanse that nine ordinary first-class theatres could be contained within its walls.

It will comfortably seat 5,300 people. The chairs are roomy and inviting. The aisles are wide. Everywhere one finds spacious promenades.

The management takes pleasure in having created so unusual an institution for the entertainment of the public, but recognizes the fact that something more is expected of it. Other features of the policy will be outlined in this space from day to day.

You Go to the Theatre

But Have You Any Idea How Many of You There Are in New York? Do You Realize the Immensity of Theatrical Interest New York, Compared With Other Cities?

YOU have often heard that New York theatres are supported by visitors. That is not true. New York theatres are supported by New Yorkers. It is a fact that most visitors go to the theatre; but they constitute only about 25% of the nightly audience. Fully 75% are residents of the city and its environs.

Do you know that there are more than fifty first-class theatres in New York, whereas there are only six in Philadelphia, twelve in Chicago and nine in Boston? Few appreciate the tremendous hold the theatre has on the New York public. There is a most excellent reason for this which we shall discuss, in detail, on another occasion.

Some idea can be gained of the number of theatre-goers, through the number of theatre programs used—one copy, as you know, being given to each patron. Last season there were distributed, in forty-two theatres, over 300,000 theatre programs each week. This does not represent all the people, in New York, who go to the theatre, but the average number attending in a given week.

The theatrical season extends, generally, from thirty-five to forty weeks, though last year there were more theatres open during the Summer than ever before. Over 12,000,000 theatre programs were distributed in the past season.

Of these, 25% went to visitors, leaving more than 9,000,000 hat were used by patrons living in and around New York. And remember, every one of these theatre-goers paid a minimum of $1.00 for his seat.

It is from these people that practically all the stores in New York derive their patronage. Many merchants, however, do cater to visitors, but only to those who are in a position, financially, to attend the theatre.

The largest women's publication in the country has 1,700,000 subscribers to their monthly magazine. In the United States, during a period equivalent to the theatrical season, they distribute about 14,000,000 copies. So the number of theatre programs, distributed to New Yorkers alone, equals two-thirds of all the subscribers in the country, to the largest women's publication in the world.

THE NATIONAL FINANCES.

Current authoritative estimates that our national deficit will require taxes of four billions for an indefinite number of years contrast strangely with the facts of the same date. The Treasury reports that so far this month the actual payments were $195,000,000 less than last year. There is no apparent reason why that decline should not continue, and even exceed the indicated decline of $600,000,000 for a month for the immediate future. Of course as the expenditures approach normal, there will be a check to the decline in comparison with the abnormal conditions under which we spent thirty-five billions in thirty months. Nevertheless, the fact remains that we are running true to national form in the rapidity with which we cancel war debts and make our income overtake expenditures.

Only a few days ago it was announced that we had redeemed nearly a billion of funded debt not yet due. So far as the reduction of Treasury payments is due to the ending of war expenses, to the checking of extravagance in Government outlay, or similar examples of thrift, there is no danger of our approved practice running into the error of excess. But the line should be drawn against the reduction of war debt in a manner to prevent the accumulation of industrial capital by excessive taxation. There has not yet resulted any such harm that we should regret having financed the war by a closer approach to "paying as you go" than was ever before known, but there is caution in the fact that our taxes are running five times the rate before the war. That fact is the basis of the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce that our Federal taxes should be reduced to $2,700,000,000 a year, with the double intent that the taxes should not press too hard on the individual taxpayer, and that industry should not be crushed by a burden which tends to defeat the object of taxation. There are abundant signs that the excess profits tax will not be as productive next year as it was last year, and there is no reason why we should be precipitate in relieving posterity from its share of paying for a war which it did not fight, but from which it will profit economically and politically even more than we.

In one way of speaking it is true that the war has already been paid for, even before the war bonds are redeemed. War is work of a sort which can neither be postponed nor anticipated, and the war work has been done by our generation, even to the extent of bearing its fatalities. Posterity will furnish neither powder, nor cannon, nor soldiers, living or dead, to the war which ended German domination. Even in paying the war bonds posterity will contribute nothing to this generation, for it will pay the bonds to itself. Nevertheless it is true that a lighter burden can be carried longer than one too heavy, and even with beneficial results where prostration might be the result of excess of effort. We have a right to think of ourselves as well as of posterity, and in a sense we are doing the best thing for posterity when we leave to it a debt whose anticipation weakens us. The war having ended, the necessity of too close an approach to theoretical perfection in its finance is relaxed, and we can consider our convenience more than when we confronted an unknown future.

Our tax system is not good because it is too productive today, at the cost of being less productive tomorrow. The taxlayers who are enthusiastic about our deficit because it is encouraging to their efforts to save the country in that way need calming. There is enough for them to do in reducing the national budget both in form and substance, and our taxes are levied so badly that less burdensome rates might even be more productive. In particular those who wish to raise the tariff rates in order that the customs may be as burdensome as the excise taxes need watching and restraint. Our taxes ought to be laid more by business men and less by politicians and protectors of class interests, whether wage earners or manufacturers. At a time when the cost of living offends all, and when there is a general perception that more goods are a better remedy than more pay, the reduction of the costs of production and of living by the reduction of taxes is the better as well as the easier way.

GERMANS AND THE BALTIC.

The news from the Baltic campaign is somewhat uncertain; since the fall of Riga. One report has it that the German and "Russian" troops who took the town will go no further at present; a report not very plausible, since whatever force there is in the Lettish and Esthonian armies will certainly move against them now. It is a matter of life and death for these new republics, and they will do what they can. The story of the 50,000 Lettish troops landing in VON DER GOLTZ's rear, however, can hardly be accepted; the numbers must have been enormously exaggerated, and the Germans say the menace to their flank has been disposed of. Of the troops at the disposal of VON DER GOLTZ and AVALOFF-BERMONDT the numbers have been reported all the way from 20,000 to 300,000—the first obviously too small, the latter obviously too large. This new war is beginning on a much smaller scale than the grandiose campaign conducted by HELMUTH VON MOLTKE in 1914; but it will have for the present no such opposition as that which MOLTKE met in Belgium and France.

It is a problem of the first importance to all the free nations, even to those who are wholly uninterested in it as yet. So great an army could not have been formed on the Baltic—for many of its troops have come from other German units demobilized since the armistice—still less could it have been provisioned and equipped without the knowledge and at least the acquiescence of the German Republican Government. On the suppression of this new German crusade the welfare of the whole world may depend; but among the first who should move against it with all the power they have are the honest liberals and republicans of Germany. If there are men in Germany who are heartily sick of the rattling sabre and the shining armor and the mailed fist—and in the last few months it has seemed that there were many Germans of this sort, particularly in the west and south and in the great cities—now is the time for them to show that they mean what they say. If the Baltic adventure succeeds, there is likely to be a Kaiser in Potsdam again before very long; and this time his rule is not likely to be trammeled by any trimmings of democratic pretense. The Independent Socialists realize this in Germany; the course of history in the next two decades may depend on how many other Germans realize it. If Germany is willing to change her ways, if she has any intention of becoming a neighbor who can be trusted, if she is not the same old implacable enemy, now is the time to show it.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS.

France will elect a new Chamber of Deputies on Nov. 16. The old Chamber, chosen in 1914, for four years, had long survived its mandate. The three hundred Senators have a term of six years, and one-third of them is elected every two years. On account of the war the process prescribed by the Constitution could not be followed; so two hundred Senators are to be chosen, not by popular vote. Municipal officers have to be elected. General councils of the departments have to be elected, and by them the Senators will be chosen. This year Alsace-Lorraine will again be represented in the French Parliament. It is entitled to four Senators and twenty-eight Deputies.

Since 1889 Deputies have been elected under the scrutin d'arrondissement system, the arrondissement roughly corresponding to our Congress district. This year the system has been changed. Every department will choose as many Deputies as it has multiples of 70,000 inhabitants of French nationality. After so dividing the inhabitants each remainder of more than 37,500 will choose another Deputy. Departments whose population entitles them to more than six Deputies will be split into sections, each one of which chooses three Deputies. The second ballot which had to be taken under the old system in the case of candidates who didn't get an absolute majority has been abolished. Provision has been made for minority representation, "proportional representation," according to a mathematical system difficult to understand or explain.

In the last Parliament the strongest group in numbers was the Radical Socialist, which, in spite of its name, is now neither Socialist nor Radical. It was a combination originally formed in days of great hate and bitterness to fight the Clericals. It is difficult to find any basis of common principles for it. Expediency gave it birth. Its old skill in electioneering would seem to be harder since the electoral reform law, whereby all candidates will be voted for throughout the department instead of each being voted for in his own district.

The Unified Socialists, who have always been tender toward Germany and the Bolsheviki, and who advocate the nationalization of industries and other radical social alterations, were next in numbers to the Radical Socialists in the last Parliament. The Socialists have divided into a number of groups, more or less fluid and difficult to grasp. Mr. ALBERT THOMAS, who, with forty-two other Deputies, left the party when the Extreme Left under Mr. LONGUET refused to support the war, can have little or nothing in common with the violent and Bolshevist element, against which a combination of all the moderates seems likely to win. In August we heard of a combination of the moderates against the Extreme Socialists and Royalists. In effect, the platform of the combination was to be "Neither Reaction nor Revolution." Negotiations for this combination were then said to be in progress. It was to consist of the Radicals, Republican Socialists, Democratic Alliance, and Federation of the Lefts. In 1914 the voting strength of such a combination would have been 4,725,000 of a total of 8,250,000. In that year the Progressives cast 800,000 votes, the Royalists and Conservatives 1,300,000, and the Socialists 1,400,000.

According to an Associated Press dispatch published in yesterday's TIMES, the Royalists have given up their fight of nearly fifty years against the Republic. They will no longer insist that the Duke of ORLEANS be made King of France; and he has himself asked them to discontinue their campaign against the Republic, which, indeed, has more than justified itself and deserves the support of all classes of Frenchmen who want a free and orderly Government. The Imperialists have vanished, unless there are a few chivalrous old men who love forlorn hopes. The splendid bravery and devotion of priests and clerics in the war has done much to appease the old conflict between Church and State. It is said that Catholic Conservatives, not Royalists, but enemies of that extreme, intolerant, anti-clericalism of which Mr. COMBES was the protagonist, now accept the separation of Church and State. So, in the Department of the Seine, which includes Paris, an alliance of all moderate parties, including Mr. GUSTAVE HERVE's Nationalist Socialist Party, is under consideration. In that department, and in some others, where the Bolshevist Socialists are dangerous, it is hoped to elect a union ticket. French socialism of the extreme type has ceased to be socialism. It tends toward, if it is not actually, Bolshevism. The old soldiers, remembering the seditious or treasonable conduct of the Extreme Socialists during the war, should be able to beat them now.

COLONEL HOUSE.

Everybody will wish for Colonel HOUSE's speedy restoration to health. The somewhat jocular comments on his first appearance in politics have given way, as time went on, to a recognition of his steady and earnest work in the tasks that were assigned to him.

Whatever his part in the peace negotiations may have been, and however great or little may have been his influence, everybody has come to realize that he was an unselfish and industrious worker in the cause he had set himself to. Everybody knows now, likewise, that Mr. HOUSE had no private motive to serve, that his motives were purely patriotic, and that he gave the best of himself to the working out of the problems presented at Versailles.

Though we do not know the measure of his labors and successes, all of us must realize the earnest and honest work that he has devoted to his beliefs. They have been enough to break him down. He is a sick man today. When any American labors so hard for what he considers the interest of his country, whether he is agreed with or not, our hearts will go out to him.

NIVELLE AND HAIG.

In the Chamber of Deputies at Paris on Friday last M. PAINLEVE, Minister of War in the Ribot Cabinet, defending himself from the charge that, on the plea of frightened politicians who had scurried back from the front, he stopped the offensive of General NIVELLE in the Spring of 1917 and ruined the career of a brilliant strategist, declared that the movement collapsed because the enemy had too many machine guns. The French gained much less ground than they had expected to seize and lost 34,000 men killed in the first ten days of fighting. General NIVELLE was summoned to Paris, had a stormy interview with the Premier, and resigned under pressure after a refusal to give up his command.

There has never been a reasonable doubt that General NIVELLE's operations beginning on April 16, 1917, were a failure, although he took 21,000 prisoners in thirteen days. His object was to drive the Germans from their entrenched positions and bring on open warfare, with the enemy in retreat and demoralized. General NIVELLE believed that, with the cooperation of the British under Field Marshal HAIG, the campaign could be ended by a grand attack all along the line, in which great losses would be incurred, but the decision would finally rest with the Allies. It was the strategy of Mukden. The French commander, as it turned out, was bold to rashness, and paid the penalty of his failure with the loss of his command. But he alone was responsible for the failure. The story of the panic-stricken politicians who persuaded the Government at Paris to call the offensive off before NIVELLE could carry out his plans was an invention.

It is more and more evident that the protagonists in the great war will have to write their own accounts of the operations if the truth is to prevail by analysis and comparison. In the dispatch from Paris dealing with NIVELLE's failure, the General is quoted as complaining that Field Marshal HAIG evaded instructions given him, questioned "the offensive itself," and made it impossible to exercise "unity of command." According to a statement made by ex-Premier BRIAND in the Chamber on Friday, unity of command was decided on previous to the battle of Arras, which was to be a curtain-raiser to General NIVELLE's offensive. "On the authority of the two Governments," said M. BRIAND, "General NIVELLE took command of the "French and British armies." Unity of command was, therefore, attempted long before General FOCH accepted the responsibility in the Spring of 1918. The Paris dispatch muddles things by saying that "the British share in the "offensive was fixed by General "NIVELLE for April 8," (1917,) and by adding the mystifying statement that "Sir DOUGLAS HAIG sent a note "to the British War Council, which "reopened the whole question of the "forthcoming offensive."

The implication here is that the British commander embarrassed General NIVELLE, and did not support him vigorously. It can be read between the lines of HAIG's official report on Dec. 25, 1917, that he had his doubts about the feasibility of NIVELLE's strategic plan, but the British commander did perform with marked success his part in the preliminary operation, which was, as he says, "to attract as large "hostile forces as possible to my front "before the French offensive was "launched." His own attack was launched at 5:30 A. M. on April 9 "under cover of a most effective artillery barrage." In forty minutes "practically the whole of the German "front-line system on the front at- "tacked had been stormed and "taken." Town after town was stormed; a gap was made in "the German third-line system"; the Canadians captured Vimy Ridge; on the fourth day the enemy began his withdrawal; in six days the British front advanced four miles, and 13,000 prisoners and 200 guns were taken before the morning of April 16, when NIVELLE was to start his offensive. Only on one day, April 15, did the Germans make a counterattack upon the British with success, but by 1 P. M. the ground taken by the enemy had been recovered and the British line re-established. HAIG had done his work handsomely, and British critics are already pointing out that the movements of the Germans affected the practicability of some parts of the plan. But HAIG will now have to tell his story in more detail, and, for the sake of his reputation, reply to the charges of General NIVELLE, for the first time printed.

FOR WOMEN WORKERS.

The deserts of the League for Women Workers are inversely proportioned to the very moderate sum which it has set out to raise—one hundred thousand dollars. The object of the league is to provide "rest, recreation, recuperation" for working girls and women, and its methods are well tested, its results assured. Founded thirty-five years ago, the league has had a continuous history and has grown steadily in numbers and in the perfection of its plan of operation. Today it includes twenty-five large clubs in and near New York, eight of which have their own clubhouses, modern and thoroughly well equipped, while eleven others have suites of clubrooms. These are all, in the main, self-supporting. The fund now sought is for the purpose of organizing new clubs and developing the activities of the league as a whole.

At the time of the inception of the league there were no other women's clubs organized and directed by women in existence. In 1889 the league established the first Vacation House for wage-earning women in this country. In 1897 it incorporated the National League of Women Workers, with branches in six States. In 1901 it established Summer classes to teach skilled workmanship, which developed into the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, taken over by the Board of Education in 1911.

The present drive marks a highly significant enlargement in the outlook of the league. Hitherto its work has been intensely practical, aiming to develop bodily health and mechanical skill. This will, of course, continue to be the basic purpose; but, in the opinion of the officers, the time has now come for progress along more liberal lines. To the physical recreation of Summer camp and gymnasium and the social enjoyment of the clubhouse will be added opportunities for aesthetic culture and development. There will be classes in singing and dancing and facilities for amateur dramatics. Women wage workers will be regarded not merely as mechanical atoms in industrial society, but as human beings with the normal need of self-expression. "Emotional ventilation" is the graphic phrase of the program. In brief, the league has learned from the modern psychology that even as workers men and women fail of their best development if the aesthetic and spiritual nature is ignored. We are all reservoirs of energy, highly charged with forces that find no outlet in the workaday world. If these forces are suppressed, denied, they sooner or later find an abnormal outlet. When they find free expression in the field of art they become a tonic of the utmost value, both physical and spiritual. The great danger among working women is of becoming mechanical, sexless; the aim of the league is to give normal exercise and development to all the fine instincts of womanhood. Upon the success of this, and of all similar endeavors, hang the ultimate health and happiness of the wage-earning woman.

A careful survey has been made of Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn, Westchester, and Staten Island, and localities have been selected for opening new clubs. Members of the clubs already established are uniting in the drive. The subscriptions range from one dollar upward, and may be sent to the headquarters of the league, at 6 East Forty-fifth Street.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

New Yorkers, not without reason, are credited both with an abundant regard for their own interests and sufficient ability to protect those interests. They frequently show, however, a curious helplessness when confronted with unfamiliar emergencies and a remarkable disinclination to do for themselves anything they are accustomed to have done for them.

This peculiarity has been well illustrated ever since the longshoremen's strike began, for though all New Yorkers know how essential to their comfort, and even to their lives, it is that the distribution of foodstuffs throughout the city, as well as their arrival, should be uninterrupted, yet they have been reading daily about the huge quantities of perishable provisions that are spoiling on the wharves, and it seems to have occurred to nobody that possibly the tasks of the strikers, in a pinch, could be performed by others—not as well performed, of course, but still quite well enough to reduce very appreciably the menace of starvation and the rise of prices to famine level.

Over in England the general public met a similar situation with a promptness and efficiency which soon convinced the transport strikers that they were not by any means as nearly indispensable as they had thought themselves to be. As a result, a much larger strike than we have had came to an end within two or three days, and amateur distributers proved themselves and their improvised facilities adequate for the service demanded. Nobody except perhaps the strikers went hungry, and prices were kept down, or at any rate did not soar as they would have done had the places of the strikers not been filled and their work done by volunteers too numerous to be intimidated.

Difficult But Not Impossible.

Transportation conditions are somewhat different in New York from what they are in London, but there, too, a river increases the difficulties of distribution, as it does here. That city, too, is much more dependent than this one on supplies from abroad, and the loading and unloading of ships really is a task requiring some degree of specialised skill and experience. But New York has at least as well supplied as London with automobiles and motor trucks, and with men and women competent to operate them.

Its residents, therefore, if they had chosen to do so, could have helped themselves when their accustomed servitors abandoned their jobs and much after the manner of highwaymen made the demand of "Your money or your life!" What was required from the residents of the city was that they should display something of the same readiness to change their habits and to get out of familiar ruts that they showed during the war—that they should do for themselves some of the things they then did for their country.

Instead, they have accepted their inconveniences and losses as if they were what used to be called "acts of Providence"—happenings for which nobody was responsible and against which it was useless to struggle.

The Language Has Changed Since Then.

HUME's "History of England" has an occasional reader, even in these days, when apprehension as to the future has done away with so much—and too much, perhaps—of interest in the past. One such reader, however, exists, and has brought back from his dip into that large well of British speech as it was written by a Scotchman in the middle of the eighteenth century, an age far from remote, this queer sentence:

"The diffidence which LAWIS discovered of their fidelity forwarded their general propension toward the King."

Probably nobody alive today would use the word "diffidence" as meaning distrust of others, or the word "discovered" in the sense of "uncovered" or "disclosed." Both words, indeed, are so defined in modern dictionaries, but in both instances the usage is characterized as archaic:

"Propension," too, is more than a bit queer, yet none immediately comes to mind that would have served HUME's purpose quite as well, and it is still perfectly and instantly comprehensible—which is more than can be said for the other two in their "archaic" employment.

Are Bright Children Neglected?

Justifiable, or at least explicable, criticism of the school system in this and most other countries is made by American Medicine because as yet hardly a beginning has been made in the direction of giving to the specially bright and able pupils the amount of attention and the facilities for rapid progress that are required for making promptly available their exceptional social value.

Classes for dull and backward children are now to be found in many schools, and of course they are to be commended for the good work they do, but if, as seems to be the case, these classes take up so much of teaching time and ability as appreciably to decrease the efforts made in behalf of the more than ordinarily intelligent children, then it is at least questionable whether the commendation should be entirely unqualified.

That as many dullards as possible should be made less dull is highly desirable, but the most that can be done for them is to raise them to the level of mediocrity, while it is from the children of exceptional capacity that more confidently can be expected to come the leaders and benefactors of the future. A fairly plausible reply to reasoning of this sort is that the bright children can take care of themselves without help, while the dull ones need all the assistance that can be given to them, and that to give it is in the public interest as well as a public duty. In truth, the bright child also has a claim to assistance, and suffers when it is withheld. He is distinctly injured when he is held back or is not allowed and incited to advance to the extent of his abilities.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY.

If Rates Are Fair, Why Penalize Good Management?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some years ago the Interstate Commerce Commission refused the request of the railroads for a substantial increase in freight rates, because the commission believed that the roads could, by efficient management, so reduce their cost of operation as to earn a fair profit from the then existing rates. If the premise was correct, the determination of the commission to insist on efficiency was admirable, but the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee bill, generally known as the "Cummins bill," reverses this policy and instead of demanding efficiency penalizes it.

The "Cummins bill," while directing the commission in fixing rates to allow for "a fair return upon the value of the property in the group," adds: "If any carrier shall receive from operation in any year more than a fair return to be determined by the commission upon the value of its property held or used for service in transportation, which may include a just allowance to provide reasonably for future years in which there may be insufficient earnings, the excess above such fair return shall be paid to the board within the first four months of the succeeding year."

It is difficult to conceive how the Interstate Commerce Committee can justify this provision. Rates will be fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and presumably they will be reasonable. A road injures no one if by reason of efficiency it realises a large return from reasonable rates. The purpose of railroad legislation is, or at least should be, to obtain good service and reasonable rates for the shipper and not wantonly to injure the railroads. Justice dictates that efficiency be rewarded, and policy demands that it be encouraged. The rates having been fixed, a railroad corporation is entitled to whatever it can earn.

Irrespective, however, of its injustice to existing railroads, the policy of limiting the return from railroad operations is blind. A vast country such as this cannot develop without railroad facilities. Our railroads are, or at least were at one time, the best in the world, but the system is far from complete. To attain future prosperity railroad construction must proceed from year to year. This calls for the investment of further capital.

The construction of a new railroad is not like other ventures, entered upon after a demand for its service has developed. It is rarely that a section can be commercially developed before railroad service is secured. A railroad is therefore constructed not because a demand for its service exists, but because it is believed that if it is constructed the territory will develop and in time create sufficient business to support the road. The projectors of the road must face the fact that their enterprise will be a losing one until the territory has had time to develop. Whether that territory will develop before the railroad corporation starves is always a question.

The history of our railroad construction is one of failures, receiverships, and reorganizations. To tempt capital into these enterprises, so necessary to the country but so hazardous to the investor, a possibility of large profits must be granted. If railroad investors are to be limited to a fair return, which general discussion indicates will be fixed not far from 6 per cent., it will be impossible to induce capital to accept the hazard of new enterprises when there are many investments that yield more with the element of risk eliminated.

Taking from the railroads all excess earnings over a moderate return may be good politics, but it is bad business.

Age of the Woman Voter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice the newspapers are commenting on the falling off of registration this year over that of last year, even with the return of the boys from "Over There"—especially the fact that fewer women have registered this year than last.

I want to state right now that the latter is entirely due to the fact that all women—no matter what their station in life—resent the fact of giving their ages in public. What possible difference can it make to either party whether a woman is 24, 34, or 54, so long as she is over 21 and therefore of legal voting age?

I registered on Tuesday night last, and in the same line with me were four other women, all residents of the same apartment house in which I live, who never would have, under any circumstances other than those existing at the registration booth, revealed their ages to one another, and here they had to announce in tones sufficiently loud to be heard by all the clerks that Mary Jones was 34 years old, which was in turn repeated by each of individually 24, 34, 54, so that by no possible chance could the fact that Mary Jones was 34 years old have escaped the notice of every man and woman in the room.

Now, Mary Jones, being 34, is clever enough to dress and look like a woman of 24, why in the name of all common sense must she advertise to all her neighbors that she is 34?

I vow and declare right now never again for registration or voting for me, and I know of scores of other women who are of the same opinion.

OCTOBER IN THE SOUTH.

October of the Opals,
'Neath your silver-circled moon,
You have so deceived the roses
That they rally as for June!
You have stolen speech of springtide
To recall a cricket's croon!

October of the Asters,
You would masquerade in gold
And the purple of the Autumn
E'er the cypress vine has told
All its rosary of rubies,
Or the meadow flowers fold!

October of the Orchids,
Shutting for their saffron sleep,
Where the tawny tiger lilies
And gerardia are deep,
There is goldenrod and rock rose,
And the shy blue gentians peep!

October of the Opals,
When the old gods came to part,
Spoke you Flora of the Flowers,
Giving every month her art:
"Child of Change, recall the Summer—
That you help some human heart!"

TO GIVE PLAY IN CHURCHES.

Sunday School Pageant Will Be Part of Episcopal Campaign.

The mystery play of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, given under the direction of the church and usually in the chancel of the edifice, will be revived by the Episcopal Church in connection with the participation of its Sunday Schools in the Nation-wide campaign to expand present church activities and begin new ones at home and abroad.

A modern mystery play, or pageant, is being written by the Rev. George Long, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Warsaw, Ill., author of "The Pageant of the Church," which aroused widespread attention when it was given three years ago at the Episcopal General Convention in St. Louis. The Rev. Gabriel Farrell, Canon of Trinity Cathedral, Newark, N. J., said yesterday it would provide opportunity to present with dramatic vividness the motive of the Nation-Wide Campaign.

The pageant will be presented in the chancel of the churches at the morning services, Nov. 30, the first Sunday in Advent.

The campaign among the Sunday Schools will be divided into the Period of Preparation and the Period of Consecration. The first will open Sunday, Nov. 9, and extend to Sunday, Nov. 23. The Period of Consecration will embrace two Sundays, Nov. 30 and Dec. 7. Weekday sessions will be held at which the pageant will be rehearsed.

WOMEN TO SUPPORT LEAGUE

Council Gives Luncheon for Mrs. Oliver Harriman, First Chairman.

The Woman's Council of the League of Nations held a luncheon in honor of their first Chairman, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, at the Ritz-Carlton yesterday, Columbus Day. Plans were started for the establishment of a headquarters and to obtain the co-operation of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen of Chicago and other leaders of women throughout the country. Nearly all of the guests attending the luncheon made short addresses, in which they welcomed Mrs. Harriman as their leader and upheld the League of Nations.

George Francis Kerr presided. Among the guests were Miss Elisabeth Marbury, just returned from France; Judge Martin T. Manton, Marcel Knecht, Herbert Houston, Judge William H. Wadhams, Lauren Carroll, Mrs. Richard T. Wainwright, Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Clarence Burns, Robert Woods Bliss, Adjutant Irma Hopper, Colonel J. Leslie Kincade, Mrs. William D. Sporborg, Mrs. Jasper Rayne, Mrs. Anna Naughton, Martin Vogel, Mrs. C. Temple Emmet, and Charles Harwood.

CORNELL DRIVE NEXT WEEK.

Graduates Lay Plans to Raise Endowment of $5,000,000.

Cornell graduates prominent in industry, finance, and business circles met yesterday at the headquarters, 60 Pine Street, to effect the covering of New York districts in the Cornell Semi-Centennial Endowment Fund campaign to begin next Monday. The alumni are seeking $5,000,000 to be used as an endowment for use exclusively in raising the salaries of the Faculty.

J. Du Pratt White, the alternate chairman with Walter P. Cooke, said that New York City and State would be looked to for the larger part of the fund, and that the salary of the Cornell professors would be increased from the present average of $3,685 to a minimum of $4,500 if the campaign were successful. He said that the assistant professors would receive a minimum of $3,000 and the instructors $1,800.

HUNTER ALUMNAE TO MEET.

Graduates of College Will Plan Celebration for 50th Anniversary.

A preliminary to the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Hunter College, which will be celebrated in February, will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the chapel of the college at Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street. All alumnae of the institution are requested to be present at this reunion.

Addresses will be made by Bartow S. Weeks, Justice of the Supreme Court; Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt. Musical entertainment and an informal reception will conclude the festivities. Miss Grace B. Beach and Miss B. Elizabeth Kallman head the Arrangements Committee.

AMERICAN MILK IN BERLIN.

Relief Contributions Received from Many Cities Here.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (Associated Press.)—The first delivery of American condensed milk has reached Berlin and will be distributed in accordance with directions from the donors to the systematic "milk cures" for underfed school children.

This relief body has also received funds from New York to send 1,000 tubercular children to Switzerland. Other relief contributions have come from San Francisco, Milwaukee, Rochester, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, Omaha, Portland, and Seattle.

Berlin faces a shortage of 1,000,000 pounds of meat this week, less than one-tenth of the amount contracted for having been delivered. Municipal officials have appealed to the national authorities for help.

THREE HURT IN COLLISION.

Subway Trains in Rear-End Crash at Prospect Avenue.

Three persons were injured, none seriously, yesterday, on the West Farms Division of the subway, when the motorman of an empty southbound train misjudged his stopping distance and ran into the rear end of a train unloading passengers at Prospect Avenue. The jolt threw passengers to the floor, smashed several windows and wrecked the bumper of the empty train.

The injured were: Mrs. Bessie Skoultche, 52 years old, 963 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, bruised leg and shoulder; Mrs. Bessie Benedate, 45, 771 East 213th Street, possible fractured rib; Rubin Horn, 1043 Southern Boulevard, bruised shoulder.

MORAN OUT OF CAMPAIGN.

Doctor Orders Complete Rest for Head of Aldermanic Board.

President Robert L. Moran of the Board of Aldermen will not be able to do any campaigning for his re-election to the office he now holds. He is still in the Lincoln Hospital, where he recently was operated on for acute gangrenous appendicitis. While he is expected to leave the hospital next week his physician said yesterday he must rest until after election.

This order will upset the plans of Tammany leaders, who had arranged for Mr. Moran to make a vigorous personal fight in the next few weeks.

MUST AMERICANIZE ALIENS, SAYS KENYON

COMMITTEE HAS TWO BILLS

Hopes to Report One, or Both, Measures Drafted by Hoke Smith to Educate Foreigners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Senate Committee which, under the chairmanship of Senator Kenyon of Iowa, concluded yesterday a three days' visit to the Pittsburgh steel district, where it investigated the strike situation, returned to Washington this morning, convinced that the time has come for the Americanization of the thousands of non-English-speaking men and women in the great centres of industry in this country. Senator Kenyon says he is convinced that the time has come to make this a "one-language nation."

Two bills having the solution of the foreign language problem and illiteracy in view are now before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, of which Senator Kenyon is the chairman, and it appears certain that one or both of these bills will be reported out of committee unanimously next Thursday. Both of these bills have been drafted by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, the ranking Democratic member of the committee. One would create a department of education, the head of which would be a member of the Cabinet, while the other provides for Federal assistance to the States in the eradication of illiteracy everywhere in the United States and the teaching of the English language and American history to every non-English speaking person in the country.

"I do not at this time desire to discuss," said Senator Kenyon, "the steel strike nor the reasons or causes behind that strike. The committee has not as yet completed its investigations. I believe it permissible to say, however, that the committee returns from the Pittsburgh district strongly in favor of some Americanization bill. I have felt for a long time that Congress must do what it can to help stimulate Americanism. That is a common ground upon which we all can stand, and is a rallying point for all.

"When you find that in some of these mills more than 50 per cent. of the workmen cannot read, write, or speak the English language; when it is necessary in these mill districts to publish orders in many languages, it is time for the American people represented by the American Congress to give determined consideration to some plan of affording those foreign citizens an opportunity to learn what the institutions of America stand for and to be Americanized.

"We saw young fellows who have only a smattering of our tongue who impressed us as splendid material out of which to make American citizens.

"Two bills are now pending before the committee dealing with this question. The committee meets this week to take them up, and I earnestly hope that one or both of them may be reported out of the committee and may be passed by Congress before adjournment. There is no greater question than that of Americanising this nation of ours.

"We cannot become a one-language nation over night, but that should be our goal. It will take some time, but the result will be worth while, for there is a national solidarity in all people of a nation speaking the same language. Eight and one-half million people in this country over ten years of age cannot read, speak, write the English language. To the correction of that condition every citizen should resolve to do his part."

The first of the Smith bills would "promote the education of illiterate persons unable to understand and use the English language, and of other resident persons of foreign birth." It also provides for co-operation on the part of the Federal with the State Governments, "in the education of such persons in the English language, the fundamental principles of government and citizenship, the elements of knowledge pertaining to self-support and homemaking, and in such other work as will assist in preventing illiteracy and fitting foreign-born persons for successful living and intelligent American citizenship."

For the purpose of co-operating with the States in paying the salaries of teachers, supervisors, and directors of the educational work, the bill provides an annual appropriation of $12,500,000 for each fiscal year up to and including that ending June 30, 1926. No State can participate in the appropriation until it has provided by law for not less than 200 hours instruction annually for "all illiterate minors or minors unable to speak, read, or write the English language."

The other Smith bill, which in the opinion of many well-informed Senators comes nearer meeting the problem, is one which creates a department of education. To the new department would be transferred the various existing Federal educational organizations. For the support of the department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, it would appropriate $500,000, while "in order to encourage the States in the promotion and support of education" it would appropriate for the present fiscal year the sum of $100,000,000. Three-fourths of this amount would be used for the instruction of illiterates of 10 years and over, the instruction to "deal with the common-school branches and the duties of citizenship, and when advisable shall prepare for some definite occupation."

This section of the bill refers to native and not foreign-born illiterates, but Section 9 of the proposed law provides that "in order to encourage the States in the Americanization of immigrants, three-fortieths of the sum authorized to be appropriated shall be used to teach immigrants ten years of age and over to speak and read the English language and to understand and appreciate the spirit and purpose of the American Government and the duties of citizenship in a free country."

The bill further provides that five-tenths of the sum authorized shall be appropriated for the partial payment of teachers' salaries, for providing better instruction, extending school terms, &c., especially in rural schools and in schools in sparsely settled localities.

JAPANESE LABOR FERMENT.

Delegate to Washington Said to Represent Capital, Not the Workers.

TOKIO, Oct. 7, (Associated Press.)—A clamor of protest has broken out in Japanese labor circles against the alleged interference by the Government with the selection of the representatives from the ranks of labor to go with the other Japanese delegates to the International Labor Congress at Washington, sailing on the Fushimi Maru on Oct. 8. The labor interests contend that the convention held for the selection of the labor delegates was packed and dominated by the capitalistic interests, and that thus the voice of Japanese labor will not be heard at Washington.

In the present labor agitation mass meetings have been held demanding the eight-hour day and the abolishment of night work, the gatherings being addressed by miners, by women workers with their babies on their backs, and by girl workers.

ASSAIL LOCAL HEADS OF PRINTING UNIONS

SEND APPEAL TO GOMPERS

Employers Ready to Meet Compositors in an Effort to Settle Controversy.

While no further steps were taken yesterday by the employers or the local union officials toward the settlement of the pressmen's strike or the cessation of the "vacations" of the typesetters, it was said that in the case of the typesetters an agreement might be reached with the employers within a short time. The situation was complicated, however, by an appeal to President Gompers from the International officers of the pressmen's, typographers', and stereotypers and electrotypers' unions asking that the Central Federated Union of New York be compelled to rescind its resolutions of sympathy with the seceding unions of New York passed at a meeting last Friday, and that upon failure to do so its charter be revoked.

A meeting of the Printers' League will be held in the Hotel Astor at 10 o'clock this morning. It is expected that, in pursuance of the resolutions passed by the typographers on Sunday, they will ask for a conference later in the week and that an agreement will be reached.

The letter to Samuel Gompers is signed by William H. McHugh, Vice President of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America; Marsden G. Scott, President of the International Typographical Union, and James J. Freel, President of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union. The letter opens with a reference to the action of the Central Federated Union as "a flagrant and deliberate defiance of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor through the adoption of resolutions calculated to give moral support to the outlawed seceding local printing trade unions which have openly defied the authority of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union."

"We, therefore," continues the letter, "suggest that no extended arguments are necessary to substantiate this protest. We urge that the officers of the American Federation of Labor take immediate steps to compel the Central Federated Union of New York City to recognize the authority of the Executive Council.

"We further urge the Executive Council to demand the immediate and unqualified withdrawal by the Central Federated Union of the resolution adopted by its delegates on Friday evening, and that its action in rescinding these resolutions be given publicity through the usual channels.

"We demand that the Central Federated Union be directed to immediately oust from that body each and every delegate from any and all of the outlawed seceding printing trades unions.

"We further suggest that the failure or refusal of the Central Federated Union to immediately recognize the authority of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in this controversy shall be followed by the revocation of the charter of the Central Federated Union of New York City."

The attitude of the employers was expressed yesterday by F. A. Silcox, representing the Labor Committee of the Printers' League. "As soon as the typographers make a request for a conference," he said, "we shall be ready to meet them. Judging from the resolutions they passed on Sunday, that is evidently their intention. When a formal request is sent in writing to the Labor Committee, action will be taken. If they follow their former custom we shall be able to get around a table and discuss matters. At the meeting tomorrow the general situation will be discussed, but the specific matter of labor adjustment will be left to the Labor Committee."

The Dry Goods Economist has been published this week by the use of the mimeograph. There are ninety-six pages, and copies to supply a circulation of more than 13,000 have been turned out by hand. In a foreword the publication says:

"Last week the editor told you that for seventy-three years the Dry Goods Economist has never missed an issue, and that we are not going to start now. He was right. We are going to get that Economist message to you every week if we have to write it in long hand, and we are going to make that message as complete as mechanical limitations will permit.

"If this issue looks like a joke, it is but the reflection of the fun we have had in planning and publishing it, and when you have looked into it you will find the milk is in the cocoanut despite the funny face carved on the shell."

P. Ladouze, Rector of the University of Louvain, Belgium, in a letter addressed to the Executive Committee of the National Committee of the United States for the restoration of the University of Louvain, expressed his thanks to the American public for the cooperation and support they are giving in the raising of $500,000 for the rebuilding of that library, which will probably be rebuilt as a historical museum.

The Society of American Singers opened its third New York season at the Park Theatre last night with Suppe's light opera, "Boccaccio." This company, which first appeared two years ago and won a whole season's run and a definite success last year, put on the opera of last night with a zest and spirit that came with the knowledge that the thing it has tried to do can be done and in New York. The company was for the most part the principals of last year's long run, but the opera itself was better done and the total effect better than was frequently attained last year. The fact that the American Singers offer the public right opera classics that the public otherwise would not hear at all is their good and sufficient reason for being. And last night's performance went considerably beyond that with merit and praiseworthy effort on many sides.

"Boccaccio" is a woman's opera. Last night it was Miss Cora Tracy's. If a woman must play a man's part, as was thought until Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan taught the English theatre differently, where could one find a "better man" than Miss Tracy? Her handsome figure and good voice dominated the performance in the rôle of the great teller of stories. Miss Ruth Miller was the famous Fiametta, that lady "tutto splendido" of face, as Boccaccio calls her, with a weight of golden hair, eyes like a falcon's. It must be said that Miss Miller did not do all with the rôle that she might have done, and was at times not sure of herself. Among the men Morton Adkins, baritone of the Century Theatre English opera days, was conspicuous as the Prince of Palermo, with Craig Campbell, a spirited if a little husky Leonetto. The comedy, grown a little musty with the years, but still capable of calling out the laughter from the audience, the librettists long since turned to dust intended, was in the hands of William Danforth, Frank Moulin, and Bertram Peacock. Gladys Caldwell and Kate Condon were two shrewish wives and intrigues who helped along the plot to a new success.

But in all these old light operas (excluding, of course, the ever green works of Gilbert and Sullivan) the music is the thing, and "Boccaccio" contains much that is delightful, as the world has known these many years. Certain cuts and changes were made last night by Director John McGhie. For some reason it was thought necessary to insert Gounod's valse from "Mereille," a "Mattinata," by Leoncavallo, and a song by Mr. McGhie himself, called "Call Me." They fit into the scheme of things well enough, and like Suppe's own favorites were excellently played by the large orchestra.

$1,500,000 STARTS DRIVE.

"Mr. Smith," Donor of Millions to Massachusetts Tech, May Tell Name

At a meeting of the New York Endowment Fund Committee, at the Technology Club, 17 Gramercy Park, last night, Coleman du Pont presiding, President R. C. MacLaurin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, announced that $1,500,000 had been subscribed toward the $8,000,000 endowment fund similar to that raised by Harvard and Princeton Universities. The drive started last night.

"Mr. Smith," the anonymous donor of $7,000,000 to the institute, has agreed to give $4,000,000 to the fund if $3,000,000 is pledged by Jan. 1, 1920. In addition to this, if $4,000,000 is raised by Jan. 1, "Mr. Smith" has promised to reveal his name.

J. P. Morgan, Henry Clay Frick, J. M. Longyear, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., Charles M. Schwab, and the Guggenheim family have many times been mentioned as possibilities in speculation as to the actual identity of "Mr. Smith."

THE REV. LEO KOENIG DIES IN HIS SLEEP

Pastor of St. Paul's German Lutheran Church for 40 Years Expires at 75 Years.

The Rev. Leo Koenig, for forty years pastor of St. Paul's German Lutheran Church, now at 313 West Twenty-second Street, formerly at Fifteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, died yesterday presumably of heart disease while taking a nap in the middle of the day at his home, 80 West Twelfth Street.

He was born in Frankfort-on-Oder, Germany, 75 years ago, studied first at Halle and Erlangen, and then came to this country at the age of 22. He attended the Mount Airy Seminary near Philadelphia. Not only was the Rev. Mr. Koenig's tenure of the pastorate of this church an unusually long one in New York church history, but it was marked by growth and prosperity of the parish. The rector was responsible for the change in the location of the church, and he succeeded in selling the old light opera classics that the public otherwise would not hear at all is their good property for a sum that paid all the expenses of the removal and left an endowment fund of $50,000 in the treasury of the parish.

The commission arrived here this morning and was received by city officials and prominent men, including ex-Ambassador William G. Sharp.

Only 80 of 227 with More Than 30,000 Population Had Surplus in 1918.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Expenditures of the 227 American cities of more than 30,000 population for the fiscal year of 1918 exceeded revenues by $48,600,930, or $1.42 per capita, according to a report by the Bureau of the Census today.

In the report, Sam L. Rogers, Director of the Census, shows that only eighty of the 227 cities had excess of revenues over their expenditures, the excess totaling $22,323,060, or $1.60 per capita, while for the remaining 147 cities expenditures exceeded revenues by $70,923,990, or $3.48 per capita. Among the cities in which revenues exceeded all expenditures are New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Washington, Portland and Denver.

Except for revenues derived from the general property tax, the liquor traffic is shown by the report to have been the largest single item of taxes, totaling $30,576,883, though smaller by $1,398,000 than the sum reported for the fiscal year 1917.

The entire indebtedness of the 227 cities amounted to $2,661,451,218, or $77.53 per capita.

Uses Wooden Leg as a Weapon.

In a fight early yesterday morning in a restaurant at 5,307 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, a customer took off his wooden leg and hit the waiter, James Toulas, 23 years old, over the head with it and then, according to the police, ran away. He has not been found. Toulas, who lives over the restaurant, was treated for laceration of the scalp in the Norwegian Hospital.

This Indestructible Guide Will Speed Up Your Files.

100,000 More This Year

THIS shows the rapidly growing appreciation of the Maxwell.

A desire for a car that has proved its worth in many latitudes and many longitudes.

A liking for the long run the tires give, for the definite and extended mileage from gas and oil.

A fondness for a car that expresses reliability in a most decisive way.

This year, more than any before, the 300,000 idea behind the Maxwell has increased in public favor.

And as a result less than 60% of those seeking a Maxwell will be able to have one.

100,000—one-third as many as are in existence today—are being built this year. That means one every 1½ minutes of the working day.

These new post war features, which have classified it as the Post-War Maxwell, are well spoken of everywhere. That's but one reason why the drift is towards Maxwell.

Compare it point for point with any car under $1200 and you will more readily understand

Bill, Jim, Joe, John and Henry—and Five Tire Mileages

Bill, Jim, Joe, John and Henry are five drivers for five trucks for the A. R. Purdy Company, Inc., 125 Christopher St., New York City, manufacturers of cold rolled, high speed and carbon steel products. All clean cut, conscientious chaps—every last one of them; but each having his little "knack" of driving.

Bill puts on the brakes going down hill—Joe slips into "second" and so on.

Yet, with all the human element present, with five hard-working drivers driving five hard-working trucks laden with dead-weight steel 100 miles daily to Bridgeport, Perth Amboy, Newark, Paterson and Orange, note the uniformity of service delivered by Goodrich De Luxe Truck Tires on these five Purdy Trucks:

Mileage to Date:

No. 1.	5-tons.	37,000 Miles	Per Tire.
No. 8.	5-tons.	28,000 Miles	Per Tire.
No. 2.	5-tons.	33,000 Miles	Per Tire.
No. 3.	2-tons.	36,000 Miles	Per Tire.
No. 4.	2-tons.	30,000 Miles	Per Tire.

And all tires still capable of further service!

Put these consistently high-mileage tires on your truck. And don't neglect to specify them on your new model!

BIG CITIES JOIN TURKISH REVOLT

Broussa and Adrianople in Kemal's Movement, Which Is Spreading Everywhere.

NATIONALIST LEADER TALKS

Thinks Great Britain Has Designs on Asia Minor and Says He Will Fight.

WILL RESPECT ARMENIANS

Heeds President Wilson's Warning to Stop Massacres and Looks to America for Help.

ATHENS, Oct. 16.—A dispatch from Constantinople announces that Broussa, the ancient capital of the Turkish Sultans and only fifty-seven miles from Constantinople, has adhered to the Nationalist movement.

Adrianople, the most important town in European Turkey next to Constantinople, has also thrown in its lot with the Nationalists.

SIVAS, Asiatic Turkey, Sept. 21, by Courier, (Associated Press.)—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, head of the Nationalist Turkish Government recently set up in Asia Minor, has informed the correspondent of The Associated Press that the new Government has issued orders to respect the Armenians and deplores earlier Armenian massacres.

The Kurds are all eager to have the United States assume a mandate for Armenia.

American Mission Well Received.

The mission of Major Gen. Harbord, which the correspondent accompanied, arrived at Sivas after a fortnight's trip along the railroad, 1,100 miles from Constantinople through Konieh, Adana, and Aleppo to Mardin on the Bagdad Railway, and an automobile ride of 250 miles north and east through Kurdistan and Armenia, stopping at Diarbekr, Malatia, and Sivas. The trip was marked by no hostile attitude on the part of bandits, and cordial receptions were accorded the mission all along the route.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader who called the congress of delegates which has broken with the Government at Constantinople, said in his interview with the correspondent of The Associated Press:

"We have just received news of the note of President Wilson to the Sultan, regarding future attacks on Armenians. The Nationalists regard the whole business of the Armenian massacre as a regrettable affair, of which time will show the causes. We will certainly comply with the wishes of President Wilson. We have ordered our organization to respect the Armenians."

Nationalists express the belief that the British are seeking the remnants of the Turkish Empire, having previously acquired Egypt, Arabia, and Mesopotamia. In explanation of their opposition to the British, Mustapha Kemal said:

"The Nationalists recognize the necessity of the aid of an impartial and benevolent foreign country. It is our aim to secure the development of Turkey as she stood at the time of the armistice. We have no expansionist plans. It is our conviction that Turkey can be made rich and prosperous if we get a good Government. Our Government has been weakened through foreign interference and intrigues.

"After all our experience we are sure that America is the only country able to help us. We guarantee that no new Turkish violences against the Armenians shall take place.

"It is not true that we are working with Enver Pasha, (former War Minister). We believe that his policies injured Turkey. We do not know his whereabouts, but it is rumored that he is with the Russian Bolsheviki. I saw a letter in which he stated that he was going to form a new independent Moslem Government, possibly at Azerbaijan.

"It is not true that the Nationalists, supported by Anglo-French capitalists, are seeking to preserve their investments in Turkey. British money has been sent here to destroy Turkey. We are aware that the British gave £150,000 to Adeel Bey, former President of the Association of Turkish Friends in England, £80,000 to the Governor of Konieh, and perhaps a larger sum to the Governor of Angoria."

Place Hope In America.

Raouf Bey, former Minister of Marine, who is known in the United States, said to The Associated Press correspondent: "America is our only hope, otherwise we will fight it out."

The Nationalists claim to control 40,000 troops, but others say this is improbable. Ten thousand troops in Northern Armenia are said to be returning on account of the food supplies, but it is asserted they are not menacing the Armenians.

Apparently the Nationalists do not wish to dethrone the Sultan but are seeking to bring about conferences with his advisers. They have apparently made up their minds in case it is decided to permit the present Armenian Government to continue, not to oppose the grant to Armenia of sufficient territory to insure the formation of a prosperous state with a port on the Black Sea, instead of isolating it behind impossible boundaries.

Some of the Armenians, on the other hand, lay claim to the territory from Erivan, in the Russian Caucasus, to Adana, east of the Mediterranean, but others, recognizing the impossibility of securing the territory to organize such a state, suggest abandoning the idea of reconstituting ancient Armenia.

A variety of solutions for the Armenian question have been suggested along the route taken by the mission.

Americans who have long lived in Turkey disagree as to the feasibility of Armenian independence. The Rev. H. N. Long, in charge of the American College in Kharput, said:

"Until six months ago I believed in an independent Armenia; but now positively not. I regard a single mandate for the former empire as best, in which the Armenians by native intelligence may forge ahead. If a new Armenia were formed there would remain the insoluble race problem with the Turks, who are in the majority. Also, it would be natural for the Armenians to attempt vengeance for old wrongs."

General Harbord's progress has been facilitated by the posts of the American Commission for Relief in the Near East, whose agents, men and women, are courageously occupying dangerous isolated positions and doing what General Harbord termed civilizing work under nearly hopeless conditions, conducting schools, hospitals and workrooms, and caring for thousands of orphans and widows.

The crops are reported to be in fair condition, but the country is suffering from lack of a stable government, and the need of medicines, clothing and soap is great.

The members of the mission are leaving here today for Erzingan, Erzerum and Erivan, where they strike the railroad to Tiflis.

It is too early to anticipate the recommendations which the mission will make to the American Delegation at the Peace Conference on the subject of Armenia. The members of the mission have been accumulating voluminous notes on various details of the problem.

The statement of Mustapha Kemal on the "note of President Wilson to the Sultan" apparently refers to the warning conveyed through Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, Commander of the United States Naval forces in Turkish waters, that massacres of Armenians must cease. The United States in this action, which was taken during the second half of August, did not attempt to speak for the Peace Conference but conveyed the warning directly and informally to the representative of the Sultan.

Major Gen. Harbord and the mission, having completed their tour through Turkish and Russian Armenia at Tiflis, returned to Constantinople last week. Major Gen. Harbord is now on his way to Paris, where he is expected to arrive tomorrow to make his report to the American peace delegation. The dispatch of the correspondent from Sivas was received only after considerable delay, owing to the remoteness of this town in the centre of Asia Minor and the necessity of a long vehicle and railroad journey by courier to bring it to a centre whence it could be telegraphed.

ASKS AMERICAN TROOPS FOR SILESIA PLEBISCITE

Supreme Council Wants to Know if We Will Take Part in Overseeing Vote to Fix Boundaries.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—At a meeting of the Supreme Council today America's representative was asked if the United States intends to furnish its quota of troops to take part in the occupation, pending the plebiscites, in Silesia, Schleswig, Mimel, and possibly Dantzig. In accordance with the terms of the treaty these allied troops must be dispatched within a few days after the treaty with Germany comes into effect. With the probability that the treaty will come into effect Friday of this week the United States must move quickly if she intends to send troops for this purpose.

The English and French diplomats understand that President Wilson agreed that American troops should share part of this burden. It was announced by the War Department two months ago that two regiments of infantry were about to be despatched to Coblentz to be held for this very duty. Orders were received by Major General Allen, commanding the American forces in Germany, to prepare barracks for these forces. This was done, but the barracks remain unoccupied for the reason that the troops never left America.

The French have assigned troops at Mayence for this plebiscite duty and the English are holding their quota at Cologne. It is the opinion of the American delegation that the United States should take part in this occupation despite the fact that it has not ratified the treaty. The delegation regards this work as a part of the duties of war and not of peace. But inasmuch as the delegation has not got the troops it can not supply them. Therefore Chairman Polk of the American delegation has asked Washington for instructions in the matter.

To insure a fair deal it is necessary, according to the Supreme Council, that the allied troops oversee the plebiscite elections in the disputed territory and, therefore, whether or not the United States supplies a part of the forces, Allied troops will be sent to the territories affected within a short time after the treaty comes into effect.

RIDER HAGGARD WARNS ON PREVENTED BIRTHS

Sees the West Submerged Under Eastern Hordes—Suggests State Might Subsidize Motherhood.

LONDON, Oct. 13, (via Montreal).—Sir Rider Haggard, giving evidence before the National Birth Rate Commission, dwelt on the dangers of artificially keeping down births, which is now widespread in every western nation, he said, except perhaps Russia and Germany.

He was of the opinion that unless a startling change occurred the western races within two centuries would be submerged beneath a great new influx from the teeming myriads of the East.

Sir Rider doubted the effectiveness of appealing to the conscience of the empire to stop this race suicide, but thought that the State might stamp out diseases that were seriously affecting the race, and also subsidize motherhood. As a last desperate resort, the State, he urged, could directly or indirectly bring up all children, even holding out a kind hand to those not born in wedlock.

REPLACING TROOPS IN HAITI.

1,200 Men of the Marine Corps to be Demobilized by Jan. 1.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—More than 1,200 men of the Marine Corps serving in Haiti and San Domingo, who enlisted for the period of the war, will be brought back to the United States and demobilized before Jan. 1.

Secretary Daniels said today replacements were being provided as rapidly as recruits could be obtained and trained, and that the southward movement now was about 400 men a month.

Two Die from Gasoline Explosion.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Oct. 13.—Charles T. Miller, an ex-soldier, died today as a result of an explosion of gasoline fumes in a potato cellar under a wagon house on the farm of John R. Miller, his father, of Fairfield Station, Saturday. Charles H. Miller, the grandfather, was overcome by the fumes. His grandson went to his assistance and struck a match. The explosion followed. The grandfather died yesterday.

Clemenceau to Leave Cabinet After the French Elections

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Premier Georges Clemenceau has told a number of Deputies that he has made up his mind to leave the Cabinet after the coming elections.

The Premier, speaking on the controversy which has arisen over the Government's plan to hold elections for the Chamber of Deputies in advance of those for the Senate, is quoted as saying he knew fresh onslaughts were being planned against him with the object of bringing on a debate on the Cabinet's general policy.

M. Clemenceau said such a debate would be useless, and that he would refuse to be made a party to it, adding he would enter into no explanation of the future policy of the Cabinet, which would necessarily go out of office with him.

TELLS OF HIS HOPES OF RESTORING YOUTH

Dr. Voronoff Believes a Promising Start Has Been Made in Experiments on Goats.

SEES NO DANGER IN TESTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—I have interviewed Dr. Serge Voronoff, whose claims to have attained amazing results in experiments having for their object the restoration of youth and the prolongation of human life have aroused world wide interest. Voronoff, who is the director of the Physiological Laboratory of the College de France, is a very tall and robust looking man just over the forties.

He has been bombarded in the last few days with letters and telegrams from England and America, especially. All sorts of people ask him for details concerning his discovery and some even demand to be treated immediately.

"This is going a little too fast," the doctor remarked with a smile. "I have not the elixir ready for sale in bottles yet, but I must say I have obtained promising results." I asked the doctor to tell me the history of his discovery.

"It is quite simple," he replied. "In the human body we have glands which secrete liquids controlling the leading organs. Some control the heart, others the brain. This is the case with the thyroid gland or the adams apple, while there are some which control the general strength and vigor in the body.

"When you take these glands out of a living body the organs they control stop working. For instance, take the thyroid gland out of a man and his brain will cease to work and he will become an idiot. If you take out the interstitial glands that form part of one of man's principal organs his ordinary strength diminishes and he becomes more and more feeble. So I thought that the grafting of new interstitial glands on an old body might restore vigor to it.

"I studied this question of glands for many years, and in the case of the thyroid gland I grafted one from a monkey on a boy of 14 who had none and was an idiot. This was in 1914, and it proved such a success that in a few years the boy was in a normal condition and found fit for the army in 1917.

"So I decided on similar experiments with interstitial glands. I conducted these on rams and he-goats. I have 120 of these animals in the lands surrounding my laboratory at Neuilly. Here is a photograph of one of these animals taken before the experiment was made."

The doctor showed me a photograph of a he-goat of 15 years, which corresponds to about 70 years for a human being.

"He was a decrepit animal which could hardly stand, and was about to die," said the doctor.

"On May 7, 1918, I grafted on him interstitial glands which I took from a healthy young he-goat. Two months later the animal appeared young and vigorous again.

"Then I removed one day all the interstitial glands I had grafted, and a few weeks afterward the goat became old again and lost his vigor. On May 7 of this year I again grafted interstitial glands on him, and within two months the animal was young once more. I think that this is a very conclusive experiment."

I asked the surgeon: "Have you applied your discovery to men?"

"No," he said, "not yet, but I am going to do so. Grafting can only be made with beings of the same species, but with men it is a rather difficult question, as in this case you cannot remove the source of vigor from a young man for the sake of making an old man young, but it is possible to use monkeys, as physiologically they are akin to men."

"But," I asked, "if you graft a monkey's interstitial glands in the body of a man, will the man become a monkey?"

The Doctor laughed and replied:

"I expected your remark. It would not be the case at all. The interstitial glands in a monkey's or a man's body form only a part of the organ and can be easily separated from it, so I would only take these glands and introduce them into a man's body without harming him."

"May I put another question?" I said. "What about women?"

Dr. Voronoff replied, smiling:

"The question of woman will be studied, but not for the present. The experiments I have conducted on she-goats by grafting on them interstitial glands did not prove a success at all. I am going to make experiments on men first. We cannot regenerate the whole world at once."

In reference to the reports from France that Dr. Serge Voronoff's researches were based on a series of experiments at the Rockefeller Institute in 1910, the institute states that Dr. Voronoff is unknown to its officers and staff and has never worked there in any capacity.

LYNAR IN SING SING CELL.

"Count Loudon," Who Jumped Bail, Begins Serving Sentence.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Oct. 13.—Sing Sing officials announced today that Max Lynar, alias "Count Loudon," who was sentenced in New York County ten days ago, had arrived to serve three years and six months. Lynar, it is declared, promoted war swindles which are said to have netted him more than $1,000,000 for three years before he finally landed in prison. For selling thousands of dollars' worth of spurious stock of a fictitious corporation to equip the Austrian army to Edward Delaney of New Windsor he was indicted, but jumped $10,000 bail. His present sentence is for forgery.

Prison officials also announced that Alessandro Vollero, a death house murderer, who recently obtained a rehearing of the charge that he shot Charles Umbrigco and another gangster in Brooklyn, had been taken back to the city.

CONZ GOES TO SHORE TODAY

Atlantic City Will Entertain Italian Rear Admiral.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 13.—A special train will bring here tomorrow Rear Admiral Ugo Conz of the Italian dreadnought Conte di Cavour, now visiting Philadelphia; twenty petty officers, and fifty sailors from the battleship.

The party will be accompanied by a band. The Admiral will be met at the station by the Morris Guards and a Reception Committee headed by Mayor Bacharach. In line will be several Italian organizations and many Italian residents, who will escort the Admiral to his hotel.

At 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the Rear Admiral will deliver an address in front of the City Hall. At 7 o'clock a dinner will be given to him at the Ambassador Hotel.

King Albert Breakfasts on Mountain After Vigorous Walk in Early Morning

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 13.—King Albert of Belgium breakfasted this morning on a mountain overlooking the Pacific. He started at 5:30 o'clock with a few sleepy-eyed members of his suite and drove to one of the heights near the city. He tramped about the hillside while breakfast was being prepared and worked up a good appetite.

After the visit to the mountain, which seems to have made a deep impression on his Majesty, and which he never tired of exploring, the party drove back to the home of William H. Bliss, where he received members of the Southern California Press Association. His Majesty was made a member of the organization and presented with a gold membership card. He responded briefly to an address welcoming him to the State and to the association, expressing his appreciation of the honor.

Later in the day the King planted a tree in one of the city parks and then took a horseback ride. Both the King and Queen Elizabeth are delighted with California. His Majesty visited most of the hotels here yesterday and inspected the kitchens. While driving about the city he decided he could not delve any earlier into the delights of the ice cream soda and strode into a drug store, where he had his first experience with a typically American drink. He seemed to enjoy it.

The Queen and Countess de Caraman-Chimay, her lady in waiting, also did some mountain tramping this morning, but went by themselves and did not run across the King's party. Her Majesty has evinced a keen interest in the gardens in the vicinity, and has asked so many questions about trees, shrubs, plants, and crops that a gardener has been placed at her disposal to impart the desired information. She took him motoring in the seat beside her about the city, keeping up a steady volume of questions.

The royal special left at 10 o'clock tonight for San Francisco, and will arrive there at 10 A. M., tomorrow, where the party will make a twelve-hour visit. One of the features of the stay there, to which the party is looking forward, is a telephone chat with New York. Eighteen lines will be placed at their disposal. The King will talk with Pierre Malt, Belgian Consul General.

Luther Burbank has been summoned to San Francisco to meet the Queen. She was eager to visit his experimental farm, but it was found inexpedient, because of the distance. Her Majesty has many questions she is eager to ask Mr. Burbank.

The King's trains will arrive at El Portal at 7:30 A. M. Wednesday for a two days' stay in Yosemite National Park. The Belgians will motor through the National Park, take horseback rides and have basket picnics. They will leave El Portal at 6 P. M. Thursday and arrive in Los Angeles at 9:30 o'clock the following morning for a three-hour stay.

Later in the day the sun came out brightly and the King went bathing again at Miramar. As he left the beach he sighted two kiddies wearing the Belgian colors and leaned far over to shake their hands.

This afternoon his Majesty had a long gallop over the mountain roads on Uhlan, the famous racehorse owned by C. K. G. Billings. It was his first horseback ride since he came to this country.

The Queen rested several hours in preparation for the long trip back across the continent.

ITALY TO RESORT TO FORCED LOAN

First Measure of Kind in Country's History Causes Perturbation Throughout the Nation.

WAR DEBT $20,000,000,000

All Persons Possessing Capital Exceeding $4,000 Will Be Affected by the Levy.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 13.—Much anxiety is expressed in all quarters here at the imminent issue of a forced loan—the first measure of this kind in Italy's history—which touches every one who possesses capital exceeding $4,000 calculated at par.

This amount represents nothing in these days of high cost of living, therefore the loan strikes even families of very limited means who cannot afford any decrease in their capital, the more so as the proportion of the forced contribution to the loan rises rapidly from 5 per cent. for capital above $4,000 to a percentage of 40 on a relative small amount.

Fear is being expressed that the populations of Southern Italy, where diffidence about investing money is still great, will hide their savings, frightened at the prospect of the loan, and thus keep large sums out of circulation.

Land owners must contribute according to the value of their land, but many who do not possess ready money will have to sell their properties, and as many land owners will be forced to do the same, there will be a great quantity of property thrown on the market with inevitable depreciation, leading to a disastrous crisis.

The great industrial owners will be forced to pay several millions or, to be more exact, almost half their capital, which will oblige many unable to stand such expense to close their factories, leaving thousands of workmen unemployed. A commission of them went to the Premier to place their situation before him and asked him to mitigate the provisions of the loan. Representatives of the Stock Exchange, where the announcement of the loan caused a panic, also protested to Signor Nitti.

The fear throughout the country is that the forced loan will have the effect of driving manufacturers to foreign countries, while foreign investors will refuse to place their money where such unforeseen blows occur. The Government, on the other hand, points out that a forced loan is the only way of escape from the impossible financial situation. The war debt amounts to about $20,000,000,000 and the resources of the country are absolutely inadequate to provide interest on such an enormous sum. The forced loan is expected to bring in from $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000, and Italy hopes to obtain about the same amount as war, indemnity and so be able to reduce the war debt by half, which will render the collection of interest through taxation more tolerable.

HARDWARE MEN TO MEET.

American Manufacturers See Need for Solving Labor Problems.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 13.—There will be no more important matter to come before the convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers' Association, which will open at the Marlborough Blenheim tomorrow, than the vexing problem of the relations between employers and employes in American industries.

The hardware manufacturers, however, will call upon organized labor to clarify its terms. For instance, the convention will ask for a definition of the term "living wage," or "adequate wages," as it sometimes is phrased. It is the sentiment of this convention that some of the statements or slogans that at times lead workmen to strike are sheer folly. They will make an effort in their industry to clarify the situation in the hope of effecting a better understanding between the managers and operatives in the hardware trade.

The hardware trade, as well as other industries, is feeling the stress of the labor situation. Its output has decreased, and when asked today if there is any hope of a reduction in prices, at least among the household articles of the trade, a prominent delegate here said that he feared that present prices would prevail indefinitely.

Many manufacturers hold that, speaking in general terms, there is in American industry today twice the wages and only 60 per cent. of the efficiency of pre-war times.

Among other subjects that will be considered by the convention will be the foreign trade and reconstruction problems. Manufacturers of automobile accessories met here today preparatory to the meeting of the hardware men tomorrow.

RIFT IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOT LIKELY

Prayer Book Revision Will Probably Be Delayed Until 1922.

MISSION BOARD REPORTS

Bishop Wise of Kansas Says Rented-Pew System Causes Class Distinction and Should End.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 13.—The possibility of a breach among the dioceses making up the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, because of the Prayer Book revision controversy in the Triennial General Convention here, seemed lessened at the close of today's sessions, when it became known that it is unlikely that the issue will be reached during the present convention.

Not because of the strong objections to the proposed changes made by Southern deputies, under the leadership of those from the three Virginia dioceses, but because of press of other business, delegates believe the main points in the controversy will not be reached before the next convention in 1922. By that time it is hoped an agreement will be reached.

Bishop William A. Guerry of South Carolina today made strenuous objections to the request of the Board of Missions that it be permitted to co-operate in the inter-church world movement in America.

The convention received the report of the Board of Missions, showing contributions for the last three years of $4,548,299.09. The budget estimates for domestic mission work for 1919 totaled $1,127,828. For continental domestic missions $859,705, an increase of $600,000, was asked.

At a meeting tonight under the auspices of the Church League for Social and Industrial Democracy, Bishop James Wise of Kansas declared that the problem of capital and labor was not primarily a problem of hours and wages, but of human relationship, and that the church must help create a new relationship. The church was the common meeting ground of employer and employe, and therefore the "rented pew system," causing a "class distinction," must come to an end.

BOY'S CLUE AIDS POLICE.

Son of Store Owner Gets License Number of Holdup Men's Car.

Harry Helf, John Daly, Philip Brooks, Thomas Holland, and Frederick Hoffman were arraigned before Magistrate Huth in Yorkville Court yesterday and held in $5,000 bail each on a charge of robbery. Mrs. Louise Helf, wife of Harry Helf, arraigned at the same time, was discharged.

According to the police, the five men with four others robbed the restaurant of Frank Majdon at 317 East Seventy-fourth Street on Sunday night. The son of the proprietor noted the license number of their machine and yesterday Policeman James J. Matthews of the Arsenal Station saw a machine bearing the same number going up the West Drive in Central Park. He commandeered another car and arrested Helf and the others.

Henry Soto, a young Porto Rican cigar maker, was going along Fifth Avenue, near Thirty-fourth Street, early yesterday morning when a young woman asked him to open a door for her. As Soto entered a hallway, five men beat him and took his watch and $396. James Carter and Clarence Leon Hunter, negroes, were arrested charged with the holdup. They were held in $2,000 bail each for trial.

When he resisted an attempt by three men to hold him up in his saloon, at 226 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, Peter Hintze was shot in the right leg. The men obtained $30 from the cash register and escaped.

Walter McManus, an actor, of 220 East Thirtieth Street, and William McCarthy of 297 Avenue C, were before Magistrate Sweetser in the West Farms Court yesterday charged with homicide. They were held without bail for examination on Thursday. The men were accused of being implicated in the shooting and killing of Sidney Seylock, a North Pelham bartender, in a saloon at Webster Avenue and 175th Street on Oct. 4. Both men denied the charge.

This date was set by the committee today for hearing on Government appeals from Federal Court decrees quashing indictments brought under the statute against the Standard Brewing Company of Baltimore, Md.

The child's four grandfather, and Mr. and Mrs. Lefayette ming, and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Young, the six great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flemming and J. R. BABY 'BILLY' DANCEY IS SOUGHT IN VAIN

Forty Volunteers Search Woods, Cranberry Bogs, and Fields Without Finding Him.

GYPSIES DID NOT HAVE HIM

Detectives Go to Pittsburgh, Mother's Former Home, to Trace Possible Enemy.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 13.—Though forty volunteers today continued the neighborhood search for "Billy" Dancey, the 30 months' old baby who has been missing from his home six days, more reliance now is being placed in the activities of detectives who are looking further afield for the child. One of these has gone to Pittsburgh, Mrs. Dancey's former home, in the hope of learning whether she had any enemy there who might have caused the child to be abducted. In response to appeals by the authorities of this town to the Governors of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a police watch in both States is being kept for the baby.

One clue was dissipated today when searchers visited a gypsy camp where, it was reported, a child resembling the Dancey boy was being held. A child resembling him was found there, but he belonged with the gypsies and was not "Billy," whose real name is George W. Dancey. Philadelphia's police have been notified of a woman seen to alight from a train there, and detectives are following up a letter from a woman alleging that she "knows where the child is." The authorities fear, however, that at present they are doing the inevitable preliminary work of running down vague rumors, wild clues, and the communications of persons of the types always moved to send letters in connection with such a case.

This description of the boy was sent broadcast today:

Although he will not be three years old until Christmas, the boy looks a year older, as he is sturdy and very intelligent. He has light hair, large hazel eyes, and a brown mole on his right breast. When last seen he wore a blue romper, brown sweater, gray baseball cap with narrow stripes, and moccasins. When asked his name he replies: "Billy Pittsburgh."

The search of woods, cranberry bogs, and fields is without ended, without the yielding of anything positive. A club believed to have been carried by one of the tramps who, some persons think, lured the child away, was found today, but was not particularly helpful. Every effort is being made to follow the unusually narrow wheel tracks of the buggy or other conveyance in which these tramps are believed to have driven away from the little red house in the woods not far from the boy's home in which some neighbors are firmly convinced the child first was held captive.

SEEK CLUE IN PITTSBURGH.

Hammonton Detectives Reported on Way to That City.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 13.—Mrs. C. E. Dansey of Dormont, a suburb, grandmother of "Billy" Dansey, who is believed to have been kidnapped from his home in Hammonton, N. J., last Wednesday, said today:

"We are keeping in close touch with my son and his wife and are hoping every day to hear good news. The boy's father and mother never have had any differences. I have no idea why the child should have been kidnapped."

Chief Detective Robert Braun was asked today to investigate the report that rejected suitor of Mrs. Dansey might have taken the child. Detectives from Hammonton are expected here tomorrow.

SEE NEED OF MORE COTTON.

World Conference on the Staple Opens in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Delegates to the world cotton conference, at their first general session here today, perfected a temporary organization with William B. Thompson of New Orleans as President.

Other temporary officers are: Vice Presidents, Frank H. Crump of Memphis; Giorgio Mylius of Italy, Sir Frank Warner, England; Fernand Hanus, Belgium, and Charles Clero, France; Executive Secretary, Emile Stier, New Orleans; Recording Secretary, Winston D. Adams, Charlotte, N. C.; Assistant Secretaries, Arno S. Pearce, London; Eugene P. Gray, Oklahoma City; W. S. Turner, Little Rock, and R. C. Dickerman, Waco, Texas.

Sir A. Herbert Dixon of Manchester, head of the British delegation, said in an address that cotton manufacturing conditions in England were being gradually brought toward normal.

Giorgio Mylius, of Italy, reported the work of reconstruction in Italy as in full activity. Labor difficulties, he said, had been overcome and mills were being operated to capacity.

Fritz Jenny, of Switzerland, devoted his address to an expression of Swiss gratitude to the United States for supplying food and raw material during the war.

John A. Todd, professor of economics and Oxford lecturer, said that further restriction of cotton acreage in the United States would be "nothing short of a calamity."

"The world's requirements," said Professor Todd, "are practically unlimited. Europe and Asia are bare of cotton goods. Their position today is the same as before the war, only worse. The world wants more cotton than it is getting and must have it."

"Despite the great increase in the cost of cotton today, it is still one of the cheapest products. It has not increased in proportion to other commodities."

J. Shottowe Wannamaker, President of the American Cotton Association, said that cotton had been a curse to the Southern States.

"Cotton brought slavery," he said, "resulting in the war between the States, and cotton is why there are white women and little children working in the fields. There will not be an increased acreage of cotton until a price is paid for the product which will justify its being raised by well-paid labor."

Mr. Wannamaker said there must be an increased yield per acre.

Theodore H. Price of New York expressed the belief that it was impossible to stabilize the price of cotton.

TUG LANDS PASSENGERS.

Longshoremen's Strike Prevents the Docking of Montserrat.

The Spanish liner Montserrat arrived yesterday from Cadiz, Spain, with 154 cabin passengers. After passing Quarantine she anchored in the Upper Bay and her passengers were sent, with their baggage, in tugs to Pier 8, East River, on account of the longshoremen's strike. The 455 bags of mail also were taken to the pier on the tugboat.

Four passengers, who were delegates from Barcelona to the Cotton Conference being held in New Orleans, were permitted to land earlier to catch a train for the South. The Montserrat had 400 tons of cargo, including 1,100 cases of olive oil.

The Lamport & Holt liner Tennyson arrived from Brazil, by way of Barbadoes, where she put in Sept. 17, with fire in her bunkers. The passengers were sent ashore and lodged in hotels until the crew got the flames under control.

Urge British Pillboxes for Chickens.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Pillboxes, built during the dark days of the war, when England was fortified against possible invasion, are still standing and some correspondents writing to the newspapers suggest they be utilized as chicken coops or incubators.

Super-Chickens, Larger Eggs, to Hit High Cost of Living

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—Super-chickens and eggs, two or three times their present size at a cost not much greater than present prices, were predicted today by Alton E. Briggs of Boston, President of the National Poultry, Egg, and Butter Association, in an address to the 1,000 delegates attending the opening session of the thirteenth annual convention today.

Mr. Briggs said a new type of superhen is being bred, and in the near future would reach the public, thus doing much to lower the cost of living.

SHOWS BRITISH HELP IN NIVELLE OFFENSIVE

Maurice Says Haig Was Compelled to Fight to Take Pressure Off the French.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—It is advisable to wait for a full report of M. Painlevé's speech before expressing an opinion. The speech is an answer to the accusation that Nivelle's offensive failed owing to political interference.

The facts regarding the share of Field Marshal Haig and the British Army are:

A general conference of military representatives of the Allies was held at French General Headquarters in November, 1916, Joffre presiding, and the plan of campaign for the Spring of 1917 was agreed upon. Joffre was then replaced by Nivelle, who changed the plans materially.

At a conference held at Calais in February, 1917, of the French and British Governments, the British Army was placed under the general direction of Nivelle as regards the execution of the plan of campaign for the Spring offensive. Sir Henry Wilson was appointed shortly afterward as the representative of the British Army at Nivelle's headquarters to assist in obtaining unity of action.

Nivelle's plan was upset by Ludendorff's retreat to the Hindenburg line, but despite this Nivelle persisted in it. In accordance with the Nivelle plan, Haig fought the battle of Arras-Vimy on April 9, with Allenby's Third Army, the Canadians under Byng, and Horne's First Army.

The British more than carried out the part allotted to them by Nivelle, but Nivelle's own defensive on the Aisne, which followed, broke down with the heaviest loss, and Haig was compelled to continue the battle of Arras in order to take the pressure off the French. After Arras Haig resumed his independent direction of the British Army and fought the battle of Messines and the Flanders offensive, which ended at Passchendaele, in order to help the French recover from the disastrous results of Nivelle's failure.

EDWARDS FEARS FARE RISE.

Says Rates Will Be Ten and Fifteen Cents if Republicans Win.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 13.—Declaring that if a Republican were elected Governor of New Jersey the people of the State would soon be paying ten-cent car fares on the trolley lines, and probably 15 cents, State Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democratic nominee for Governor, tonight addressed a meeting in this city. He added that if he were elected Governor he would see that the men chosen as members of the Public Utilities Commission were men who knew their business. He also reiterated that he is opposed to prohibition or the taking away of any of the liberties of the people guaranteed to them under the Constitution.

In all, Mr. Edwards spoke at ten meetings all over the county.

"I tell you," he said to one audience, "that the Republican Party is owned body, coat, shoes, and breeches by the Public Service Corporation. The Republican candidate, Mr. Bugbee, acknowledged in Jersey City that the Public Service Corporation gave $5,000 to the Republican campaign.

The citizens of Camden are determined to obtain a five-cent fare and, it is expected, will continue to boycott the cars of the Public Service Railway Company, even if the zone fare system is abolished and a seven-cent fare, with one-cent transfer, restored.

Emergency automobile service here and to suburban towns is good as a result of the removal of practically all restrictions that hedged the operation of jitney buses. There is no set fare. Passengers pay what seems to them a just fare, basing their calculations on distance traveled. Some pay 5 cents, others 10 cents, and still others 25 cents. Automobile owners are making from $4 to $10 an hour, it is reported.

MARSDEN TRIAL NEARS END.

Navy Authorities Are Asked If Immunity Was Granted Markowitz.

The prosecution closed its case yesterday in the court-martial of Lieut. Commander Christopher Marsden, on trial in the navy yard, on charges of accepting "graft" for obtaining easy berths for enlisted men in the Naval Reserve.

In opening for the defense, Elmendorf Carr, counsel for the accused, made a request of Judge Advocate Lieutenant Leonard Matteson that the court concede the fact that Louis Markowitz, the Manhattan jeweler, was promised immunity for testifying in the case.

The Judge Advocate stated that he was not in a position to grant immunity, but on motion of counsel, a telegram was sent to the naval authorities at Washington asking whether any consideration of immunity had been granted to Markowitz.

The first witness called by the defense was Lieutenant Benoit J. Ellert, who on Aug. 1 last, pleaded guilty to specifications accusing him of accepting money to enroll men in the Naval Reserve.

"Were you promised immunity from any source for testifying in this case?" counsel asked.

"No," replied Lieutenant Ellert, "the only possible chance for me to procure immunity or consideration is the fact that I was in the navy twelve years, Naval Reserve two years, and Regular Army one year."

Frank P. Bouvier, Assistant Enrolling Officer under Lieut. Commander Marsden, testified he never heard of Marsden accepting presents from any one.

The court-martial adjourned until today.

15 REVOLVERS IN HIS ROOM.

Brooklyn Man Arrested with a Sixteenth in His Pocket.

Described as having an "arsenal" in his possession, Arthur Jent, of 7204 Thirteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested last night by Detectives Burke and Clair, charged with violating the Sullivan law and grand larceny.

While the detectives were standing in Pacific Street, Brooklyn, the appearance of Jent's hip made them decide to search him. They found a loaded revolver in his pocket. Searching Jent's room later, they found fifteen other revolvers. Some were on the mantel, some under the bed and others in almost every part of the room. The police said that Jent was formerly a laborer at the United States Army base, Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn.

Salary Increases for Judges and Members of Legislature Offered for Ratification.

Four proposed Amendments to the State Constitution upon which the present Legislature and that of last year took favorable action will be submitted to the voters for ratification at the general election, Nov. 4.

Amendment No. 1 was passed to final adoption by the lawmaking body at Albany on the plea that it would stimulate reclamation of large swamp areas in different sections of the State. It has been before the Legislature in different forms since 1909, and it also was before the Constitutional Convention of 1915.

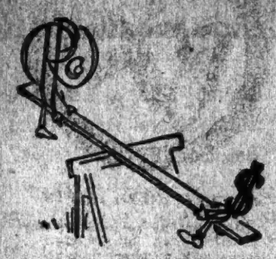
RECORD CROWD SEES AUDACIOUS WIN THE COLUMBUS HANDICAP AT EMPIRE CITY



Up on Quality!
Down on Price!

Usually, we're not much concerned about our neighbors' prices!

We have to chuckle, however, when we hear customers in our stores saying, "Why! You're lower than So-and-So!"

That's the worst of having a reputation for Quality. Somebody's apt to think we're high!

Well, even though we speak of it every so often, we can't expect everybody to know of the economic advantages of making our own clothing, as well as contracting for our woolens direct with the best mills both here and abroad.

Nor can we expect every man and boy to reason out that large and first-hand handling naturally have much to do with keeping costs down.

Nor that our policy of taking only a normal profit on actual cost at time of purchase makes a lot of difference when you go to buy.

We don't like to make comparisons, but, after all, is there any other way to show that a Quality House can often sell at prices that are even lower than those asked for inferior grades?

AUDACIOUS VICTOR IN TWO-HORSE RACE

Scratches Mar Feature Event of Opening Day at Empire City Track.

ORMONDA LEADS SPRINTERS

Takes Lecompte Handicap from Good Field—Juvenilles Provide Two Attractive Events.

M. L. Schwartz's Audacious, which has recently developed into one of the best three-year-olds of the season, was scarcely extended to add the Columbus Handicap to his list of conquests at the opening of the Autumn meeting at the Empire City track yesterday. This feature for the inaugural was so badly marred by scratches, ascribed to the heavy track, that it resulted in a two-horse race, James Butler's Spur being the other starter. That veteran campaigner gave a good performance, but he was outclassed, and the winner had the race in hand at all times.

Except that the feature event failed to result in as good a contest as had been hoped for, the opening of the final meeting of the local season was a big success. The largest crowd that has jammed its way into the Yonkers track was in attendance; the stands and clubhouse were filled, while the overflow left scarcely an open space on the lawn. There was excellent holiday weather for the sport, but the track was heavy from the rains of the day before, and only good mudders got much attention from the form players.

Some strong competition had been promised for Audacious by those named originally for the Columbus Handicap, which was at a mile and a furlong. But R. T. Wilson, Jr., scratched his Hannibal, which was regarded as the real contender, while W. R. Coe withdrew Over There at the last moment. Mr. Butler decided to depend on Spur and scratched Bally, while Blairgowrie, which had raced Saturday, was also withdrawn.

Under these conditions, Audacious was made an almost prohibitive favorite, and was quoted at 1 to 4 and 2 to 7, while Spur was offered at as good as 3 to 1, though his price was shaded down when considerable support came from admirers of the Butler horses. There was a time when Spur would have been made a strong favorite over even such a good racer as Audacious, but the Butler campaigner has not displayed much of his old form this season. He has become ugly with age, and no longer can contend with horses of real class.

Audacious Never Extended.

Buxton raced to the front with Audacious, but for most of the distance Spur was lapped with him. Passing the stands the first time the two were only a head apart. Kummer remained close up with the Butler entry all through the backstretch, but at the far turn it became apparent that Spur was extending himself to follow the pace, while Audacious was under a pull and running easily. When Buxton reached the head of the stretch he went a trifle wide, and gave Spur a chance to come through on the inside. But Kumer missed the chance to make up some ground by going wide with the other one, and when the pair were straightened out Audacious moved away with the first nudge from his jockey. Buxton did not resort to the whip at any time, while Kummer gave Spur a few lashes, got him up as far as the horse could go, and, seeing that Spur was doing his best, permitted him to go without the lash for the remainder of the distance. Audacious drew away easily until he won by two lengths.

The Lecompte Handicap for all ages at six furlongs brought out a good-sized field of smart sprinters, and not only provided a much better contest, but also carried with it something of a surprise when W. A. Shea's Ormonda took the race, defeating Ultima Thule and Flags, which only came back to his best form on Saturday at Jamaica. Old Rosebud, Bill McCloy, and Smart Money were the other starters.

It was probably too soon after his hard race with some high-class sprinters at Jamaica for Flags to capture another race, as it has taken some time and trouble to bring the horse around to his best this year. However, he was the choice of the players to the extent that he was sent to the post a 6 to 5 favorite. Ormonda and Old Rosebud were both quoted at better than 6 to 1, and there was considerable support for the old favorite of the Weir stable, for the track was just to the liking of Old Rosebud.

Ultima Thule got the best of the start, and raced into the lead with a bound, while Flags was off none too well, and seemed unable to develop his speed as quickly as usual. Ormonda, which is always dangerous at light weight, carried 108 pounds, and with this light impost was never far away from Ultima Thule.

Ormonda's Decision by a Nose.

Flags got into a contending position at the far turn, where Rodriguez brought him up to third, but it had required some effort to make up ground and, turning into the stretch, Flags could not gain on the leaders. Ultima Thule seemed to have the race won a sixteenth of a mile from the finish, but Ormonda came with a rush at the finish and gained the decision by only a nose. Flags was third, six lengths back of the second horse, but managed to hold the others safe. Old Rosebud, which had run some good races recently, got away well enough, but could not keep up with the pacemakers at any time.

The Norcross Stable's Crystal Ford was another winner which scored by a narrow margin. Crystal Ford got up just in time to beat E. T. Wilson Jr.'s Thistledon by a neck in a mile and seventy yards. Scotch Verdict was third and Albert A., which was the choice for the race, finished fourth, badly beaten all the way. Albert A. has been a consistent performer and won three races in succession before he met with defeat at Jamaica Saturday. It was evident yesterday that the recent hard contests had told on him, for he was unable to race to his form.

Scotch Verdict attempted to steal a long lead going around the first turn, but Carroll took after him with Thistledon and assumed command of the situation in the back stretch and at the head of the stretch was drawing away to a lead of about three lengths. Crystal Ford had been far back in the early running, and, after being shut off at the first turn, was compelled to go up on the outside all the way. It was not until half way up the back stretch that Myers succeeded in getting the horse into his stride and then he began to gain on the leaders. Turning into the stretch Crystal Ford caught the tiring Scotch Verdict and then took after Thistledon. The latter was beginning to tire and right at the finish Crystal Ford got up to get his neck over first.

Sea Mist Easy Victor.

There were two good two-year-old events on the card, the first of which went to the Oak Ridge Stable's Sea Mist, which ran away from his field and won by six lengths from armistice, while the latter took the place from Morent by ten lengths. Sea Mist was a well-supported favorite and breaking nicely rushed into a lead which he extended all the way to the last turn. At that point he was so far in front that it was only a gallop for him. James Butler sent Short Change out for his début in this race, and the colt did well for a first effort. A. L. Astc's Ten Can, which has never raced to his workouts, again failed to show anything.

J. J. Hallenbeck's Lunetta captured the other event for juveniles, which was the Lenox Handicap at six furlongs, in which Wise was second and Bright Gold third. This was another close finish, and the victory was due largely to the fact that Kummer outgeneraled Fairbrother in the ride through the stretch. Lunetta took the lead in the stretch, but only by inches, and was driving hard while Edwina was running strongly and Fairbrother seemed to think he had the race won and had only to make a spurt in the last few yards. But Kummer kept Lunetta at top speed right to the wire, and when Fairbrother tried to get up his mount was unable to gain. Bright Gold was some five lengths back of Edwina.

J. W. Williams's Jack Mount captured the final race of the day by a head from Belle Roberts, just getting up to win the decision. Bar One, the favorite, was third, six lengths away, after getting off slowly.

JANE PENNYBAKER VICTOR.

Vanquishes King Gorin by Three Lengths in Latonia Feature.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 13.—The Columbus Handicap, which was the feature of the holiday card here today, brought out only three starters and resulted in an easy victory for William Walker's Jane Pennybaker, which, favored with a very light impost, defeated King Gorin and Ormesdale. Jane Pennybaker carried only 96 pounds, while King Gorin had 120 pounds up and found he was unable to concede the weight.

Taking advantage of the light weight, Jockey Mooney raced into a long lead with Jane Pennybaker, and, though King Gorin made a game effort in the last half mile, his spurt going around the last turn took all the speed out of him and the winner began to draw away in the stretch and had three lengths the spare at the finish. Ormesdale tried to follow the pace but tired after half a mile and ceased to be a contender.

FOURTEEN HORSES IN 300-MILE TEST

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 13.—Fourteen horses weighed out tonight at Fort Ethan Allen for the 300-mile endurance test, under cavalry conditions, which starts tomorrow morning. They are to do sixty miles a day, arriving Saturday night at Camp Devens.

Of the fourteen starters, there are seven pure bred Arabs. One of these is Halcyon, Spencer Borden's mare, that won the Morgan endurance test of 1913, and now owned by W. R. Brown. Another is Kingfisher, which carried Major Frank Tompkins furthest south in the pursuit of the elusive Villa. Besides Halcyon, Mr. Brown is starting two other pure-bred Arab mares and a likely-looking Arab cross-breed gelding, Rustum Bey. Two of these horses last September made 162 miles in thirty-one hours and nine minutes, carrying 200 pounds, the weight to be carried in the present competition.

Two pure and two half-breed Morgans are in the race, ridden by army officers and one half-thoroughbred, ridden by Colonel George of the General Staff. The fourteenth is an old troop horse, the ancestry of which must rest as a subject for speculation.

Ten Hours Perfect Time.

To avoid injury to the horses, no rider may complete his daily sixty miles under ten hours, nor may he take more than fifteen, without disqualification. He obtains the perfect time score of 50 per cent. by covering the distance in exactly ten hours. At the end of each day, the rating is further made on a basis of 25 per cent. on the general condition of the horse and 25 per cent. on a basis of the food consumed.

The winning horse will be the one that has made the distance in exactly fifty hours, is in the best condition and has eaten fewest oats and least hay. The conditions prescribe that a rider must remain in the saddle when in motion.

The sportiest of the preliminary features of the competition is the appearance of Albert W. Harris of Harris, Forbes & Co., and President of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, as pilot of Mr. Brown's Arab mare, Kayra. Mr. Harris's horse went lame. He confesses to being 61 years of age. His son motored on to wish him luck and then went home to run the bank.

The winner of the endurance test gets a $1,000 purse and the possession for a year of the United States Mounted Service Cup. Second money is $500, and third $250. The cup and purses are presented by Messrs. A. W. Harris and W. R. Brown.

The judges are Major Benton of New York, Harry Worcester Smith of Worcester, Mass., and Major Harry Leonard of Washington, D. C. The clerk of the test is David Gray of New York, and the official weigher John W. Ghidden of New Castle, Me. Among the duties of the latter official is the responsibility of tasting the water issued to the animals and assuring himself that nothing stronger than it is mixed therein.

The Remount Board, Department of Agriculture, and General Staff, are authorizing the competition in the hope that it will unravel the mystery of obtaining the perfect cavalry horse for $166.

CLEAN GONE IS A WINNER.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 13.—J. Farrell, Jr.'s Clean Gone, which has been running second and third to good horses most of the season, finally scored a triumph that was worth while here today in the running of the Columbus Handicap at a mile and a furlong, in which he defeated Sam C. Hildreth's Corn Tassel in a close finish. The fact that Jockey Callahan kept Clean Gone on the outside and in the better part of the track probably decided the race.

There were only three starters and Hank O'Day, the third of these, was not in the contest after the first half mile, when he quit almost to a walk to come in twenty lengths back of the others. Fator rated Corn Tassel second through the back stretch but went into the lead in the final quarter and was no match to the pair when the going was heaviest. Callahan did not move with Clean Gone until the stretch was reached when he went wide, chose the best part of the track and made his dash. The heavy going slowed up Corn Tassel, and Clean Gone finally wore him down to be driven out by a length.

J. K. L. Ross's great three-year-old filly, Milkmaid, proved again today that she is one of the best in her class when she took up 120 pounds and beat H. P. Whitney's Stickling and J. Fitzsimmons's Ballet Dancer 96 each carrying 103 pounds. Milkmaid was under restraint all through the early part of the mile journey and Sande, taking advantage of the experience of others earlier in the day, kept on the outside, and, on entering the stretch, had no trouble in going to the front. GREYHOUND IS BEST DOG IN BRONX SHOW

Lansdowne Sunflower Awarded President's Trophy—Gin Rickey Also Honored.

Benching nearly 900 dogs, in spite of the expressmen's strike and other handicaps, the Bronx County Kennel Club yesterday held the most successful show in its history at the 2d Field Artillery Armory, 166th Street and Franklin Avenue, and incidentally the biggest exhibition of its kind seen in at least two seasons.

Amid a bedlam of yelps and barks, an unusually fine collection of all the traditional breeds took their turns in the tanbark rings of the big armory, and the final parade of candidates for the President's Trophy, carrying with it the honor of "best dog in the show," was an impressive spectacle.

After careful judging and the gradual elimination of the majority of the contenders, first place and the handsome silver cup, presented by the Hon. Peter Shell, were awarded to Mrs. B. F. Lewis, Jr.'s, beautiful greyhound bitch ch. Lansdowne Sunflower, whose striking appearance and graceful lines had attracted attention from the very start of the show.

Barberryhill Gin Rickey, a splendid little Scotchham terrier, entered by the Barberryhill Kennels, was judged "best of the opposite sex," and both victories proved exceedingly popular, as these headliners had already established enviable reputations in other shows. A silver cup was presented to the anti-prohibition dog by Charles A. Merritt.

Upset in Pekingese Division.

There was a sensational upset in the popular Pekingese division when Mrs. McClure Halley's Lo Hai Chi of Llenrud, home-bred specimen previously unknown, won over the imported Faraline Kang He, owned by Mrs. Chester W. Chapin, and best of its class in four successive dog shows within the past five weeks at Newport, Douglas Manor, Hackensack, and Germantown, Penn. Surprise was expressed also at the failure of the Yankibourne Kennels' Felicie of Alderbourne to score even a reserve after her impressive victories in most of the important shows of America.

The Pomeranians, also an endlessly popular breed with the spectators, produced a wonderful specimen in Mrs. Vincent De Meo's unbeaten Fall Mall Sunbright Merriville Marquis, pronounced by Jules Ferond, who judged the class, the best Pom that has ever come to America." Recent victories at Newport and Danbury give additional support to this emphatic statement. Merriville Marquis is a remarkably compact little animal, possessing fine hair, beautiful eyes, and catlike paws, and falling naturally into most effective poses.

STATEN ISLAND GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY F. C. NEWTON OF RICHMOND

NEWTON WINS TITLE ON STATEN ISLAND

VICTORY IS A SURPRISE

F. C. Newton of Richmond County won the Staten Island golf championship yesterday over his home course in decisive fashion, when he thwarted the hopes of a former champion, A. L. Walker, Jr., from the same club, and won, 5 and 4. The victory was regarded as a surprise by the several hundred dyed-in-the-wool Staten Island linksmen who followed the pair of finalists over the thirty-six-hole distance. Newton holds the same station on the Metropolitan handicap list at 5 as Walker, but he is more frequently identified in competition as playing from Brookline, Mass.

The defeat of Walker, who is a Columbia student and present intercollegiate golf champion, starts a new dynasty of Staten Island champions. For years A. F. Kammer held the title, until he was regarded as the perpetual champion. Once, in 1917, Walker took away the premier honors, but last year Kammer again met Walker and defeated him.

In the other sixteens, as in the championship flight, it was the golfers of the Richmond County Country Club who carried off the honors. Their advantage was considerable, playing over their home links, and the delegation from the rival club at Fox Hills was able to capture nothing higher than two victories in eight flights. H. Walker of Richmond County defeated W. G. Cooper of Fox Hills, 2 and 1, for the title in the second sixteen, and in the third flight A. E. Goddard of Richmond County sidetracked another Fox Hills man, C. Duncan, by the same score.

Follett Is Winner.

W. H. Follett, editor of Golf Illustrated, captured the honors for Fox Hills in the first beaten eight, defeating W. S. Van Clief of Richmond County by 4 and 3, and E. G. B. Reilly, a clubmate, won from L. Daniels of Richmond County in the third beaten eight by 1 up after nineteen holes. F. S. Bancroft was the winner in the second beaten eight, defeating H. A. Murphy, a clubmate from Richmond County, by 2 up.

Golfing conditions for the title match yesterday were excellent. The moderate wind and the sun had dried out what on Sunday was a wet, soggy course, and the competitors found the fast greens to their liking. Newton seemed to get a discouragingly bad start in the morning round of eighteen holes, and Walker won both the first and the second holes. But thenceforth he was never a dangerous factor. Newton continued to improve his game throughout the day, squared the match by winning the fourth and fifth holes, and then went ahead by winning the eighth and ninth and making the turn for home with a lead of 2 up. Newton never let down in the remaining holes, and he kept Walker always at least one hole down.

Coming in on the morning journey, Newton was three up at the tenth. He lost the eleventh and fourteenth, to become only one up. He quickly got back, however, and finished play at lunch hour with a margin of three holes, having won the sixth and seventh. Walker had taken too many sixes in his game to guarantee a good score. In the morning round he took three out of the first nine holes in six strokes, and in the afternoon the Columbia student needed six strokes to hole out on four more greens.

Walker won the first hole after lunch and again he took the sixth, but Newton rounded the turn this time 4 up by winning the third, seventh and ninth. Newton built this up to 5 up at the tenth, dropped back when Walker took the eleventh, but won the match and championship at the thirteenth, a long par 5 hole which Walker did in six strokes.

Their cards follow:

Newton, Collector of Customs of the Port of New York, was second with a score of 104-28, 76, and John W. Paris was third with 104-27, 77.

McGUINNESS SHOWS WAY.

Mohawk A. C. Runner Wins 6-Mile Road Run at New Rochelle.

J. McGuinness of the Mohawk A. C. showed fine early-season form yesterday in winning the premier prize in the six-mile handicap road race held under the auspices of New Rochelle Chapter, Knights of Columbus, through the streets of New Rochelle. McGuinness started with a handicap of three minutes and covered the distance in 32:59. This was the fastest time registered by any of the starters, but under the rules of the race McGuinness was entitled to only one prize. He selected the first position prize rather than the time prize.

The fast time prize went to Al Hulsebosch, veteran Paulist A. C. distancer, whose time was twenty-five seconds slower than that of McGuinness. Hulsebosch started off the 2:30 mark and finished eleventh in 33:24.

Athletes of the Mohawk A. C. garnered the team prize, finishing with the low winning total of 37 points. This was six lower than the total of the Paulist A. C.

THORP COACHES FORWARDS.

Veteran Puts Columbia Linemen Through Hard Drill in Practice.

Instruction for Columbia's line candidates began all over again yesterday afternoon, when Line Coach Tom Thorp, the old Blue and White linesman, made his first appearance of the season on South Field. He took the entire squad of ends, tackles, and guards through a two-hour workout up and down the field, teaching them the fundamentals of charging, blocking, and tackling. Assisting Thorp were Coaches Telfer and Gallagher, and for the entire practice the three stood over the linesmen and sent them through a stiff scrimmage workout. The right side of the line, which failed to withstand the onslaughts of the Vermont backs in Saturday's game, received particular attention from Thorp.

Scovil, who played a strong, heady game when he finally got into the first game, was placed at right tackle yesterday and showed up extremely well. He repeatedly broke through in the practice scrimmages and spilled the opposing backs for losses. Forsyth and Tower, on the left side, also displayed mid-season form, apparently having cinched their positions. With Kleninger back at centre, his natural position, only one line position is unfilled, and for this Johnston and Davis will give each other a merry chase.

Only two Varsity back field men, Thornton and Moszezinski, reported yesterday. Captain Canapary, Eccles, Shaw, and Quigley had a rest and did not don uniforms. The other backs had only a light workout in one corner of the field while the linesmen were going through their drill.

HARD DRILL FOR COLGATE.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Notwithstanding the comparatively easy manner in which Colgate defeated Brown, holding the visitors scoreless and running up a total of 14 points here Saturday, Coach Bankart gave his men no opportunity to exult over their victory. Practice today was as stiff and thorough as it ever has been. Bankart was extremely satisfied at the conclusion of practice and remarked that if the team showed as capable work for the remainder of the week Colgate would have no trouble in downing Cornell Saturday.

In spite of the fact that Colgate meets Cornell when she is flushed with two victories and no defeats, Bankart believes his team will be able to humble the Ithicans. He has followed Cornell closely and shows no inclination to fear her, though Colgate plays the big red team on the latter's field, this being the first game Colgate plays away from home. With Brown now out of the way, the coaches have reason only to worry about Princeton and Syracuse. If Colgate can beat Princeton a week from Saturday, a clean sweep for the season is anticipated.

GREEN IN LIGHT PRACTICE.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 13.—Coach Speers was content to run the Dartmouth football squad through the lightest kind of work this afternoon in anticipation of stiff opposition from Penn State on next Saturday. Paul ("Red") Louden, All-American end in 1913, and Charlie Comsey, a quarter back of the 1914 eleven, were added to the coaching staff.

Robertson was out in uniform this afternoon and took part in signal practice for a short time. He has almost recovered from his injury received last week in scrimmage, but Myers, it was learned, has a broken wrist and will be out of the game for perhaps the rest of the season.

The loss of Myers is a blow to the green line, as he was one of the few candidates for the wing positions who has had Varsity experience. Sonnenberg ran through signals with the first team in the left tackle position and from all appearances he is now a fixture after the exhibition he put up last Saturday for the short time he was in the game.

Stagg's Assistant Breaks Leg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—While instructing candidates for the University of Chicago freshmen football team how to halt a plunging back, Pat Page, assistant to Head Coach Stagg of that institution, suffered a broken leg, the first serious injury of his football career of fourteen years. Coach Stagg has not yet announced the choice of an assistant to take Page's place.

HARVARD'S DRIVE TO BE STARTED TODAY

Coach Fisher to Follow System That Was in Vogue During Haughton Regime.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 13.—Coach Bob Fisher called off all football today for the Crimson's 'Varsity football players, allowing a two days' rest after the Colby game. There was a purpose in Fisher's indulgence, however, as, starting tomorrow and continuing for the remainder of the week, the Cambridge players will be sent through the "drive," to which, under the Houghton régime, the Harvard men were subjected for several years.

Eddie Mahan, former Harvard star, who recently returned from two years' overseas service, expects to don football togs tomorrow, get out on the Soldiers' Field, and do his share toward whipping Fisher's candidates into shape to thrash Yale. Eddie ran into Charlie Brickley at the Harvard Club and talked over professional football with his old chum. Brickley is said to be making considerable money, but Mahan is inclined to think that the proper place for gridiron doings is in the colleges and schools, hence his decision to help the Harvard coaching staff rather than get into the professional game.

A few of the players who are on the injured list, Holmes, a sub-guard, and Gratwick, one of the substitute backs, all of whom were banged up in the Colby game, may not be able to go through the three days' driving, but by handling the squad carefully last week "Pooch" Donovan has most of the material ready. The Brown game comes Saturday and after that Harvard has a comparatively easy schedule before playing its first game with Princeton on Nov. 7. Therefore this week has been chosen for putting the players through the mill and then look for results against the Providence team which always plays good football here and demands Harvard's best.

Gratwick will be missed as he was right in the running for left half back, but Burnham is now believed to be in trim to stand hard work and if he can he will get back into the regular backfield with Casey and Horween. Kane will be on the side lines and will have to come back fast to get a regular place at tackle over either Hubbard or Sedgwick. The latter has been improving rapidly, while in the Colby game Hubbard showed lack of condition owing to his two weeks' layoff. Desmond has been going so well at right end that when Weatherhead returns it will be with no final hold on the right wing, where he was going along so well when hurt. Havenmeyer's play at centre during Philbin's absence reopens the competition for that place also and the final outcome may largely depend on how the men stand up under the test of the next three days.

The Colby game was satisfactory, particularly the interference and the continued inclination of the team to follow the ball. Harvard recovered six fumbled balls Saturday and did not fail to complete any forward pass. The H. A. A. has decided to have 48,000 seats for the Yale game in the stadium Nov. 22.

SIGNAL WORK FOR ELIS.

Coach Sharpe Gives Regulars a Rest After One Hour's Work.

Special to The New York Times.

Yale 'Varsity player was excused today Yale 'varsity player was excused today after an hour's signal drill. La Roche, who was slightly injured Saturday; Walker, and Bralen, who starred Saturday, did not report. Thorne Murphy ran the 'Varsity through the signal rehearsal and Herbert Kempton was installed at right half back. Dickens and Hamill were tried out at tackle and Captain Callahan led his men again.

In the scrimmaging the second team tore up the scrubs for twenty minutes, and Fred Webb and Paul Crane slipping over the line for touchdowns. Webb ended a series of old-fashioned line plunging by scooting through guard for a touchdown from the 5-yard mark. Hamill Crane intercepted a forward pass, worked free and dodged thirty yards for his score. For the scrubs "Babe" Robinson made a score by picking up a fumble of "Chick" Neville and making apparently have a heavenly between him and a score. Two 'Varsity players, Joe Neville and Fred Graham, who have been out of the game two weeks with slight bruises, were in uniform and will resume scrimmaging by midweek.

On the visiting coaches, Emil Jacques, Frank Butterworth, Ex-Captain "Cupid" Black and Jack Owsley were at the field. The 'Varsity lined up as follows in the signal drill:

RANTHERS IN LIGHT DRILL.

Warner Gives Pittsburgh Eleven a Short Workout in Signal Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—Coach Glenn Warner practically gave the Panthers a rest today, after their hard contest on a muddy field against West Virginia on Saturday. He put them through a very light practice period, mostly to get them drilled a little more thoroughly in the signals. There were some slight defects in Saturday's play that the coach sought to eliminate this afternoon before beginning the week of training for the Syracuse game next Saturday.

Assistant Coach Alex Stevenson went to West Point on Friday night for the purpose of looking the Methodists over in their game with the Army and he pointed out to the Blue and Gold players this afternoon many of the plays they will be up against in their next contest. A light scrimmage was indulged in, with Hastings and Morrow practicing punting, and Stein was given some attention in his passing, which was faulty on Saturday.

FUNDAMENTALS FOR W. & J.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, PENN., Oct. 13.—A session in fundamentals made up the workout of the W. and J. football team this afternoon. Coach Morrow, while pleased on the whole with the work of his players against Carnegie Tech last Saturday, saw numerous weaknesses, particularly in inaccurate tackling, failure to hold the ball, lack of interference on receiving kickoffs and inability to grab the oval when it was loose.

All of these faults, he believes, can be eradicated through a return for a day or two to fundamental principles. Every man was able to report today, making it possible for Morrow to develop his teamwork unhampered before the game with Syracuse a week from next Saturday. Westminster, which plays here Saturday, is big and heavy this year, and always dangerous on local soil, particularly this year because coached by Wimberly, former star W. and J. guard. Morrow frankly admits he looks for a hard tilt and is glad of it, as it will help to shape his men for Syracuse.

W. and J.'s backfield offense has developed to a point where it looks like the best that has been shown here in years. In spite of Saturday's soggy field, the backs swung around the ends with speed, usually behind a flock of interferers, and a dry day would undoubtedly have seen many wide wing skirting gains.

CASSIDY TO BOX FOR U. S. ABROAD.

Ashton Donza of New Orleans, national 115-pound amateur boxing champion; Frank Cassidy of the Osanam Association, New York, a former title holder, now fighting at 135 pounds, and J. Burke of the Willow A. C., Pittsburgh, in the light-heavyweight class, were the three winners to emerge from the try-outs held at the 71st Regiment Armory last night, and will represent America next month against the best glove experts of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden.

The showing of Donza made the biggest hit of the evening with the crowd, for this stocky little Italian boy had not previously been seen in metropolitan boxing circles. He won his opening bout easily, making his opponent quit in the second round. Then he took on Charlie Svoboda, who has been knocking them all out at 110 pounds lately, and ran the white-headed kid all over the ring. Svoboda tried his shifting guard, his foot-work, and his dodging, but it got him little in the way of points, for the champion kept poking him in the face with a straight left, and uppercut him effectively whenever he succeeded in making him stay in close. It was Donza's bout all the way.

Seeman Fights Well in Final.

In the final of the 115-pound class, Sol Seeman made a surprisingly good showing, although he had previously fought three bouts. He held off the rushing Donza in good style, and traded punch for punch in the infighting. But the champion was too strong for the slender little New Yorker, and there was no questioning the judges' decision at the close.

In the semi-final of the 135-pound class F. Lux of Pittsburgh and Otto R. Dempewolf of Brooklyn staged a great slugging match, both being more than willing to mix it all the time, with the Pennsylvanian getting a little more weight into his punches and winning by a slight margin.

But he was no match for Frank Cassidy in the final bout, although his gameness in swapping punches with the clever local boy brought him a big hand. Cassidy played chiefly for the body, trying to rip his left to the Pittsburgher's stomach with every rush and landing often enough to do considerable damage to his opponent's wind.

A Walk-Over for Pittsburgher.

The light-heavyweight division was a walk-over for Burke, a strong and rangy boxer from Pittsburgh. His most dangerous rival, Tomeshek, was disqualified in the semi-final for rough work, and in the final he met a wild swinger, A. Silverstein, who could be credited with little more than gameness. Burke made a chopping block of his face, and changed its appearance so alarmingly within one round that the referee humanely put a stop to the slaughter.

All three of the winners looked fit to represent their country in international competition, combining good offensive and defensive skill with a punching power unusual in amateurs.

Donza, who is a machinist by day at the East End High School in New Orleans, delighted all the experts with his clean, business-like glove-work. He is ideally built for the game, moves in and out with lightning rapidity, keeps his head up and both hands working fast, and is not afraid to take a blow for the sake of getting in a return. His face was marked in both of his later bouts, but in each case he saw to it that the other boy had the worst of it before the final gong sounded.

Cassidy's style is also a treat for boxing fans. He often goes in seemingly wide open, yet protects himself well, and carries a solid punch in each mitt. Burke did not have enough competition to show what he could really do, but he looked like a high-class performer in his brief appearances.

The summaries follow:

WEINERT DEFEATS ROBERTS.

Outpoints Staten Islander in Eight Rounds—Herman Is Winner.

Charlie Weinert, Newark heavyweight, returned to popular favor with New Jersey boxing fans last night at the Newark Sportsmen's Club when he decisively outpointed Al Roberts of Staten Island, who has attracted quite a bit of local attention by his string of knock-out victories since taking up the sport. Although he gained the plaudits of the crowd, estimated at more than 11,000, Weinert did not impress with his showing. It took the Newark heavyweight a matter of four rounds to get up courage enough to exchange blows with his comparatively inexperienced rival. When he did finally assume a fighting exterior, Weinert was busy but ineffective.

Roberts, a newcomer, entered the ring with nothing but youth. He had no conception of the fine points of boxing and showed that he is a raw novice. Weinert, despite his experience of years, was loath to take a chance with his rival during the first four rounds, but in the latter half of the bout he slammed Roberts about the ring. The Staten Islander was game if nothing else, and he stood up doggedly under the battering his experienced opponent gave him. During the last half of the bout blood flowed in a steady stream from Roberts's mouth and weakened him perceptibly. In the final round he did nothing but hold his gloved hands to his face to protect himself from Weinert's swings.

Pete Herman, bantamweight champion, was the most prominent boxer on the card. He opposed Harold Farese in the closing eight-round session, which failed to please the crowd. Herman was cagey, and Farese feared the title holder, with the result that there was little action, and the crowd started to depart in a steady stream after the first round. What honors there were to be distributed went to Herman, who landed cleaner and more often.

Tommy Touhey, the rugged Paterson lightweight, gave a characteristic exhibition against the hard-hitting Willie Jackson of the Bronx in the second eight-round bout. Touhey stood up over the entire distance under a terrific battering, never giving ground, but boring in courageously all the time, seeking to land an effective blow. Almost with the first punch, a right hand swing, Jackson closed Touhey's left eye and had a stream of blood trickling down the Patterson boxer's face thereafter. Although he was bothered by the injured optic, Touhey gamely stuck to his guns trying to return Jackson's attack. The effort was futile, however, and Jackson carried off the honors by a large margin.

LIGHT WORK AT WILLIAMS.

Injuries of Captain Boynton and Carick Responding to Treatment.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 13.—Williams had a very light practice today, to allow the men a rest after the hard game with Cornell last Saturday. Most of the time was given to signal drill and covering kicks. The second string men were given a workout against the strong freshman team.

The general condition of the Varsity is good, but Carick, the star end, is still unable to get into action. His injury is much worse than it at first appeared to be. However, he will be in shape to start in the game at New York next Saturday, if he continues to improve. Boynton's injury is also a source of worry to the coaches. His punting today was more like that of the 1917 season, when Williams went through the year without a defeat. Boynton repeatedly kicked for 50 and 55 yards this afternoon.

Aston Villa were again beaten, losing to Preston North End by three clear goals and are still at the bottom of the table. In the second division, Tottenham Hotspur went further ahead at the top by just beating their neighbors, Clapton Orient, by 2 to 1 before 30,000 people.

URGES HASTENING RAIL LEGISLATION

Hines Warns Congress Delay Will Impair Service to Public and Morale.

WILL BLOCK IMPROVEMENTS

Nearness of Time for Turning Back Roads May Cause Republicans to Abandon Adjournment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Railroads are unable to continue improvements and increase their equipment because of the uncertainty which exists concerning railroad legislation, Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads asserted in a letter which he sent today to Senator Cummins and Representative Esch, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committees, urging that railroad legislation be expedited.

The plea of the head of the Railroad Administration and the importunities of railroad Presidents for legislation which will assure incomes to the carriers after the railroads are turned back to the owners, it is believed, will cause Republican leaders to abandon their plans to adjourn in November.

Inasmuch as President Wilson some months ago announced that he would restore the railroads to their owners at the end of this year, the railroads and the business community are much exercised over the nearness of that time and the lack of any action by Congress to indicate the conditions under which the roads will be returned. Unless such legislation is enacted by the middle of December and if the roads should be turned back without it, forcing them to operate under pre-war conditions plus the increase in operating costs that have been added during the war, some railroad executives fear financial stress and failures will result next year.

Recently the Republican leaders announced that no constructive legislation would be attempted until the Peace Treaty was out of the way, and when that time came they planned for a two weeks' adjournment.

Director General Hines's letter follows:

"I know that you are exceedingly anxious to press the railroad legislation to the earliest possible conclusion. It occurs to me that you may naturally find that there are legislators that have not followed the subject as closely as you have, and who may not have an equal appreciation of the reasons why the public interest necessitates the earliest possible solution. I therefore write this letter to point out that delay in legislation will seriously impair the public service by virtually suspending improvements and the acquisition of equipment and by seriously imperilling the morale of the railroad organization.

"The difficulties I point out could not be obviated by the Government remaining in control of the railroads from week to week pending adoption of the legislation, because the suspension of the improvement and equipment program and the impairment of morale could not be remedied by such a measure.

"Pending the passage of railroad legislation uncertainty naturally exists. Such uncertainty makes it impossible for the Government to plan or carry forward necessary additions and betterments and to acquire essential new equipment. And such uncertainty likewise makes it impossible for the railroad companies to make such preparations.

"In order to keep abreast of the growth of business in this country it is indispensable that the railroads should continue to spend large sums in the acquisition of new equipment, the enlargement and unification of terminals, and the construction of additional and the enlargement of existing shops, engine houses, turntables, &c., and in the carrying forward of normal programs for the revision of grades, for the construction of additional main tracks longer and more numerous passing tracks, &c.

"In the year or two prior to the beginning of Federal control this work was largely arrested by the difficulties of securing materials and labor and also by the difficulty of securing new capital. During the year 1918 this work was largely restricted to things which could be promptly done and which would have relation to winning the war and also restricted by the scarcity of materials. The result was that comprehensive programs for developing the railroads were largely interrupted. During the calendar year 1919, there has been unavoidably an almost complete stoppage of all these matters because of the prospect of early termination of Federal control and the resulting indisposition on the part of Congress to make appropriations large enough to provide for extensive improvement programs to be carried on with Government funds under the direction of the Railroad Administration.

"Hence a vast amount of work remains to be done which the intervention of the war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that during the year 1920 very large capital expenditures ought to be made to make up for the interruptions unavoidably due to the war and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country. This is particularly true as to equipment, as it seems to be reasonably sure that in the Fall of 1920 there will be need for materially more freight cars than will be available if the corporations are not able promptly to make plans for the additional equipment which the Government has been without provision to acquire.

"In order to make the necessary preparations for additions and betterments, including equipment, it is obvious that considerable time must be allowed for planning the improvements and for raising the money. Even the physical planning for the improvements cannot be successfully made until the legislation shall be determined upon, and the improvements cannot be entered upon without knowledge as to how the money can be raised to pay for them, and the raising of the money will of course be dependent upon the fact and character of the legislation.

"Even thirty days' delay in the ability to make plans means a probably much greater delay in carrying the plans into effect, and if legislation should be so delayed as to prevent the definite making of plans until well along in the Spring, the probability is that the plans could not be carried out at all in time to meet the railroad traffic requirements in the latter part of the Summer and Fall of 1920.

"What I have said above with regard to capital expenditures of course does not affect the situation as to maintenance work on the railroads. The Federal Control act and the contracts which the Government has made with the majority of the railroad corporations imposes an obligation to return the railroads to their owners in substantially the same condition as they were when they were taken over, and the Railroad Administration is carrying on its maintenance work on this basis.

"A different and entirely distinct element of great importance is the question of morale of the railroad forces. Undoubtedly uncertainty and suspense cannot improve morale, and serious prolongation of uncertainty and suspense would very greatly impair morale.

"So far as I feel, both the railroad officials and the railroad employes are withstanding in a splendid way the injurious influences of uncertainty and suspense, but I am sure that it will become more and more difficult for both officials and employes to concentrate upon the present performance of their work rather than dwell on the future condition of the railroad business and their relation thereto.

"This is an inevitable manifestation of human nature which is not subject to any criticism. But it is a fact, and the sooner legislation can be completed the sooner can a favorable influence take the place of the unfavorable influence which the uncertainty is bound to breed.

"While I believe that you personally are fully alive to the importance of these factors, it has occurred to me that it might be helpful to you to have my views with regard to them."

SUGGEST WORLD CURRENCY.

International Trade Conferees to Discuss Stabilizing Exchange.

Establishment of an "international currency" and the guarantee by American banks of foreign railroad and industrial securities to encourage their purchase in the United States, both with the view of stabilizing foreign exchange, are two of the important topics that will be discussed at the International Trade Conference in Atlantic City next week. The conference will be attended by representatives of the United States, France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium.

Preliminary conferences were held yesterday by officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the Chairmen of the four foreign delegations, Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, M. P., for the British; Eugene Schneider, head of the Creusot Works, the "steel king" of France; Florimonde Hankar of Brussels, Director of the National Bank of Belgium, and Fernando Quartieri, former head of the Italian Delegation to the Interallied Munitions Council.

An executive committee, headed by A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company, for months has been engaged, it was said, in preparing data for the visitors as to what America can do toward the financial and commercial reconstruction of the allied nations. Ten main topics will be discussed, as follows: Credit and finance; chemicals; foodstuffs; coal; oil; metals; shipping; textiles; reconstruction supplies and permanent organization.

After the convention, it was said, the envoys would visit Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Boston, and Niagara Falls.

TO SELL FIVE ARMY CAMPS.

Camp Mills Is Included—Three Cantonments Also to Go.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Camp Mills, Mineola, L. I., and Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss., the cantonments in Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Parks, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Government improvements at Newport News, Va., are to be sold by the War Department. It was announced today that sealed proposals for Camps Mills and Shelby and the Georgia cantonments would be opened here Nov. 6 and for the Newport News improvements Nov. 11.

Separate bids on the water and sewer systems, and electric facilities at Camp Mills will be accepted.

It is a remarkable achievement that the War Department has been able to dispose of this large embarkation camp within one year of the signing of the armistice," the announcement declared.

Camp Shelby was advertised for sale last Spring, but withdrawn because of its possible use by the Department of the Interior.

FINDS CURE FOR LEPROSY.

Hawaiian Hospital Paroles 20 Patients Without Recurrence of Disease.

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 4, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—Announcement has been made here that complete cures of leprosy are being made at the Kalihi Territorial Hospital in this city and that within a few months twenty patients have been paroled without one recurrence of the disease.

Blood tests of the discharged patients have revealed no trace of the leprosy germ. Patients now under treatment are showing marked improvement.

Chaulmoogra oil, obtained from the seeds of the Taxogenes kurzii, for many years known as the specific for leprosy, was the only medicine used in the cures, the oil having been perfected by a refining process [illegible] by Dr. A. L. Dean, Professor of Chemistry and President of the University of Hawaii.

Five-Cent Car Fare in Berlin.

Since Sept. 1 the residents of Greater Berlin have been paying a straight 5 cent fare on all street car lines, with no transfers, as the result of a decision by the Court of Industrial Arbitration providing that the increased cost of electric current supplied to the street car company by the various generating concerns could be passed along to the public. The Berliner Tageblatt reports that the former roundtrip tickets, which sold for 4½ cents, and the eight-trip tickets for 24 cents, were discontinued, but that workingmen's weekly tickets, good for twelve rides, may still be had for 48 cents.

New Issue

$5,000,000

United States Distributing Corporation

Common Capital Stock

Par Value, $50.00 per share

Authorized Common Stock, $25,000,000 To be Presently Issued, $5,000,000

TRANSFER AGENT
Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

REGISTRAR
Liberty National Bank of New York.

United States Distributing Corporation has been incorporated under the laws of Virginia to purchase securities and properties of companies engaged in the coal, ice, lumber and building material businesses and possibly other lines throughout the United States. Need for a more economical working basis has long been felt in these fields.

We summarize the following from a letter from Mr. Getz, President of the new Corporation: "The main interest of the Corporation involves the distribution of coal, ice and building materials from centralized storage houses, the ample supply for which will be assured by the acquisition of sources of supply, mines, ice plants, etc. This storage space will be filled out of season when the demand is light as well as during the months when the demand is heavy, thus enabling plants to work to their full capacity the year around, resulting in a benefit to both the public and the producers. As mines, coal yards, ice plants, etc., are secured radical steps to improve their location with a view to shortening hauls and avoiding duplication of yards and plants will be taken, which with the centralization of the purchasing power that will be thus created will substantially reduce costs. The common management and advice, more expert than the individual companies could afford, and the natural advantages pertinent to a holding company will be extended to all.

"It is my conviction that these measures will develop a group of companies giving better service than the public has ever received before and will result in lower costs and decreased prices to the consumer and larger returns on the invested capital."

CAPITALIZATION—The Corporation has an authorized capitalization of 500,000 shares of Common Stock, par value $50.00 per share, of which 100,000 shares will presently be issued, and 10,000 shares of Managers' Stock, par value $5.00 per share, which are being sold at par to the men who will be responsible for the managerial control and the success of the Corporation. The shares of Managers' stock are entitled to ten per cent. of any and all profits which may at any time be distributed as a dividend, or otherwise. Each share of the Managers' Stock and each share of Common Stock entitles the respective holder thereof to a single vote; in the event of liquidation or dissolution, the assets and funds of the Corporation are to be applied: (1) Toward paying to the holders of the Common Stock the par value of their respective holdings; (2) Toward paying to the holders of Managers' Stock the par value of their respective holdings; any balance to be distributed 90% to the Common Stock and 10% to the Managers' Stock.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—The present issue of $5,000,000 of Common Stock and $50,000 of Managers' Stock will provide the treasury of the Corporation with $5,050,000 in cash with which to begin operations.

EARNINGS—The Corporation has already had presented to it opportunities for investment in a number of properties located in various cities, which, if acquired, would indicate immediate substantial earnings.

MANAGEMENT—The operating management is in the hands of men long experienced in their several lines and who have been very sucessful. Mr. George F. Getz, President Globe Coal Company, and a member of the Advisory Committee of the Consumers Company, Chicago, recognized as one of the ablest coal men in the country, is President.

HENRY J. FULLER, Vice-President, Fairbanks, Morse & Co., New York.
GEORGE F. GETZ, President, Globe Coal Company, Chicago.

Financing Exports to Canada

Is Your Canadian Customer Protected Against Fluctuations in Canadian Exchange?

MANY American exporters consider Canadian business a part of their domestic trade; while they protect themselves against fluctuations in exchange when accepting orders for shipment to other foreign countries, they neglect to do so when selling Canada. They overlook the fact that while fluctuations in the value of the Canadian dollar are not so violent as those which affect some of the European exchanges, they are serious enough to demand close attention. The risk is as great for the exporter who sells for payment in the United States as the one who sells for payment in Canadian dollars.

The New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada offers to American exporters facilities which will enable them to protect themselves against loss at the time they contract to sell goods. Our officers will be glad to discuss your special export problems.

RAILROADS DISCUSS NEEDED LEGISLATION

EXPECT BIG EXPENDITURES

Cuyler Says Basis on Which Funds Can Be Raised in the Market Must Be Provided.

The problems that will confront the railroad when the lines are relinquished by the Government on Jan. 1 were discussed yesterday by railway executives from all parts of the country who met at the Grand Central Terminal in response to the call of Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

It was said that the most important subject discussed by the executives was the letter from Director General Hines to the Chairman of the association, in which Mr. Hines said that the Railroad Administration would be unable to make the necessary readjustments in freight rates to enable the companies to be self-sustaining with the return to private management and that the companies should take steps to bring the matter before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The resumption of private operation of the railroads would open several problems of great importance, not only to the roads but to the community at large, said Mr. Cuyler after the meeting. He added:

"The most serious problem for us now, of course, is that of adequate national legislation to put the railroads on a sound financial footing and enable them to perform their full service to the country. As has been recently pointed out by the Director General, the Government has not been able during the period of Government control to make the full amount of capital expenditures needed to keep the railroads abreast of the growth of the country.

"The Government could not make these expenditures during the war because the labor and materials of the country were needed for the prosecution of the war. Since the armistice, as Mr. Hines points out, the Railroad Administration has been restricted by Congress as to the amount of funds it could spend for additions and betterments, and it has also been seriously handicapped by the fact that a great increase in operating expenses, without a compensating increase in rates, has produced a large operating deficit.

"It is plain that very large expenditures will be necessary for the upbuilding of the properties, and sound legislation is vitally necessary to give a certain basis upon which these funds can be raised in the investment markets."

The discussion of the subject will be continued at a meeting of a Standing Committee to be held at 3:30 this afternoon at 61 Broadway, when definite action, it is said, will probably be taken. Besides Mr. Cuyler, those present yesterday were:

Frank H. Fayant and Robert S. Binkerd, assistants to the Chairman; Mark S. Watson, Special Assistant; Alfred P. Thom, General Counsel, Association of Railway Executives.
W. H. Beardsley, President Florida East Coast Railway Company.

Solicitors for Birth Control Review Charged with Blocking Traffic.

Bearing in mind his Captain's order to keep Broadway clear of anything or anybody that blocked traffic, Policeman Jundson of the West Forty-seventh Street Station strolled along Times Square last night and saw a group gathered in front of the Claridge. Jundson took a peek over a spectator's shoulder and saw a copy of The Birth Control Review in the hands of Mrs. Genevieve Grandcourt, a writer, of 13 West Eighteenth Street.

It was Jundson's opinion that Mrs. Grandcourt's attempts to dispose of the publication were interfering with traffic. He told her to "move on." She was disputing his authority when Miss Kitty Marion, formerly an English actress, and now a clerk, also selling The Review, took a hand in the argument. Both of the women were arrested.

Taxable or Tax-free BONDS?

Some investors, who should be buying tax-free bonds, are making the mistake of purchasing taxable issues. Equally unwise, some who should be purchasing taxable bonds, are paying the higher price necessary to obtain tax-free securities.

Our pamphlet, "1919 Federal Income Tax and Its Effect on Bond Yields," will assist you in determining which form, for your purposes, is the better buy.

This pamphlet gives the net yield of taxable bonds after payment of Federal Income Tax when the bonds are held by individual investors having taxable incomes ranging from $2,000 to $5,000,000 annually.

The contents of this pamphlet are necessary to intelligent present-day investing, particularly among those of large incomes. A copy will be sent upon request for Pamphlet NA-32.

Organization and Business—The Temtor Corn & Fruit Products Company has been incorporated in Illinois to acquire (1) control by ownership of not less than 98% of the Common Stock of the Best-Clymer Manufacturing Company, makers and distributors of jellies, jams, preserves, fruit butters, corn and sorghum syrups, with plants at St. Louis, Missouri, and Fort Smith, Arkansas, and (2) the Granite City, Illinois, corn syrup plant of the Corn Products Refining Company (which under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law it was compelled to sell, and for approval of which sale application has been made to the court).

The properties thus included will make it the only company in the United States controlling the entire manufacturing process from raw material to finished product, and it will be the largest producer and distributor of jellies, jams and preserves made from corn syrup, and also a large producer of corn and sorghum table and cooking syrups.

Management—The operations will be under the management of Mr. Milton G. Clymer, who originally built and operated the Granite City plant and in 1906 sold it to the Corn Products Refining Company, remaining, however, as executive manager of the plant until 1913, when he organized and became the active head of the Best-Clymer Manufacturing Company. In the present Company he is thus bringing together the two concerns which he was instrumental in founding.

Priority and Preference Provisions of Class A Shares (this issue)—Class A Shares shall have priority as to assets in liquidation up to $50 per share; Class B will then receive $50, and any balance will then be shared equally. Class A Shares shall have priority as to dividends up to $4 per share in any one year, then Class B Shares will receive $4 per share, and after that they shall share equally in any dividend distribution.

Balance Sheet—The financial status of the Company as stated by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, after acquisition of the Granite City plant (taken at actual cash cost) and the Common Stock of the Best-Clymer Manufacturing Co. and giving effect to $1,000,000 new working capital, which will be provided by this financing, is as follows:

ASSETS		LIABILITIES
Real Estate, Plants and Equipment	$4,500,000	*Class A Stock	137,500 Shares
Common Stock of the Best-Clymer Mfg. Co. (Assuming all is acquired) taken at open market value as of Sept. 25, 1919	1,230,250	*Class B Stock	55,550 Shares
Cash	1,000,000	No other liabilities
Trade Marks, Brands and Good Will	1	*The shares have no par value.
Total	$6,730,251

Earnings—Messrs. George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., Consulting Engineers, make the following estimates, all of which are after full allowances for depreciation and taxes (based on the rates of taxes for the years considered):

	Earnings	On Both Classes of Stock	As Applied on Class "A" Stock
For the four years ending December 31, 1919, average	$1,251,214	equal to	$6.48 per share	$9.09 per share
For the year ending October 1, 1920 (Under the terms of the sale of the Granite City Plant by the Corn Products Refining Co., the latter Company remains as tenant of the new Company until October 1, 1920, paying as rental $1,248,200.)	1,364,240	" "	7.06 " "	9.92 " "

The foregoing figures are after deduction of $59,500 dividends on $850,000 Best-Clymer Manufacturing Co. preferred stock.

Dividends—In view of the assured earnings through the fixed rental from the Corn Products Refining Company, added to the certainty of large earnings of the Best-Clymer property, the management plans immediately to place both classes of stock on a $4 per annum dividend basis.

Extract From the Report of Messrs. George W. Goethals & Co., Inc.—"We have investigated the management, have examined the properties, and in our opinion the proposed capitalization based on past and estimated future earnings is fully justified, and we regard the proposed issue of stock as one of superior merit."

All legal details will be passed upon by Messrs. McAdoo, Cotton and Franklin of New York, or Messrs. Winston, Strawn & Shaw of Chicago, Attorneys for the Bankers, and by Messrs. Jourdan, Rassieur & Pierce of St. Louis for the Company.

It is planned to make application to list these shares on the New York and St. Louis Stock Exchanges.

BETHELL TO RESIGN FROM BELL SYSTEM

WILL HANDLE FINANCES

Held Appointments on Several Civic Commissions, Both State and Municipal.

Frank H. Bethell, First Vice President of the New York Telephone Company and active head of the eastern group of telephone companies of the Bell System covering the middle Atlantic States, will resign from the telephone companies to become Vice President in charge of the finances of the White Oil Corporation, a new combination of oil interests being formed by a group of prominent New York bankers, it was announced last night by E. C. Van Dyke, of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, 120 Broadway. An announcement from the Oil Corporation, it was said, would be issued shortly.

Mr. Bethell, as active head of the entire Bell System's eastern group of operating companies has had under his direct management the providing of telephone service for more than 2,500,000 subscribers in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and the District of Columbia, and the direct supervision of the expenditures in excess of $100,000,000 annually.

On Jan. 4, 1911, Mr. Bethell became Vice President of the New York Telephone Company. His experience and active interest in civil pensions caused Mayor Mitchel to appoint him a member of the Pension Commission of New York City. He is Chairman of the Employes Benefit Fund Committee of the eastern group of the Bell Companies which pays more than a million dollars annually to employes in benefits of various kinds.

Governor Glynn appointed Mr. Bethell to represent New York State at the annual conference of the National Tax Association which was held in Denver, and Governor Whitman appointed him a member of the Bronx Parkway Commission, of which he is also treasurer.

Mr. Bethell is known in the telephone industry as a rate expert, a pioneer in the modern scientific application of business efficiency and a constant advocate of co-operation between the public, the company and employes.

GUARD SWIFT & CO. PLANT.

Packers Ask Aid, Police Say, Because of Activities of I. W. W.'s.

Swift & Co. asked the police last night to guard the packing plant at Ninth and Henderson Streets, Jersey City, pending a threatened strike by the employes, to begin at 7 o'clock this morning. This is the largest Eastern receiving station of the company and is the headquarters of the meat supplies that go toward feeding New York and suburban districts.

It was said that all the employes at this plant and the branches of the company throughout the city were involved in the threatened walkout.

Protection for the plant was requested because of the activity in the strike of I. W. W. agitators, the police say, which is thought to be the first move of the radicals to attempt to shut off all kinds of food supplies through this and other strikes. The police took charge of the establishment and had guards in all the streets near by.

Naples

THIS, the largest city in Italy, contains 723,000 (1911 Census) inhabitants. Naples disputes with Constantinople the claim of occupying the most beautiful site in Europe. The city is built at the base and on the slopes of a range of volcanic hills, and, rising from the shore like an amphitheatre, is seen to best advantage from the sea. It is the most densely peopled city in Europe, and has increased in modern times at an enormous rate.

In 1915 Naples' imports of $90,945,000 were almost three times the value of her exports, which were $31,768,000. The articles dealt in are wine, oil, spirits, drugs, tobacco, chemicals, hemp, cotton, wool, silk, glass, etc. Its specialties are the manufacture of tortoise shell, kid gloves, macaroni and coral.

For information regarding the Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc. we refer to a letter of Mr. Alfred Decker, President of the Company, copies of which may be had on request, and which states that:

The business, which consists in the manufacture and selling at wholesale of high quality men's clothing, was established in 1902 with a capital of $12,500. It has grown steadily ever since, until the business for the first six months of 1919 was on a basis of $12,000,000 annually. With the exception of the capital now being introduced, assets have been accumulated from earnings. Because of the magnitude of the business Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc. has been incorporated under the laws of Illinois to acquire the entire business, tangible assets, good will, etc.

The audited balance sheet, after giving effect to this financing, indicates net tangible assets, exclusive of trade marks, good will, etc., as of April 26, 1919, of $4,054,269, or equal to more than $162 per share of the Preferred Stock, and net current assets of $3,820,008, or equal to more than $152 per share of the Preferred Stock.

Net earnings of the business, before taxes and interest charges on loans to be retired, for the past three fiscal years averaged $586,705, or equal to more than 3 1-3 times the maximum annual dividend requirements on the Preferred Stock; for the fiscal year ended April 26, 1919, they were at the rate of more than 5 times such requirements. After allowing for Preferred Stock dividends the three-year average of these earnings equaled more than $4 per share on the Common Stock, and for the past year more than $7 per share.

The Company has no bonded debt and the charter provides that no additional Preferred Stock may be issued, nor any of its property be mortgaged, without the consent of three-fourths of the Preferred Stock holders.

The charter provides for a sinking fund to retire this Preferred Stock through the payment of a sum in each fiscal year equal to at least three per cent of the greatest amount of Preferred Stock at any one time outstanding and equal to at least twelve per cent of net earnings in such year after Preferred Stock dividends and taxes.

Price 98 and Accrued Dividend, Yielding Over 7 1-8 Per Cent

We recommend this Preferred Stock for investment, and offer it subject to prior sale, when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel.

The Company's trunk lines have a capacity of over 200,000 barrels daily. About $5,000,000 was expended in laying 325 miles of pipe to loop its delivery lines from Carrolltown, Mo., and to double its trunk lines from Carrolltown to Wood River, Ill. As a result of these completions, it is able to deliver 120,000 barrels a day through Carrolltown. An eight-inch line from the Augusta and El Dorado pools in Kansas, to Neodesha, Kansas, was completed in 1916, and a second eight-inch line was added in 1917. An eight-inch line 60 miles long has been built from its Jonesburg Station to Chatauqua, Kansas, to the Blackwell pool in Kay County, Oklahoma. (Continued.)

PLAN FEDERAL MOVE IN SOFT COAL CRISIS

President or Cabinet Likely to Act if Other Efforts to Avert Strike Fail.

OFFICIALS ARE HOPEFUL

Secretary Wilson Sees Chance of Adjustment, He Tells Senate Sub-Committee.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Some official action by President Wilson or the Cabinet to avert the threatened strike of bituminous miners Nov. 1 is to be expected, it was said today at the White House. Officials regard the matter as one requiring governmental action if other efforts to avert a tieup of the coal mines fail.

Officials are hopeful that the miners and operators will work out an amicable solution, and press reports from Philadelphia that it was probable the negotiations would be renewed were read with interest.

There was no indication that the Administration had determined upon a line of action should it find it necessary to interfere. It was agreed, however, that a strike of the coal miners would have such a far-reaching effect that action by the Government to prevent it was absolutely necessary.

Demands of the bituminous miners in central competitive fields for more wages and changed working conditions were discussed today with Secretary Wilson by a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee.

"Secretary Wilson assured us that as a Government official he had already interested himself in the threatened strike," Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican of New Jersey, said in a statement following the session, "and that he hopes to make an adjustment. The committee will co-operate with him to that end.

"It was the feeling of the sub-committee, however, that the agreement of the coal miners made with Dr. Garfield when he was Fuel Administrator, to maintain the present scale of wages for the period of the war or until April, 1920, constitutes a binding contract and should be fulfilled. For that reason it is probable no further action will be taken immediately."

Members of the Senate committee taking part in the discussion today, besides Chairman Frelinghuysen, were Senators Elkins of West Virginia and Townsend of Michigan, Republicans, and Wolcott of Delaware and Myers of Montana, Democrats.

Common Stock (no par value)	125,000 shares	125,000 shares

From a letter addressed to us by Mr. H. M. Wallis, President, and other information and data in our possession, we summarize the salient features.

ORGANIZATION

The J. I. Case Plow Works Company is the outgrowth of the business originally established by Mr. J. I. Case forty-three years ago. The present J. I. Case Plow Works Company has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware for the purpose of acquiring and bringing under one management and control the property and business of the J. I. Case Plow Works and the Wallis Tractor Company, both of Racine, Wisconsin. The company's product, consisting of tractors, plows and tillage implements, is widely known and enjoys an enviable reputation for quality and service.

EARNINGS

The net profits, before taxes, of the J. I. Case Plow Works for the two years and the Wallis Tractor Company for the two and one-half years ending June 30, 1919, combined, were at the average annual rate of $755,737. For the present fiscal year net profits before taxes are estimated at $1,250,000, or over twice the Second Preferred dividend after allowance for prior charges.

PROFIT SHARING FEATURES

1—This 7% Second Preferred Stock shares equally in any dividends declared upon the Common Stock of the Company without reservation as to amount of such Common dividend. For example, if dividend of $3.00 per share is paid on Common Stock same must be paid on this Preferred, or total of 10%.
2—Present financing places the Company in strong financial position and covers all requirements for working capital. The economies and increased earnings thus obtained will permit of a liberal dividend policy on the junior shares.
3—Old established business in existence over forty years.
4—Business is showing heavy increases month by month, in gross and net earnings. Estimated net earnings for year ending June 30, 1920, are $1,250,000.
5—Production of tractors for several months past has exceeded twenty per day, or at a rate of 6,000 per year. Plans under way to double this production next year, with indicated net earnings of more than $2,000,000.
6—Shipments of other products, such as plows, harrows, motor cultivators, etc., show steady increases in volume.
7—Company had no war business of any kind and will be distinctly benefited by peace conditions.
8—Conservative authorities say that the primary tractor market is at least 1,250,000, while production in 1918 was but 133,000 (est.).

SAFEGUARDS

This Company shall not, while any Preferred Stock of either class is outstanding, create any mortgage or other encumbrance upon any of its property (except purchase money mortgages or liens on property hereafter acquired) without the consent of three-fourths of the First Preferred Stock outstanding. After retirement of the First Preferred Stock these rights, also all other rights of the First Preferred, revert to the Second Preferred.

MANAGEMENT

The Company will continue under the present successful management, which has been connected with the business for the past twenty years.

CONCERTING PLANS TO HALT PROFITEERS

TO ACT UNDER NEW LAW

Attorney General Will Visit Several States—Baker Withdraws Army Sugar from Public Sale.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—In the expectation that legislation to stop profiteering will soon become effective, the Department of Justice is perfecting its plans for procedure when the new weapons are available.

Attorney General Palmer today called a meeting of the conferees who took the cost of living problem under advisement nearly three months ago. Secretaries Glass, Houston and Wilson, Chairman Murdock and W. B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission, Director General Hines, Assistant Attorney General Ames, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Leffingwell, and H. B. Figg, Assistant to Judge Ames, were present.

After a review of the progress made, which was said to be gratifying, considering that none of the laws requested of Congress has been placed on the statute books, the conference discussed steps to be taken when the "real campaign" of the Government is started. The officials declined to indicate what they had in mind but it is known that Attorney General Palmer is prepared to proceed vigorously in a number of individual cases involving both foodstuffs and clothing, as soon as the Food Control act amendment to include the latter and to provide a criminal penalty for violations becomes a law. The amendment has been passed by Congress.

Another conference is to be held later in the week, probably Thursday or Friday, which Secretaries Baker and Daniels are expected to attend and advise concerning the release of surplus foodstuffs still held by the War and Navy departments. Secretary Baker today cancelled instructions for the distribution of sugar held by the Army on learning that the supply on hand would last only two and a half months.

Planning to take the public into his confidence concerning action against the cost of living, Attorney General Palmer will make a number of trips into adjoining States, beginning the latter part of this month. It was said the trips would be similar to his journey to Albany for conference with New York State officials.

No one is authorized to negotiate the sale of the Cuban sugar crop, according to a letter from President Alejo E. Carreno, of the Cuban Sugar Manufacturers and Planters' association, which was presented to the Senate today by Vice President Marshall. Mr. Carreno referred to a pending bill authorizing the Sugar Equalization Board to purchase the Cuban crop.

The bill is now before the Agriculture Committee and Senator McNary, (Rep., Oregon,) who is in charge of it, said it was being revised so as to authorize purchase in the open market of the Cuban crop. A proposal for licensing by the Government of sugar producers, refiners and purveyors probably will be stricken from the bill, Senator McNary said.

HOLDINGS - - - - - - - - - - 18,000 ACRES
The major part of these holdings, on which are 72 producing wells and in which the Corporation has an approximate undivided one-third interest, are in the very best producing fields of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Louisiana. They have been carefully selected over a period of seventeen years and include leases and land held in fee.

PRESENT DAILY PRODUCTION - - - - 1,600 BARRELS
This represents pipe line runs and is the Corporation's net interest. It includes settled production from the Oklahoma leases, but does not include the gas and casing head gasoline from those leases which are an important source of revenue to the Corporation.

PRESENT EARNINGS - - - - - - - $1,350,000
These earnings, which are figured on an annual basis, are arrived at after making due allowance for overhead and operating expenses. They are at the rate of $1.68 per share on the Corporation's total capitalization.

ESTIMATED DAILY PRODUCTION (Within Six Months) - 10,000 BARRELS
This depends largely on the construction of pipe lines with a capacity sufficient for handling the potential production of the Corporation, which is now held down simply because of lack of pipe line facilities.

Legal matters are being passed upon by Messrs. Elkus, Vogel, Gleason & Proskauer, of New York, and Messrs. Walker & Underwood, of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Messrs. Haskins and Sells, certified public accountants, have made an examination of the Corporation's assets and have certified to same.

BUSINESS WORLD

Headdresses Coming Strong.

With the advancement of the social season and the increased number of formal dances, there is noted in this city a steady increase in the call for headdresses with which to complete evening costumes. Many unusual effects are being offered here for that purpose. Among them are headbands of maline and brilliants. In these articles, which are shown by a local wholesaler, the maline is stretched over a plainly covered narrow wire frame and studded with the brilliants. At the front "perky" bows or butterflies of tulle similarly studded, give an attractive added touch. In another attractive head adornment a tubing of ostrich wreathes the hair. Two mercury wings of silver braid are placed at either side to complete the effect.

Venetian Beads and Laces.

The bead and lace trade of Venice, reports Consul Armstrong, has been particularly active with the United States. Several American firms, he adds, have established their work shops there for making laces and embroideries. A considerable number of American buyers of beads are also reported to be arriving in Venice.

To Sell Airplane Linens.

With the arrival of Leonard J. Martin in this country late this week on the Adriatic will begin the distribution of that part of the airplane linens formerly owned by the British Government which has been alloted to this country. This allotment, which amounts to several million yards, is a part of the 48,000,000 yards—the entire quantity offered—that were purchased some time ago by Mr. Martin. While in this city Mr. Martin will make his business headquarters with the Hunter Manufacturing & Commission Company, 60 Worth Street, which has been appointed the sole selling agent for the United States. Samples of the linens in question are now on display at the address given. The goods, which can be used for women's and children's garments and for upholstery purposes, have all been tested by the British Government, and are said by executives of the Hunter Company without doubt to be superior to any dress linens ever offered before in any market. They are said to be especially notable because of their extreme fineness of texture and unusual strength.

Bunker Coal Now at Gibraltar.

Action taken by the British Admiralty as a result of the railway strike has been rescinded, and the supply of bunker coal to all British and foreign vessels, which was in operation at Gibraltar before the strike, has been reinstated. Priority in the bunking of steamers actually waiting, cables Vice Consul Warren Baker, will be given as far as possible to British ships. The Admiralty announcement was made on Oct. 7.

Suggests Material for Repair.

A writer in a business magazine suggests furnishing a small piece of material with each dress, suit, or waist that may be used to mend the garment, if a repair is required. Carrying this idea further, the representative of a garment house who heard it stated that it would be also good to include one or two buttons, as the latter are often more needed than the material, which may be taken from some hidden part of the garment. Furthermore, the great variety of buttons used on stylish garments makes it hard to match them if one comes off and is lost.

Basement Bargains for Buyers.

The first bargain basement sale for buyers to be held in the Bush Terminal Sales Building will be opened tomorrow at 9 o'clock. One hundred and fifteen manufacturers will be represented in the sale, which will include bedquilts, blankets, cotton battings, sheets, pillow cases, cotton goods, towels, dress goods, dress silks, hosiery, knit underwear, clothing, shoes, ready to wear, millinery, furs, and notions. The goods will be billed and charged direct from each manufacturer.

Invoices with Parcel Post.

The United States postal agent at Shanghai points out the advantages of having declaration tags or invoices attached to parcel post packages sent to China. When these are attached the parcels are passed and delivered immediately, but otherwise they are held for customs inspection. Some firms, the agent explains, do not understand, apparently, that the invoices may be inclosed in invoice envelopes and attached to the parcel without extra postage. It is particularly advantageous for senders mailing merchandise to banks to account for customers to attach duplicate invoices to the parcels, which means a much quicker delivery.

Echoes of the Fur Sale.

Not the least of the many interesting things which are brought out by a review of the annual Fall auction sale of raw furs that was held in the Masonic Hall here last week are the number and extent of the advances shown by the prices obtained for most of the various kinds of pelts disposed of. Of the forty-eight varieties of skins sold on which comparisons were made with the prices they brought at the Spring sale in this city last April thirty-five showed increases, ranging from 10 to 80 per cent. Eleven kinds of skins showed no change from average April levels, but only two—Eastern red fox and Australian fox—went down. The former dropped 10 per cent. and the latter 20. The largest advance over April was shown by furriers' rabbit, which went up 80 per cent. on the strength of it being dyed to imitate Hudson seal for use in a large way in place of the more expensive dyed muskrat. The second highest advance was in blue fox, which increased 75 per cent., while the third largest increase, 65 per cent., was shared by brown muskrat and chinchilla. Nutria, kolinsky, and marmot ran a tie race for fourth honors with increases of 60 per cent. each.

This Manufacturer Is Ready.

One of the well-known local manufacturers of dresses is not worried much about the reported attempt of the showroom models to obtain a charter for a union from the American Federation of Labor. This man employs several charming damsels, but asserts that he would not mind very much if they went on strike. If they did, he would use some wax models he has on hand. The way in which he got the wax "ladies" caused the manufacturer more worry than the possibility of a models' strike, as they were obtained from a retailer in part payment for some notes that were due him.

SUGAR AT 10 CENTS A POUND

Dr. Day Says Rolling Stores Will Sell Product Below Fixed Price.

Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, announced yesterday that the rolling stores on the city streets would offer in a day or two granulated sugar for distribution at 10 cents a pound. This price to the consumer, Dr. Day pointed out, would be 1 cent below the price set by the United States Government and only ½ cent above the wholesale price.

The business concerns which were operating the stores under licenses from the Department of Markets had established four large warehouses for the storage of their goods, Dr. Day said, and had taken out licenses now for thirty-five trucks in all. Of this number, twenty are in operation.

In addition to sugar, the stores will also have for sale coffee at 40 cents a pound, as well as canned tomatoes, peas, corn, and sardines at prices below the prevailing market quotations. Butter, dried beans, and rice will be added to the stock of merchandise on the trucks as soon as a sufficient quantity can be shipped here. Dr. Day said that the stores would continue to sell eggs.

BUSINESS RECORDS.

In Town.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC.—J. A. Berst, President of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., of which Harry Zahn has been appointed receiver, states that he expects the proceedings to be dismissed shortly. The statement of assets, he declares, was not given out by his concern, but by those who filed the petition against the company, and failed to mention items which bring up the assets to $2,152,925.25. Instead of merely $100,000, as given. These items include cash in banks and branches, $15,765.53; notes receivable and money due from stockholders, $90,000; pictures at cost, less depreciation, $377,000; other accounts receivable, $12,000; and merchandise on hand, $24,000. In addition, Mr. Berst asserts that the company has $100,000 due it from the foreign market.

JURORS AND SWANN GLOSS OVER DISPUTE

Transit Investigation Will Be Resumed Today, with District Attorney in Charge.

NO APPEAL TO GOVERNOR

Jury Will Not Press Demand for Special Counsel and Foreman Will Not Be Challenged.

The transit investigation, which was halted temporarily, Friday, by the request of the extraordinary Grand Jury for the appointment of special counsel to replace the District Attorney and his assistants for the rest of the inquiry, will be resumed today. Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, will continue his testimony.

Although no conference has taken place between the prosecutor and the jurymen, it was said yesterday that a tacit understanding had been reached so that the investigation might go on unhampered by the question of the form of legal procedure.

This was confirmed by statements from Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, and District Attorney Swann. Mr. Almirall said there was no foundation for a rumor that any member of the jury intended to ask Governor Smith to designate the Attorney General or a member of his staff to assist the jurors.

"This is a fine jury, and every member on it wants to do the right thing," said Mr. Almirall. "As the District Attorney has disagreed with us concerning the appointment of special counsel, we shall continue to accept the help of the District Attorney and his assistants."

Concerning the information said to have been given to the District Attorney that Mr. Almirall's home was at Hempstead, L. I., and that he was not eligible to act on the jury, the foreman said:

"I have been a resident of Manhattan and a taxpayer for a number of years, because my business is there. My home addresses in Manhattan for several years were 969 Park Avenue, 15 West Fifty-fifth Street, and 2 Gramercy Park. My present home address is 105 East Fifty-third Street. From one or another of these addresses I have voted for Mayors, Governors and Presidents."

Judge Swann said he had no intention to question Mr. Almirall's right to continue on the jury on the ground of his residence. Last Friday, he said, he had been informed that the right of from two to four of the jurors to continue in the investigation might be questioned, on the allegation that they were interested in the Interborough Company's bonds. In this connection the District Attorney said:

"I have information which will justify my position on this point, but I shall say nothing except in open court. If the Grand Jury goes into court and asks for further instructions I shall give the court all the information I have. But I shall not force this point unless a further move by the Grand Jury compels me.

"In my opinion there should be a new and different method in the selection of Grand Jurors. They should be made more representative of the interests in the community."

When Mr. Almirall's statement that the jury would continue to call upon his assistance in the investigation was repeated, the District Attorney said:

"I shall aid in every way I can. In a matter of such public interest as this, trouble should be avoided, and so far as I am concerned, I shall go ahead as if nothing had occurred to interrupt our relations. I wish to emphasize that at no time had I any criticism to make of the personnel of the jury."

Lost Pigeon Lands at Far Rockaway

An exhausted carrier pigeon, flying from the ocean, alighted on the lawn of the Grow Club, in the Wave Crest section of Far Rockaway yesterday afternoon, and made no attempt to escape from the hands of club members picking it up. A silver band around its leg was marked A U 18 E 6752 S 19235.

ATLANTIC FLIES OVER CITY.

Handley-Page Bombing Plane Completes Trip from Parrsboro.

MITCHEL FIELD, Garden City, L. I., Oct. 13.—The big Handley-Page bombing machine, Atlantic, which was built to bomb Berlin and which flew from Parrsboro, Nova Scotia, and landed in Greenport, L. I., last Thursday, arrived here shortly after noon today, completing a 900-mile trip along the Atlantic coast. The last leg of the journey, from Greenport to Mitchel Field, is eighty miles and the start was made at 11:20 o'clock this morning.

The bomber carried ten passengers, including Vice Admiral Mark Kerr, its navigator; Pilot Major Herbert G. Brackley and Chief Engineer F. P. Arnold. A large crowd which had heard that the machine was on the way was at the landing field to welcome her. The official welcoming party was in charge of Col. Archie Miller, commander of Hazelhurst Field, and Col. Moose, Commander of Mitchel Field.

At 5 P. M. it again took the air and flew over New York City and over the Oranges, New Jersey, the home of Thomas A. Edison. It took ten passengers on the trip, including Dr. M. R. Hutchinson, of New York City; Captain C. K. McFadden, representing the Handley-Page company; Major Morris Connolly, member of the Board of Governors of the American Flying Club; and Cole T. Younger, vice chairman of the contest committee of the club.

Hovering over the home of Mr. Edison, Mr. Hutchinson dropped a message to the inventor, expressing felicitations on Columbus Day. While the plane was over New York City Major Connolly dropped a message addressed to the headquarters of the American Flying Club at 11 East 25th Street.

Officials of the Handley-Page company said a trip to Washington might be made the latter part of the week.

RAISE $25,000 FOR MERCIER.

Rochester Gives Reconstruction Fund as Part of Its Welcome.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Rochester joined other cities of America today in honoring as its guest Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium. City officials, church dignitaries, business men and school children joined in the tributes. As a climax, at a meeting in Convention Hall this evening, the Cardinal was presented with a check for $25,000 by George Eastman, President of the Rochester Patriotic and Community Fund, the contribution of citizens of the city of all creeds and classes toward the reconstruction of Belgium.

A Citizens' Committee met the Cardinal in Syracuse early this morning and on the arrival of his special train here Rochester infantry and cavalry companies of the State Guard and members of the Fourth Degree Assembly of the Knights of Columbus escorted him to the French-Belgian Church of Our Lady of Victory, where he celebrated mass. A luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce, a service in St. Patrick's Cathedral, a visit to Exposition Park, where thousands of school children greeted him, and visits to other institutions, culminating in the Convention Hall meeting this evening, filled the day.

RED LACQUER-ROOM IN SALE

A Feature of Auction of Antiques of Two New Yorkers' Homes.

An entire room of red lacquer is an interesting feature of a sale which opens at the Silo Galleries on Wednesday to continue through the week. The sale, which includes many antiques, furniture, bronzes, porcelains, &c., is the property of the late Theodore W. Myers, formerly City Controller, and the Eustace Hale estate, with the contents of the houses of two very well-known New Yorkers. The red lacquer room belongs to one of these latter, who took a prominent part in the late war. The room is a large one of Sou Chow or Miaka lacquer in panels and carving, with chiseled brass mounts, and a pagoda-shaped fireplace.

The room is sold as one number, the fittings go separately. The furniture is upholstered in black and the draperies are black with gold thread and touches of red. Other furnishings and ornaments are in keeping, teakwood Japanese bronzes and big cloisonné vases. A large and beautiful portrait of the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, by an unknown artist, is an attractive number of the sale.

There are tapestries and Carrara marble garden pieces of fine work, benches, fountains, figures, and bird baths.

Recovered Purse and Umbrella

New York City.
October 7, 1919.

The New York Times:

One morning recently my sister, on her way downtown in a crowded Subway train, dropped a small purse containing bills to the amount of $15 and some change. She telephoned me and I immediately placed an advertisement in the Lost and Found columns of The New York Times.

The next morning, not only did the finder advertise in The Times, but the first mail brought a letter saying where the purse was to be called for. Joy, supreme, of course, and all thanks to The Times.

So when I lost my sterling silver handled umbrella Saturday, I naturally ran to The Times with another advertisement for the Lost and Found column; and again I was fortunate in recovering my loss.

1,500,000 Homes Now On McCALL STREET

TWO hundred thousand families have moved into McCall Street, and its homes now number 1,500,000.

This means—using the customary estimate of 4½ persons to a family—that McCall Street has a population today of 6,750,000.

Six million, seven hundred and fifty thousand men women, and children! Bigger than New York City by three quarters of a million. Three times as big as Chicago. Bigger than the sum of Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland, New Orleans, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, and San Francisco.

That is McCall Street—the street we picture as containing all the homes in which McCall's is read each month—the street that would stretch, house after house, clear across the continent, from the rocky coasts of New England to the slopes of the Pacific.

A million, five hundred thousand women welcome the guidance of McCall's in the decoration, furnishing, and management of their homes, the care and education of their children, the buying and preparation of the food that meets the demands of 6,750,000 sturdy American appetites.

Home dressmaking on McCall Street produces a hundred million dollars' worth of clothes for women and children each year. Mothers and daughters, aided by McCall Patterns and the exclusive advance styles in McCall's, make for their own wear dresses of the same modes that prevail on Fifth Avenue and in Paris.

The families who are moving into McCall Street will have pianos, phonographs, oriental rugs, period furniture—the furnishings that are found in homes of refinement and culture. They will possess vacuum cleaners, fireless cookers, washing machines, electric appliances—all the most modern housekeeping conveniences.

So will their neighbors, who welcome them to McCall Street.

For the people who read McCall's are enterprising, prosperous, and up to date. Their expenditure for the necessities and the luxuries of modern living (exclusive of rent, taxes, and insurance) will exceed 200,000,000 dollars a month—and they have learned that they can put their faith in the merchandise that is advertised in McCall's.
